THE UMATILLA SETTLEMENT

The Oregonian says the Umatilla Indians have decided at last to accept the terms of settlement proposed by the government two years ago, and will allow the bulk of their reservation to be sold to white settlers. It is a magnificent body of land, comprising 265,000 acres. After establishing the Indians in seigniority, and reserving an ample proportion of wood and pasture land for their use, the remainder, estimated at 145,000 acres, will be sold at auction. Only 200 acres will be sold to a single bidder (160 of agricultural land and 40 of wood land), and each buyer must make out that he is purchasing lands for his own use and occupation, and not for, or on account of, or at the solicitation of, any other, and that he has made no contract whereby the title thereto shall directly or indirectly inure to the benefit of another, and before a patent shall be issued for unentered lands the purchaser shall make satisfactory proof that he has resided on the lands purchased at least one year and has reduced at least 25 acres to cultivation. This regulation is designed to prevent the purchase of the land by "grubbers" and to protect the country from the evils of speculative and monopoly ownership.

Although the Indians have fully agreed to the arrangement, a considerable time must elapse before it can be carried into effect. The land must all be surveyed and platted, and the Indians must make their selections. After that the land to be sold must be advertised.

The money accruing from the sales of these lands will be used to establish the Indians in their new homes, in maintaining schools among them, etc. Every dollar of it is to be reserved for them, and it will be expended under government authority. The lands which they retain in seigniority will not be patented to them for twenty years and are not to be taxed during that period. It is hoped in twenty years to make the Indians independent. The scheme of guardianship is a very elaborate one and contains minute provision for every emergency which is believed to be within the bounds of possibility.

This settlement is favorable for the interests of the Indians in all things and would have been accepted long ago but for the efforts of parties interested in maintaining the reservation system. Stockmen who have pastured cattle on the reservation range under lease, degraded white men who have been permitted to live on the reservation by virtue of the rights of their wives and children, vagabond half-breeds who have preferred the pauper reservation system with its plenty to lives of industry and independence, and speculators who have found profit in miscellaneous ways—all these strove with the zeal of selfish interest to defeat the proposition to break up the reservation and through their close relationship with the Indians and superior intelligence were able for a long time to postpone its consummation.

PROSCRIBED FIRE COMPANIES.

The Fireman's Record, of San Francisco, speaking of different companies says:

"The State of California has enacted laws for the protection of its citizens against unreliable insurance companies. Now California constitutes the most profitable portion of the Pacific field, and there is not a single company doing business in said field that would not actively compete for business here if permitted to do so. No company would 'tickle' the frame ranges of Idaho; the railroad towns of Montana; the flouring mills of Oregon, or the hop kilns of Washington Territory and still decline business in California, if it had such standing as would entitle it to do business here. This being the case the citizens of the State and Territories named should beware of certain companies, (real and alleged) which, prohibited from doing business in California, are now sending their agents to every nook and corner of the Northwest, and offering policies at half price, and with almost any concession as to form, the only real essential seeming to be a premium of some sort."

For the convenience of our agents we append a partial list of the companies referred to, and which are prohibited from entering the State of California:

Anglo-American, Failed.) Fargo, of Sioux Falls, Dakota; Northwestern Fire and Marine, of Portland, Or.; Home, of Seattle; Pelican, of New Orleans; Puget Sound, of Tacoma, (Failed); State Insurance Co., of Salem, Or.

If our agents hear of any others of the same sort attempting to do business in their section we shall be pleased to hear from them."

WE AGREE WITH HIM.

The editor of the Sentinel prides himself very much on his "editorials" and we are free to admit that he can scratch the inwards out of any subject he takes hold of about as dexterously as the next man, and sometimes he throws a flood of light on the subject that is truly bewildering. For instance, in his article last week on Theology he says:

"The simplest axiomatic truths are not believed from any process of reasoning, nor from any absolute proof, but simply by faith. No one can demonstrate the infallibility of the senses, explain the character of thought, or prove the worth of simple consciousness. With faith, then, as the basis of all reason of any more absolute than that faith itself."

Now, we had not looked at the subject in that light before, but his argument convinces us. There can be no doubt that the almost infinite complexity of man's intellectuality in endeavoring to pierce the mysteries of infinity as well as earthly enigmas is peculiarly pre-supposed by the evanescent influence of invisible forces incompatible with his internal emotions of true ignorance, as it were, which, combating for the supremacy, causes a decided divergence of ideas rendering it impossible for man to arrive at any definite and positive conclusion as to whether he knows anything or not, being the absolute necessity of unbounded faith. There can be no doubt about it. The logic is sound and unanswerable, and we shall stay with brother Owen on this proposition till the cows come home.

Cave for Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulence, unassimilated food, etc., moisture, like perspiration, occurring a very disagreeable feeling after getting up, is common. After getting up, it is common to attend. Bladder, Bleding, and Bleeding Piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Boswick's Cave Remedy, which acts directly upon the parts affected, absorbing the Tumors, slaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure. Price, 50 cents. Address, The Dr. Boswick Medicine Company, Pluma, Q. Sold by J. T. Wright, Union, Oregon.
