The Tariff on Paper.

Congressman Whiting made speech in the House on the tariff as it concerns paper. He deprecated any change in the rates, notwithstanding paper is made here, he said, of as good quality and quite as cheaply as abroad. He concluded as follows:

to the laborer who makes it, and I repeat that I am at a loss to understand why in the absence of any complaint or manufacturer, there should be any self fatally. proposition to change the tariff rate. It will be said in reply: If these things are so, why do you want a tariff on paper at all? My answer is that we want a tariff to prevent the European plus production here—thus breaking down our market, closing our mills and throwing our labor out of employment. We welcome home competition, but we do not want to compete with the whole world, and especially with that labor which does not receive one-half the compensation of American labor. The advocates of manufacturers claim that the consumer obtains the product at a reasonable price through competition among our own people, and the facts I have narrated furnish the most conclusive proof that the paper industry is a marvelous instance of the good re- authorities and lynched by a mob. sult and practical effect of such a position taken by those who favor protection. Corn and potatoes may often be op-dressed to advantage after plantug, providing fine manure is used. The cultivation of these crops during the season will mix the manure with the soil much more perfectly than it could be if plowed under.

Sprouts of suckers in apple orchards should be promptly removed. They frequently start in great numbers where the pruning has been severe, and they should be pinched off as soon as they appear. Removed when in leaf, suckers or sprouts of this character are less liable to have successors.

One advantage in keeping the soil loose is that when a shower comes, no matter how hard, the water does not run off, but goes down into the soil, whereas, if the surface of the soil be hard, some of the water will run off during a heavy shower. Hence, cultivation not only protects the plants during a dry season, but enables the soil to absorb a larger proportion of water when rain falls.
