Suffolk Pizs.

Among the small or middle races of Engrish pigs a breed occurs which is close akin to the Essex -- omewhalarger in the body and shorter in the leg, better haired and harder. A standard authority thus describes them:

"The Black Suffolks are short on the leg, long in the body, well-coated with long, silky hair, the forehead broad, the nose short and slightly turned up: ears rather short but broad, with a tendency to droop forward; splendid shoulders, great jowls, body wonderfully symmetrical. The Suffolk more nearly realizes the theory of the parallelogram than any other animal we know of. The tail is set quite on a level with his hips; the hams are deep and wide." This is high praise. They are also praised for the excellence of their pork, freedom from skin diseases, and general vigor of constitution. They resemble the Essex in many points, and are equally valuable for crossing upon the larger breeds.

The really careful breading of pigs. and the preservation of pedigrees in England, dates back but comparatively few years. Pigs took their names from the counties in which they were bred, and breeders or exhibitors at shows called their pigs Suffolks or Norfolks perhaps, so it happened that some white pigs that won prizes at the shows, were imported to this country under the name of Suffolks. The pigs were good and had quite a run, but when we wanted more, we found that Suffolks as recognized in England were black, and that the high-bred, small white breed were the small Yorkshire, which were, so to speak, like those we were familiar with as Suffolks, only more so. There have been occasional importations of Black Suffolks, but we know of no herd maintained and bred pure. They probably have been crossed with the Essex, which they resemble, and which have a strong hold upon the regard of our people. - Ameri- with his old toe na l. can Agriculturist.

Full-Blood and Thoroughbred. In popular language the terms are syronymous. When used in reference ers seek to establish a difference also, example in exposed s funtions in foreign whose veins there is no admixture or starn of any other blood but the Spanish, while a thoroughbred is all that and something more. A sheep may be a full-blood (pure blood would be a betrer term), and yet be so delicient in form or fleece, as to be untit for a breeder. But a thoroughbred is the ourcome of a long line of ancestors, which, beginning with pure blood, have been so consumately monded by man to a special purpose, that this last and finished product is, so to speak, incapable of begetting or bearing a progeny different from itself. While these ought to be, and with accurate men are, the definitions of the two terms, in popular usage they are not, and are constantly misapplied.

All lions, all tigers, all animals in a state of nature are full-bloods, purebloods, average types of their respective races; but not all of them are thoroughbreds; that is, not all of them are so even in all their qualities, and so sound in their constitutions, as to be able to produce progeny up to the level of the race-standard. They are weeded out by natural selection; they are illformed, or weak, or lacking in cunning, and they perish in the struggle of life, leaving the best individuals behind to perpetuate the race. Under a state of domestication in which man seeks to preserve all the individuals, good and poor, he must himself conduct this selection of his breeders .- American Agriculturist.

Hobbies for Women.

Every woman should have some special thing to think about except the regular weekly round of duties; in fact. some aim in life except that of cooking, eating and sleeping and the contingent possibility of dying soon to get rid of it all. No aim and no change make asylums overflow, leave children motherless and make life not worth the living. Every woman had her ambitious dreams once, what were they, To paint? Then let her get water colors, paint flowers and work at it every day, if for only half an hour. If one has but half a chance let her prove that she uses that; that she can do more than many who have not only a whole chance, but many chances. Adelaide Lardy, in Good Housekeeping.

Caring for the Mummies.

Dr. Schweinfurth takes a very sensible view about mummies. ## How Bright's Disease Originated.

John Bright was born in 1811. He made a tour of the Holy Land at the age of 24, but did not decide to purchase it, owing to the existence of a flaw in the title. He next began to invent things. On his return from the Orient, he discovered that what was most needed both in Europe and America was a good, reliable disease for the use of the better classes. The poor and humble were well supplied, but the rich, the aristocratic and patriotic statesmen, corned heads and porkists of the two lands languished for a good, reliable disease that poor people could not obtain. So he began to sit up nights and perfect Bright's disease. He gained the prize at the Paris exposition and honorable mention at the great relish, and evidently wanted more of great centennial celebration at Philadelphia "for meritor ous and effective disease for the better classes." Since that time he has been gratified to notice that the very best people both in his own land and in this are handling Bright's disease. It has been kept out of the reach of the poor, and to die from this ailment has been regarded as a proud distinction. Bull Nuc, in Bus-

Painting the Town Red.

At this late day another origin for the expression, painting it red, is given, Back in the 60's racing was one of the exciting features of Mississippi river travel, and when an opportunity offered for a trial of speed all hands were breathless with excitement. The first command from the captain would be: "Paint her red boys?" which was river slang for tilling the fire-box with rosin in order to create a quick, hot fire, at which time the fire-boxes would be thrown open. Then, if the night were dark, the effect was simply grand. As far ahead as the eye could see the river would be a deep red from the reflection, forming a most beautiful picture, "Just dis, Bill. Dey's got no use for which, once seen, could never be forgotten. It was at that time that the expression, "paint the town red," originated, as the old steamboatmen intended to convey the idea by its use that they would have a beautiful time on arrival at the r destination .- Pitts. burgh D spater.

> Ever since the Michigan Central Railroad was built it has been a favorite with the traveling public, because its roadbed was smooth, its cars elegant, and its service admirable, but since the road built a new bridge across the Ningara river below the falls, and a station called Falls Fiew, right beside the horse-shocfalls, everybody wants to go that way. Many people cannot stop at Niagara Falls, from one train to another and they never could see enough of the Falls from the old bridge to amount to anything, but now, by the new "Falls stand on a high bluff for ten minutes, right above the seething boiling cauldron, am see more of the falls in that time than the rould to stop over foraday. # A Mule That Likes Tid-Bits.

Some time ago a news item appeared is the St. Louis Globs-Democrat about a mole that devoured young ducks. Henry Bircher. in Deck's Prairie, owns a mule that beats that feat badly. Mr. Bircher's mule not only eats ducks, but last spr ng, while running loose in the barn-yard, the animal cornered a number of spring chickens and devoured half a dozen before the brute could be stopped. One day Mr. Bircher's boys were plowing near a pond in the field Some neighbors' lads were fishing at the pond, and when going home passed close to where the mule was at work. They tried the beast on fish, which the mule ate with the finny tribe to devour. This wonderful mule also eats cheese, meat and bread, preferring the latter article with a heavy coat of jelly, molasses or butter on it .- [Grantfork (III.) Special.
