Coffins.

There are thirty-four coffin factories in the United States, and they turn out an average of 150 coffins and caskets a day. The largest factory is in Cincinnati; it covers acres of ground and its shop facilities are so great that it manufactures everything necessary to a complete funeral, except corpses. Anything from a tack up to a hearse can be seen in process of manufacture on their premises. Next to Cincinnati, Chicago has the largest coffin factories. The biggest coffin kept in stock is six feet nine inches in length and has an opening of twenty-eight or twenty-nine inches. The average opening is only eighteen or nineteen inches, and the average long coffin is six feet four inches. The longest coffin turned out by any factory is a nine-footer, in which the dignitaries of the Catholic church are buried. Such a coffin was used at the burial of Cardinal McCloskey, the extra length being required for his crown, which he wore in death. About twenty-four hours were taken to put this coffin together, but any ordinary coffin, that is, a coffin of extra large size, no matter what its cost or the character of the trimmings or upholstery, can be put together from the rough boards in three hours at the utmost.—[Cincinnati Commercial.

Peers That Are Pensioned.

It is stated that relatives of peers have received $500,000,000 of public money since 1855. Each Duke also has sent at present fifty-six relatives in public office. The 402 hereditary peers own an average of 35,000 acres each and draw a total annual rental of $60,000,000. The Duke of Richmond has made a specially good thing out of his ancestors. A perpetual pension of £19,000 was granted to one of the dukes. To commute this consols worth £633,000 were purchased when consols were below par and the bonds were put aside for the Duke. These consols rose above par, were sold, and the proceeds invested in land, which now gives the Duke £50,000 a year in place of £19,000 a year to which he is entitled. To reform the present house of peers there are some persons who advocate the Chinese hereditary system, by which a duke's son would be a marquis, the grandson an earl, and so on until the family either entirely lost its title or was renobled for fresh services to the state.

A Wife's Good Fortune.

"There is a woman at the bottom of it," is a trite remark. True; women are at the bottom of good as well as evil. Congressman Whiting, of Holyoke, made a little speech recently at a dinner in this city, and in the course of his remarks on the influence of paper, he stated this incident, not by any means a new one: "The introduction of blue paper is another interesting item. The owner of a small mill in England went to London to sell his product, leaving his wife at home. It was washing day—presumably Monday—and the good wife had a blueing-bag tied to her apron. She visited the mill, and, leaning over the engine, dropped her blueing bag, and instead of white paper she had a lot of blue paper. She met her husband upon his return with a good deal of apprehension, and informed him of the misfortune. He felt as if a serious mistake had been made until he sent the product to market and received five cents per pound more than for his usual article, and thereafter his mill was run on blue paper, and brought him a fortune.

Death of a Giant.

Fred Decker, better known as the "Ossian giant," died at his home at Swains, Alleghany county, Sunday night, at the age of 50 years. During his earlier life he was seven feet two and one-half inches in height and weighed 325 pounds. As he grew older he became round-shouldered, and at the time of his death he was but six feet eleven inches high. Some years ago Mr. Decker was for a time an exhibit in a New York museum, and for his services in this capacity he received $80 per month, but the idle life he there led grew distasteful to him and he returned to his native county, where he could enjoy the freedom of outdoor life and make practical use of his extraordinary strength.—[Elmira Advertiser.

Ike Got Even.

Ike Sloan was a farmer, like other Vermonters, but wasn't exactly one of the type whose "critters" and vegetables always bring more money than other people's. On the contrary, if there was any difference between the price that he got for his products and the market rate, it was generally to his disadvantage. One day on his way back from the village he complained bitterly to the people with whom he gossiped along the road that the storekeeper had abused him most shamefully by giving him only nine cents a pound for his maple sugar. "But, gol dern him," said Sloan with a chuckle, "I got even with him, for I put more'n two dozen bucketfuls of water into the sap before I b'iled it!" —[Boston Record.

"Art is long and time is fleeting," and it is too bad to spend half of a short life distressed with neuralgia, when 25 cents spent for one bottle of Salvation Oil will cure it quickly.

FOOD makes Blood and Blood makes Beauty. Improper digestion of food necessarily produces bad blood, resulting in a feeling of fullness in the stomach, acidity, heartburn, sick-headache, and other dyspeptic symptoms. A closely confined life causes indigestion, constipation, biliousness and loss of appetite. To remove these troubles there is no remedy equal to Prickly Ash Bitters. It has been tried and proven to be a specific.

Five out of Five Hundred.

In one of the squarest, fairest, fiercest battles of the war 500 men were thrown forward to check for a moment the furious charge of twenty times as many Confederates. Of the 500 men in line at the beginning of the charge 5 stood at the end by the colors. I was one of the five, and I never think of the hail of bullets, of the hurricane swoop of charging thousands that swept men to sudden death or away before it like chaff in the wind, but I see those five sullen, desperate, white-faced, stubborn men gathering in a startled group about the torn and blood-stained flag that had been down and up a good many times. Dazed they were, crazed they were, by the overwhelming catastrophe, but the instinct of clinging to the flag was there. My comrades were better soldiers than I. They were men whose eyes flashed, and whose nostrils widened when conflict became furious, and it was a delight to me in that minute to know that in this hour of trial my controlling impulse, my instinctive move had been the same as theirs, to cling to the flag. I had no idea then that we would live five minutes, and yet I exulted in the thought that when put to trial I had done my full duty. We brought the flag out of the fight. Four of the men are living yet, but they have not met since the war. They are all in humble walks of life, and not one of them is given to self-adulation, but to all of them that incident of battle is a precious memory. After that, as one of the old codgers said in his own quaint way: "They were a leetle too proud ever to do a cowardly thing again."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

In The Name Mary.

From the Chicago News.

More women have been named Mary than any other name which has blest or cursed the feminine sex. It stands as the typical name for the holiest and most abject of women—for the virgin and the wanton. And in every language of Asia and Europe, as well as that of Egypt, this name appears almost without variation. It has been an equal favorite with the aristocrats of France and the Puritans of New England, and it equally becomes literature or kitchen. It is stately when we speak of Lady Mary Worthy Montague; it is simplicity itself when we refer to Mary O'Brien, who brings in our breakfast rolls. At one time it may bring up a picture of a divine painted face, hanging in the rich gloom of an Italian gallery, and at another of a red cheeked dairymaid, with her bare feet in the daisied grass. Two of England's five Queens have borne it, and the most memorable woman that Scotland ever produced has made it immortal. The proudest women of France have dignified it, and the worst women of Russia have disgraced it. There are as many Marys smiling at the circling suns that make the brief summer by the northern sea as loll through the luxurious days by the Mediterranean. The name that Catholic missionaries gave to the first converted Indian maiden was Mary, and perhaps the first daughter of every family for all time will stand in imminent danger of bearing the name, for it is the first to be considered in naming girl babies, and when rejected is always thought of with lingering tenderness. How many lovers have loved it! How they have associated it with purity and gentleness, with womanliness and candor and trust! What a faithful name it is! Its bearer seems predestined to sorrow, yet it is gladsome, too. "My mother's name was Mary." What a pleasant thing to say! "My little daughter Mary." Could anything be prettier? "My sister Mary, who is dead." What a wreath of tender suggestions! "Mary, my wife." What a picture of home comfort!

Edmunds While Speaking.

A Washington correspondent describes Senator Edmunds while speaking as follows: "He rises slowly, and you are surprised to see how tall he is. Six feet and more, he has a large frame, and his shoulders have that bend known as the student's stoop. He is a physical giant—or he might be if he put himself under the training of John L. Sullivan. He wears dark clothes, and his long frock coat is unbuttoned as he talks. He speaks in articulate tones, in a strong voice with a slight nasal twang. He goes on steadily and easily. He never halts for a word, and though his speech is not written, it will read as smoothly in to-morrow's Record as though it had been polished for weeks. He does not deal much in metaphor, does not grow excited, and he expects evidently that he will have more weight from what he says than how he says it. He gestures somewhat, and his motions are short, sharp, and occasionally violent. Now and then he puts one hand in his pocket and brings the other arm down with the finger extended in enforcing a point. Now he churns the air with both hands, and now he holds his iron spectacles down in front of him, and delivers his words with no gestures whatever. Though his speech is purely argumentative, it holds the attention to the end, and you can see that his brother Senators feel that it is one of the great efforts of the session."

David Sinton, Ohio's richest man, is a Scotch-Irishman, and grew up around the big iron mills of Pittsburg. He began business as a clerk in a country store at $4 a month, then was clerk in a blast furnace, afterward manager, and at last half owner. After that the advance in wealth was rapid. He is worth $12,000,000, and gives largely to public charities.

A Great Man's Generosity for a Fallen Friend.

I told the senator that reminded me of an "old chesnut" that was told of Caleb Cushing, of Massachusetts, and Frank Pierce, when the latter was senator from New Hampshire. He was noted for his politeness and courtesy as well as for his genial ways. They had been out to a dinner party one night and dined and wined liberally. On their way home Cushing fell and couldn't get up. He said: "Frank, help me up." Frank replied: "Caleb, I cant; but I will lay down with you," and they did rest on the bosom of the earth until a friendly hack rescued them.

The pellets operate thoroughly but harmlessly, establishing a permanently healthy action of the stomach and bowels, and as an anti-bilious remedy are unequaled.

That Tired Feeling

The mild weather, following our long and severe winter, has such a depressing effect upon the body that one feels all tired out, almost completely prostrated, the appetite is lost, and there is no ambition to do anything. The whole tendency of the system is downward. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine needed. It purifies the blood, sharpens the appetite, overcomes the tired feeling and invigorates every function of the body.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla in four weeks made me a new man. My head ceased to ache, and my whole system is built up anew, enjoying perfect health." I. BARRINGTON, 130 Bank St., New York City.

"We all like Hood's Sarsaparilla, it is so strengthening." LIZZIE BALFOUR, Auburn, P. Q.

Cured and Built Up

"My daughter had been ailing some time with general debility, and Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended to us. After she had taken three bottles she was completely cured and built up. It is with great pleasure that I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla." BEN M. MIDDLETON, Supt. Cincinnati and Louisville Mail Line Co., Cincinnati.

"For the past two years I have been afflicted with severe headache and dyspepsia. I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and found great relief." MRS. E. F. ANNABLE, New Haven, Ct.

"I took Hood's Sarsaparilla for general debility and was wonderfully benefited by it." J. P. JOHNSON, Martin's Ferry, O.

No words of ours can tell the benefit to be derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, if you need a good spring medicine. It will strain all the impurities from the blood, rouse the torpid liver, invigorate the digestive organs, and impart new life to every function of the body. We only ask you to try a single bottle to prove the positive merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla as an honest and reliable medicine.

"I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine for general debility there is, and for the good it has done me I cheerfully recommend it." J. SULLIVAN, 39 Brown St., Rochester, N. Y.
