Care of the Hands.

There are simple means by which the hands may be kept in a presentable condition, as the use of glycerine or honey after washing them, and a little bran or oatmeal to be used sometimes instead of soap. Wearing gloves when the work is rough or dirty is quite admissible. Ladies who have rough, coarse hands should rub them with cream at night and may wear loose gloves. Should the hands become hard and horny, treat them with pumistone and lemon. Lemon is always good for the hands; it cleanses them as well as soap and makes them soft.

Krupp Guns.

The exclusive use of crucible steel for cannon, leading to perfection of means for making it, has been followed by an increase of lightness in gun organization, which renders possible an enormous increase of caliber. Here is a 10-inch gun, caliber 35-i e., 35 times as long as the diameter of its bore-which weighs only 21 tons. There was shown men plate combined of 12 inches of iron, 2 inches wood packing, and a second iron plate of 8 inches thickness, making a compact mass, which had been pierced by shot from this gun. The 9.4 shot was propelled by 165 pounds of powder; the distance was 491 feet, and after passing through the treble plate, the shot actually went 1 mile and 642 yards beyond. An old wrought-iron gun would have had to be unmanageably large, thick and heavy to do anything like that, and would never have fired another shot. In modern gunmaking mere bulkiness is got rid of. as in nature the megatherium has guns representing an increase of power rendered possible by refinement of horse power in machinery for managing and moving large masses. Chief Engineer King, in his "War Ships and Navies of the World," pronounces the 71-ton Krupp gun "the most powerful breech-loading gun ever constructed on the continent of Europe," and holds it superior to the 100-ton Armstrong. The 71-ton is 32 feet 9 inches long, greatest diameter, 5 feet 6 inches; length of bore, 28 feet 7 inches; diameter of bore, 15.75 inches; diameter of powder chamber, 17.32 inches. Over the tube (of two parts, neatly jointed) are 4 cylinders, and a ring around the breech. It is riffed with a uniform twist of 1 in 457. It is impossible to fire it until the breech is fully closed. The back of the breech block is rounded like the letter D. It holds a maximum charge of 485 pounds of powder, carrying a of 485 pounds of powder, carrying a This is the gun that fossilizes so many fortresses. It is quasi-miraculous that this mass can be so easily moved .--- Moncure D. Conway in Harper's Magazine.

The Mortality from Consumption.

Within the past year the civilized world has been shocked and saddened by the knowledge of the great devastation wrought by the cholera in Spain; and every precaution, in the way of sanitary measures and quarantina arm. regulations that modern science could suggest, was taken to prevent its spreading into other countries. The public scanned the columns of the daily press, eager for information with regard to the advance of this fearful disease, and read with bated breath as they learned that it numbered its victims by the tens of thousands.

If it was a matter of such deep and universal concern that in Spain 101,-000 souls gave up their lives to this fell destroyer, should it not also be a 112 Wall Street, New York. matter of some interest to our own people that, within the borders of the United States, over 91,500 persons die each year of pulmonary consumption?-- that twelve out of every

"Why, I thought your father had the rheumatism."

"Oh, yes, so he has; he always has that. I forgot all about it."

And so it is with many people who suffer with the most aggravating pains. They hobble around as best they can and get very little or no sympathy on account of their healthful look, and from the fact that it is only rheumatism and they always have it. What pains are more severe than those from rheumatism? Said W. S. Hopkins, living at No. 179 C Avenue, Cedar Rapids, Iowa:

"My wife and daughter were both stricken with inflammatory rheumatism at the same time. The lower limbs were much swollen. The pain seemed almost beyond endurance. Sleep was out of the question. They suffered so much that to move or even touch the sheet on the bed would cause the most violent pain. They were confined to the bed four weeks. During that time and previously, I bought been got rid of, the increased size of manykinds of medicines. Then lemployed a physician, but nothing gave relief until I bought some Athlophoros, which I had material, and the humanization of heard of, and I am glad to say in a very short time the swelling was reduced, the pain gone and they were entirely well."

"How much did they take, Mr. Hopkins?" "I think it was three bottles in all." "Have either of them had any return of the rheumatism?' "Not in the least."

"It was rather a strange coincidence, both having an attack at the same time?" "Yes, it was, but such was the case, strange as it may seem. They were both helpless, but are now well, and all from the use of Athlophoros. It is an excellent medicine, and well worth the trial by any lower limbs and at others in my arms. When I commenced with Athlophoros I was carrying my right arm in a sling. It was very much swollen and I could not move my fingers without causing me considerable pain. One evening, while I was suffering in this way. I heard of Athlophoros, and the wonderful care it had made in Mrs. McCud's case. The next day I sent for a bottle and commenced using it at once. In 1869 the African Kohinoor valued at $150,000 was discovered. By 1870 public attention had become completely aroused and capitalists began to invest in the enterprises. In 1870 there were 40,000 people within a ine of seventy miles on the banks of the Vaal river. The South African diamond fields are situated chiefly in the colony of West Griqualand, which was proclaimed British territory in 1871.

means of prevention should be found, by means of which people would be rendered proof against the disease, or at least could be cured when at once it had set its seal whon them, would it not be one of the greatest boons vouchsafed to man since the introduction of vaccination?

Inventive persons have from time to time thought that they had secured a sure cure, if not an unfailing prophylactic; and, at the present time, since the discoveries of Koch, all sorts of parasiticides are being used to kill the germ of the disease. The unfortunate bacillus is now being hunted down with pneumatic chambers, deep inhalations, and local applications introduced by means of the hypodermic syringe, with the results that are, to say the least, uncertain.

But, after all the years of research devoted to the subject, and out of all the methods of prevention and cure that have been suggested, the one that has given the best results, and is now being universally adopted, is change of climate.-From "Colorado as a Win-ter Sanitarium," by Dr. S. ### Gov. Curtin's Story.

Ex-Gov. Curtin, of Pennsylvania. in a speech in the house the other day told a very good story to point an attack he was making on some of the Republicans as follows: As to these bloody-minded men, some of whom would wipe out everybody on this side of the house these warriors who can never be appeased, they remind me of a noted character who lived in my town years ago. He was an old fellow; I think he had been a wagonmaster in the revolution; that was the tradition of the town. He used to tell a story of his warlike achievements in battle, and he told it so often that he came to believe it and when strangers would come to the little village in which he lived they would give "Capt. Curzy" (that was his name) a drink or two and get him to tell the story. The story as he told it was about like this: "At the battle of Monmouth," he would say, "although in the light horse, I lought that day on foot, I slashed with my saber cuts one and two, and a head went off here and a limb went off there, until the blood actually ran into my shoes. [Laughter.] A pile of dead bodies surrounded me; I was excited, and I was still slashing away when I felt a tonch on my shoulder. I looked up and there was Washington! [Laughter.] I shall never forget the solem-nity of his appearance or the gravity of his speech. He gazed at me for a moment without speaking, and then said, "Young man, restrain your im-petuosity! In thename of God do not make a slaughter house out of the field of battle." [Renewed laughter.]

The Coldest Place on Earth.

Many feel in these latitudes quite comfortable on reading of the cold registered at Werkhojansk, in Siberia. At the late meeting of the St. Petersburg Academy of Science, it was stated that the mean temperature of Werkshojansk, during January, 1885, was sixty-two degrees nine minutes. Fahrenheit below zero and the lowest reading of the thermometer was ninety degrees four minutes below zero. This is the lowest minimum temperature ever recorded on the globe, under circumstances which make the record entirely reliable, and is probably lower than would ever be recorded at the north pole itself. The Werkshojansk observations also show that the great cause of refrigeration on the continents is not due to the movement of polar air over them, but to the radiation and loss of heat by the soil itself under an atmosphere of extremely low absolute humidity.

Wirtue and Sobriety in Congress.

The drinking men in congress are the exception. During daily intercourse with these gentlemen running through six years of official life, excessive drinking was very rare, while a profane oath scarcely ever fell upon my ear. Many of these gentlemen are Christian men at home, and do not lay aside their religious profession in Washington. Among us not a few are ready to speak and to give and work for the cause of Christ, emamples worthy the honored name they bear. At this anniversary we had ringing words for the right. We have reason to be proud of the American congress, the noblest body of statesmen under the whole heaven, worthy the grandest government upon which the sun shines. But we, of course, must not yet expect millennial purity. That, too, will come in the Lord's time .- [Evangelist.
