WASHINGTON, (D. C.) Jan. 24, 1890. EDITOR OREGON SCOUT :-

The wheels of legislation are having a bad time of it these days. Progress under general parliamentary law is slow. The machinery runs along smoothly enough so long as no Democrat resists its workings, but the least obstruction stops it and then there is a parrot and monkey time before it gets started again. Of course, this is fun for the Democrats but is annoying to the Republicans and worse than annoying to the Speaker. It is simply making his life a burden.

There has been two skirmishes this week. In the first instance Mr. Bland started the trouble on a decision denying the right to demand tellers. He appealed and the day was only saved by somewhat doubtful victory of laying the appeal on the table. Mr. Cannon saved the day by that motion.

II. C. Glascow and Samantha Johnson, Defendants.

To H. C. Glascow and to Samantha Johnson, the above named defendants:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF Coron, you and each of you are hereby

Mr. Holman started the second row. He took an appeal on the ground that a bill reported from the Judiciary Committee appropriating money for a penitentiary must first be considered in committee of the whole. The House refused to over-rule the Speaker. Then the machinery moved again.

The new rules are looked for with Oregon. anxiety and a strong desire on both sides to have some adequate system of procedure.

By a strict party vote the House committee on elections on Wednesday concluded to report in favor of unscating Jackson, the Democratic accredited Represntative from West Virginia, and declaring Smith, Republican contestant, entitled to the membership. Of the seventeen contested election cases in the House this is the first one reached, and as is generally the case the verdiet is purely a party matter on both sides. Whatever merit there may be in the case each party votes for its own man. This fact was so generally recognized that the committee on the final hearing of the case, after a short review of the matter, decided that it would be useless to dissect the evidence taken, as several days would be con; sumed in the process, and the members were well enough acquainted with the facts and legal points involved, anyway. There will, of course, be two reports presented to the House, a majority and a minerity report. Jackson thus will hold his seat but a short time in comparison with most members who take their seats and are afterwards unsuccessful in contests. There have been cases in recent years when members held their seats into the second session and were then only unscated at the very close. This however never Securs where the member first recognized does not belong to the dominate power. Right amusing, these hearing of contests.

Every few weeks the Postmaster General gives a personal hearing to delegation from a near by town in the interest of a particular candidate for postmaster. The railroad fare and the time consumed are both light, and the making up of a delegation is as easy as organizing a country surprise party. It is when two of these delagations lock horns that the real tug of war begins. For two mortal hours this week Mr. Wanamaker listened to the orators representing four different candidates for Faston, Maryland, who were all present. The solemn looking delegations sat ranged about the walls of the room and made havec of the water cooler and eyed the Postmaster General, as the cratory flowed.

Scrietary Noble has a disagreeable habit of searching for and finding crookedness in the management of public funds. Just now he has fallen upon the receivers of public moneys in the Far West and there are already a dozen heads in the basket and a score more to follow. The special agents have been making an investigation of the books of the receivers, with the result of finding numerous shortages running from one to fifty thousand doll: re in amount. The removals are pre-emptory.

The Supeme Court is giving a hearing this week to a case in which the State of North Carolina is sued by a citizen of that State to compel the payment of certain special tax bonds issued in 1869. Impairment of contract is set forth. The case involves the question of the right of a citizen to sue his State, and i rent up from the United States circult court on a certificate of division of o laion. The State plants itself firm's on the proposition that it cannot be sued without its consent. The suit lavolves several million dollars, and was postponed until this time to secure a full bench as the court is nearly equally divided on the issue J. H. C.
