He Occupies the Unique Position of Crestor of a Mighty Empire.

The birth of Bismarck dignifies the 1st of April. His retirement from the Chancellorship of the German Empire disturbs the equanimity of the nations. There is no civilized land in which he is not an object of interest. Already it is assured that he is the individual of this generation who has done most that will be memorable. The only man in Europe, who competes with him in world-wide reputation is the great Englishman, Gladstone, and even he pales before the mighty German.

more words that have been heard by myriads, and printed and read by millions, delivered more eloquent addresses and stirring appeals than any other man living or dead. He is a brave and high-toned gentleman of wonderful capacity, and of a facility that is almost flexibility; altogether a statesman of the pacific and literary Bismarck has created an Empire. Colossal, united, majestic Germany as she stands, with the most formidable army and the most faultless administration, in civil and military affairs, of any age or country, is his handiwork.

The supreme credit for the magical realization of the dreams of the German race for centuries has been as elaborately as stupidity claimed for others: but behold his face, even as photography shows it! History is written there. Under the superb dome of his head, behind the deep burning eyes, and the firm mouth, the will that has been indomitable and the brain that has spun the iron threads of destiny dwell distinct in solitude.

It is a mistake to look upon Bismarck as one who goes from the palace in the capital to his home in the country grumbling and prophesying evil. He has had his will through so many ways that he must thoroughly enjoy the luxury of relaxation and the sweetness of

The German Emperor is a young man, but it is an egregious error to regard him as a child or as caring for childish things. It is the united testimony of those who have knowledge whereof they speak that he is a man of marked individual force, a believer in his exalted mission, whose zeal in public duty is the constant stimulant to ceaseless industry.

It has been a part of his education to put his trust in the army rather than in the people at large, but it is of happy promise that he gives evidence of intelligent popular sympathies. We may be sure these will not impair his devotion to the army, but they indicate the enlightenment with which we may expect his energies will be directed to the promotion of the general welfare.

That Bismarck indulges his grim humor somewhat at the expense of the Emperor, but with a paternal sort of affection rather than personal pique, is possible and probable. The saying that "William has made his best General a Chancellor and his Chancellor a General," certainly has the Bismarck flavor, but we may depend upon it the Emperor will not fail, as he has not failed, to treat the man to whom his family and himself, as well as all Germans, high and humble, are indebted deeply and forever, with every form and ceremony marking the sincerity of his attachment and the warmth of his gratitude.-Murat Halstead, in N. Y. Journal.

OLD NEW YORK SIGNS.

Most of Them Were of English Origin and Great Antiquity.

Many of the signs which hung upon New York taverns were of English origin; some of great antiquity. The White Lion-a lion rampant, painted white and set into the wall at St. John's Clerkenwell-was a noted resort of cattle drovers; the King's Head and the Queen's Head, bearing the image of the reigning sovereign, were common in all parts of the kingdom: there were numberless signs of the Coach and Horses in London alone; the Three Pigeons is as old as Ben. Johnson and frequently met with; so was the Fighting Cocks at Staffordshire, where this sport was in fashion. Dr. Samuel Johnson has made the Pineapple famous; it was originally used by confectioners but later by innkeepers also; the Globe is familiar to all literary men; the "Dog's Head in the Pot," of great antiquity, had little to recommend it, save the seum of society, emblem as it was from early time of slovenly housewifery and mean accommodation. Strange to say, however, that while there exist innumerable examples of the White Horse in England, the recent exhaustive researches into the history of sign-boards have not brought to light that of the Black Horse, which was in frequent use in the American colonies.

New York signs must not be misled by the idea that they were fixtures. On the contrary, they were as much property as trade-marks are to-day, and migratory as their owners, the innkeepers, who must bear the palm for recklessness. For illustration: the King's Arms hung in 1753 from a house in Broad street, near the Long Bridge, where Mrs. Lightfoot was the hostess; in 1763 was taken by Mrs. Sarah Steele to the lower end of Broadway opposite the Fort; in 1764, by Edward Barden, to the upper end of Broadway, facing the Commons, S who in turn ceded it in 1769 to his successor, De la Montague, who held it till the Revolution, in 1775. The Hanoverian Kings were in small favor in the city, and their image did not prove attractive. In 1778, when the British were in occupation, Loosely and Elms swung out the head of obstinate George the Third on Brownjohn's Wharf, and recruited privateers to prey on the commerce of the patriots, and it crossed the river with them to the Long Island side of the Brooklyn ferry the year following .- John Austin Stevens, in Harper's Magazine.

MARCH 8, 1890. Manufacturers of the Great Sierra Kidney and Liver Cure.

GENTLEMEN: The gratitude I feel towards you I cannot express in these few words. I have been troubled in the past ten years with kidney disorders. I did not know in that time what it was to en joy a full night's rest. I started in to try your Great Sierra Kidney and Liver Cure. Gladstone has spoken and written I have given it a fair trial; my rest has returned; I am much improved in every way. Your remedy is just as you represent it-a delightful and effective one. Very truly yours, C. H. NORTON, Idle Banana Pickers. A general strike of plantation hands for shorter hours and better pay is now county. Mich , writes: in progress in Jamaica, and the result is to increase the price of bananas. The doctrines of the eight hour movement have been disseminated among the negroes and other laborers on the banana farms in the island of Jamaica with disastrous results to the planters who depend upon their banana crop. The laborers, pickers, etc., have been working long hours for starvation wages, and not being able to stand it longer they revolted, nearly 3,000 men and women being out, and all work in this industry is at a sandstill.

On the inland plantations in Jamaica thousands of bunches of bananas are ripening on the trees, which spoils them for market, or rotting in great heaps on the ground. This has caused a comparative scarcity of bananas, and the price has therefore gone up. In 1870 any old tub of a schooner was considered good enough for the banana trade. Now there is a fleet of sixty steamers, built for this particular trade, which carry from 2,700 to 3,000 bunches of bananas a trip to New York and return for more in ballast, without waiting to ship a return cargo. The entire fleet of steamers sails under the Norwegian flag, although owned in this country. The Norwegian flag was selected because it is believed that in case of a European war Norway would remain neutral.—Detroit News.

Catching a Loon with Hook and Line. Alfred Hills, one of the brothers who run the famous Hills' Homestead at Savin Rock, narrowly escaped being still more famous a day or two ago. Here's the story as Mr. Hills tells it: He was fishing for flatfish off the Savin Rock shore when he was surprised to hear blood curdling screeches and to feel a big thing on his line. A loon, or great northern diver, had picked up the bait and was fast on the hook. Mr. Hills got just as much excited as was the loon. and a battle royal followed. The fisherman played his catch until his boat had traveled fully a mile, and had his game well in hand. He pulled in the line slowly and had the bird clo boat when the loon made one last effort. broke the line and escaped. To capture a loon is a big feat, but to catch one with a hook and line is unprecedented. The bird is very shy, and will dive so rapidly that it will get under water between the time of a flash of a gun and the time the bullet reaches the place where the loon was.-New Haven Palladium.

Standard Time Better Than Local. Many people find it difficult to be always just on time, and to keep up with two times is more than can be expected of anybody. Consequently it is not surprising that Bath people are getting mixed up. Sunday a part of the church bells rang on local time and part on standard, and it was uncertain whether and certain remedy. SMITH'S one would have to wait a half hour or be late. People are getting more and more disgusted at the present condition of things every day, and there are serious threats of putting another clock on the court house that shall register United States time. A community that wants a time exclusively its own should first make provisions for suspension of communication with the rest of the world so as not to be bothered with other people's chronology.-Lewiston Journal.

A South Carolina man "pared" a corn between his toes, and on the next day took a violent pain in his leg. On the following morning his toe was black, and gangrene set in and rapidly spread until it reached above the knee, where the leg was amputated. In allowing inactivity of the kidneys to grew through neglect. The deadly shoals of Bright's disease and diabetes willwreek the goodly bark of health if it is allowed to drift rudderless upon them. The bladder, too, if inactive and judicious medication does not speedily direct the helm toward the port of safety, will be whelmed by the quicksand of disease. In selecting a diuretic let your choice fall upon Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which stimulates the renal organs without irritating and exciting them, two effects to be apprehended from the unmedicated stimuli largely resorted to. These have a tendency te react prejudicially. The Bitters invigorate the kidneys and bladder, in common with the nerves and digostive organs, and so afford lasting aid. It also affords dual assistance in preventing and curing intermittent and remittent fever. Billousness, constipation and rheumatism it also subjugates.

La Salle Method and Its Advantages.

Our preparations are called "The La Salle Remedies." from the fact that we procured the original formula of the celebrated Dr. La Salle of Paris, under guarantee that should we think proper to introduce at any time his remedies to the American public we should do so under that title.

Some years ago Dr. La Salle conceived the idea of treating nervous and seminal diseases by rectal medication, believing he would gain the rectal medication, believing he would gain the following advantages:

(1.) Application of the drugs directly to the seat of the diseases.

(2.) Avoidance of digestion and neutralization of the active neutral medicalagents, there being no stomach drugging.

(3). The patient can cure himself at very little expense without any physician.

(4.) Their use requires no change of diet or of the ordinary pursuits of life.

(5.) They are absolutely harmless.

(6.) Close approach to the lower apertures of emergence of the spinal nerves from the vertebral column, and hence case of penetrating to the nervous fluid and matter of the brain and spinal chord.

SYMPTOMS.—Frequent urination, rising at night to urinate; pain or scalding in passing water; dribbling of urine after completing the act; enlargement of the prostate gland; Bright's Discase of the Kidneys. The most decided benefit is derived by placing these remedies right at the spot where they will do the most good. When the Bolus is introduced into the rectum it rests directly at the neck of the bladder.
