

Let Her Be Cherished With the Tenderness Due to Her Position.

How refreshing it is to see a newly married maid bringing to her new home a heart full of love for all its inmates; falling into her place as daughter and sister as naturally as though she had been born there; cherishing an unabated attachment to her own relatives, and yet cordially identifying herself with the circle which wedlock has gathered around her; neither intruding into matters which do not concern her, nor isolating herself from the family in a proud self-seclusion, but going through her proper orbit with order, energy, and meekness; with equal grace accepting and reciprocating kind offices; ready with her counsel where counsel was solicited, and displaying, as occasion might require it, that "power of being silent," which an old writer specifies as one of the attributes of a good wife; eager in distinguishing every spark of discord on its first appearance; and shedding over the little world of home the genial influence of an example which makes even the thoughtless among them confess that that must be a divine religion which had molded a character of so much loveliness!

Who can estimate the value of such an acquisition to a family; a woman who brings into it a fresh infusion of taste, refinement and affection: "With gentle yet prevailing force, intent upon her destined course; graceful and useful all she does. Blessing and best where'er she goes," who, instead of planting the seeds of alienation among them, becomes a new bond of union; whose truthful nature, serene temperament and gentle manners attract every heart to itself, and make her the friend of all; and whose affectionate sympathy glids their days of gladness with a brighter luster, and assuages the bitterness of their sorrows.

If there are households among you blessed with a daughter and sister like this, see that you do not only cherish her with the tenderness due to her exalted worth, but copy her virtues. And let all the families which embrace these legal affinities cultivate that unselfish spirit which shines so conspicuously in the character we have been contemplating. The want of this lies at the root of a great portion of the discontent and unhappiness to be found in families; for in the habitual and intimate fellowship of home there can be no solid enjoyment while each one of the family is disposed to consult his own convenience or advantage, irrespective of the others.—N. Y. Ledger.

APOPLEXY IN SWINE.

One of the Results of Fattening Animals in a Short Time.

Apoplexy is usually a disease of fat hogs, although an animal that has long been thin or suffering from excessive irritation of the intestinal canal would also be predisposed to it. It must be understood that the process of fattening an animal in a few weeks destroys the equilibrium of the system, and in one sense the fatness is in itself a disease. The storing up of fat in the animal economy is always at the expense of muscular development. The muscles become weak and flabby. All the blood-vessels of the system are surrounded by a strong, tough, muscular coat that in a state of perfect health will resist any force that the heart's action can put upon these canals. But the fattening process weakens these fibers; a sudden or unusual strain ruptures one in the brain, and we call it apoplexy. It is not as common in the hog as one would expect, but occurs so often that the breeders should understand it and know the right thing to do. It is impossible to foresee when this is going to occur. If the rupture is a very small one, when the blood is oozing out in tiny drops, the hog will sometimes be found lying insensible and breathing heavily. No effort will arouse it. It is more usual to find a big fat hog lying dead, with no external marks or signs of the cause of death. Cut open the skull carefully, and a clot of blood of greater or less extent will be found inside. If alive, however, tie a stout cord above the knee and with a stick take a twist in the cord until on the inner side of the leg below the knee the brachial vein can be felt. Open it with a sharp-pointed knife, and if the blood will run take a pint and a half or a quart. Don't guess at it. An ounce of blood spread over the ground or on the floor has been mistaken for a pint. If the bleeding is to do any good, there must be considerable taken. If the broken vein is a small one, and the case is observed soon after it occurred, the animal may be saved. If it partially recovers it will be proper to evacuate the bowels. A large stock syringe would be valuable here to throw up a quart of warm water. In most cases, however, the owner will have a chance to sell the animal for soap-fat.

Killing Squirrels.

This is the very best time of the year to kill off these pests. A little expense in this month will save much time and trouble later on. * * * We have never found anything else so much satisfaction in the long run as the prepared poisoned wheat. If this is used in reasonable quantities, either on the very edge of just inside the squirrel hole, the squirrels will eat it greedily; there is little risk of killing off birds and practically no risk at all of injuring live-stock, as the grain soon becomes so scattered that what any one animal bigger than a squirrel could get hold of would be little more than a medicinal dose. The material is cheap; it can be distributed by one man, and does the work as completely as anything we know of. There are several brands on the market, some of which are useless. At the Southern farm we have generally used Wakelee's, and it has done very good work.—[San Leandro Reporter.

The number of Jamaica Ginger drunkards is said to be increasing at an alarming rate. A confirmed drunkard takes four ounces of the fiery fluid at one time, and the effects are even worse than those of whisky.

Don't get up an excitement in the hen house. If you want chickens for dinner to-morrow take them quietly off the roost to-night. Frightening a hen out of her wits is as bad as dogging a cow.

"You did not pay very close attention to the sermon, I fear, this morning." "O, yes, I did, mamma." "Well, what did the minister say?" "He said the picnic would start at ten o'clock Thursday morning, and, O, mamma, can I go?"

A taxidermist, of Belfast, Me., in preparing to mount a great horned owl, found the owl's body full of porcupine quills. The flesh was literally packed full of them, as well as the roof of the mouth. The owl evidently had dined on hedgehog.

A unique milk cure is established in Normandy. The cows, being made to drink ferruginous water, give medicated milk which nourishes and strengthens the system at the same time. Milk in France has become the panacea of all diseases, perpetuating youth and regenerating age.

A fellow in the South, where trains stop at frequent intervals for the engineer to sleep, has fitted up a box car as a theater, hitched it to a freight train, and whenever the train stops for an hour or two to unload a box he and his little troupe of barnstormers give the rustics a dramatic performance at ten cents a head.

Mrs. Winks—"Hold the baby a moment, there's a dear. I want to put back these pictures I got out for Mrs. Minks to look at. Such a tiresome creature as she is. She was here for nearly half an hour this afternoon, and did nothing but talk about the baby." Mr. Winks—"Bless his little heart. So the ladies come and sit and admire and talk about the little cherub, do they? Of course they do; they can't help loving." Mrs. Winks—"Gracious me! It wasn't my baby she talked about, it was her own."—Philadelphia Record.

A man of the humbler classes entered a public library in London and asked for a book, saying in reply to a question that he wanted "Omer." The next inquiry was whether he would have a Greek text or a translation, to which he gave the following reply: "I don't know nothing about a Greek 'un; what I wants is to read what Mr. Gladstone reads." After half an hour's reading (with his fingers stuck into his ears to insure against interruption) he said he thought it was "ram sort of stuff," and went out. He has not returned to finish it.

FALSE NEWS.

To Our Agents and Customers Everywhere.

The San Francisco Bulletin of February 6, 1889, following item, which is absolutely false and without foundation: "The Home Sewing Machine Company will go out of business. It is not able to continue at a profit owing to strong competition." The San Francisco Morning Call of February 7, 1889, published the following: "GOING OUT OF BUSINESS." "BRIDGEPORT, Conn., February 6.—The New Home Sewing Machine Company will go out of business. It is not able to continue at a profit owing to strong competition. Several hundred hands will be thrown out of employment. This, it is useless to say, is also false, being substantially the same as the other. The New Home Sewing Machine Company is sold financially. It has the finest equipped and best appointed sewing machine factory in the United States, located at Orange, Mass., where it is selling 100,000 machines per day and turning out 200,000 machines per day. This should be conclusive evidence that it is not going to retire from a business in which a large capital is profitably invested. In other words, the Popular New Home is here to stay as it ranks high above all competitors and is the leader of the age in practical improvements. The publications quoted above being 'false news' constitute a libel and parties receiving this card will confer a favor by mailing us copies of any paper in which they may have seen the same printed. Being published to the world they will doubtless injure our business, and we want all people not to credit any publication or verbal assertion of such a nature regarding our company, but when information is required, or a first-class machine wanted, please interview the undersigned.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using, sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 112 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

A Terrible Mistortune.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are falling in the prime of life—to feel more nervous, more dispirited, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and long unobscured by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, palatable, soothing to the nerves, promoter of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

The path of duty is near, yet people seek it afar off. The way is wide, but it is not hard to find. Go home and seek it, and you will not lack teachers.—Menius.

Eruption of the Skin Cured.

Ed. Venney, Brockville, Ontario, Canada, says: "I have used BRANDBRETT'S PILLS for the past fifteen years, and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies, but although gaining strength the itching was unrelieved. I finally concluded to take a thorough course of BRANDBRETT'S PILLS. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening each time by one, and then for one month took one every night, with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since."

A more glorious victory cannot be gained over another man than this—that, when the injury began on his part, the kindness should begin on ours.—Tillotson.

Consumption, Wasting Diseases, And general Debility. Doctors disagree as to the relative value of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites; the one supplying strength, and the other giving nerve power, and acting as a tonic to the digestive and entire system, but in Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites the two are combined, and the effect is wonderful. Thousands who have derived no permanent benefit from other preparations have been cured by this. Scott's Emulsion is perfectly palatable and is easily digested by those who cannot tolerate plain Cod Liver Oil.

I have gained this by philosophy—that I do without being commanded what others do from fear of the law.—Aristotle, B. G.

The Oldest Medicine in the World is probably DR. S. A. C. HILDENBROCK'S CELEBRATED EYE-WATER. This article is a carefully prepared physician's prescription, and has been in constant use for nearly a century. There are few diseases to which mankind are subjected more distressing than sore eyes, and none perhaps for which more remedies have been tried without success. For all external inflammation of the eyes, and for all internal troubles, if the directions are followed it will never fail. We particularly invite the attention of physicians to its merits. A DELIGHTED YOUNG WOMAN.

Look at my face and my hands—not a pimple. Such as you saw there some time ago. See my fresh cheeks, and I'm getting a dimple. I don't look at all like I used to, I know.

My face was all blotches—complexion like tallow. No wonder they thought me and called me a fright! No one need have pimples and skin gray and sallow. If she'll take what I took, ev'ry morn, noon, and night.

I asked the delighted young woman what she referred to, and she answered, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the best beautifier in the world, because it purifies and enriches the blood, and pure rich blood gives good health, and good health—beauty.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is guaranteed to cure all Blood, Skin and Scalp Diseases, as Blotches, Eruptions, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, in short, all diseases caused by bad blood, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.
