A Pensioned Picture.

There lives in Portland a lady, 80 years of age, who has a picture that has proven of great pecuniary value to her. It is a painting by one of the old masters. About ten years ago one of the Vanderbilts heard that she had such a picture and sent an expert to examine it. After a careful examination he decided that the painting was genuine, but it was one of the early examples of the artist and therefore not of especial merit. He wrote to Mr. Vanderbilt that the lady was in very straitened circumstances, and he thought the sum of $300 could safely be advanced for the picture, which the lady was willing to sell. Mr. Vanderbilt returned answer, offering the lady $300 a year during her lifetime, and also providing that the picture, for which she had a great attachment, should remain her property for the rest of her life, to become his at her death. The proposition ws... accepted, and every year since the old lady has received her $300 pension.-Lewiston Journal.

Perhaps you are asleep on the track, too.
