method is The Novelist, Alden's new weekly magazine of American fiction. It undertakes to give the worthiest fiction that American authors can be tempted to produce. Foreign authors not admitted. It is not sentimental talk about justice to American authors, but is bold, practical action. It is certainly handy in form, beautiful in dress, excellent in all mechanical qualities, and low in price; well suited in all respects to meet the wants of the intelligent millions who are capable of appreciating "the best"-it will not steep to compete with the "gutterfiction" of the sensational periodicals and libraries. Terms, $1.00 a year, at which rate it will give over 2,500 pages, equal to from eight to twelve ordinary American dollar novels. The stories will follow successively, one at a time, a novel of ordininary length thus being completed in from four to eight weeks. If one story does not please you, you will not have long to wait for the next. For a ten-cent subscription (if you don't wish to enter for all at $1.00), you will receive the first chapters of every story published during the year, which you can then order separately, if you wish. A specimen copy of The Novelist will be sent free on request. Address, John B. Alden, Publisher, 393 Pearl St., New York; P. O. Box 1227.
