Written for THE Scout. LOOK AHEAD.

Should misfortune overtake thee. And thy friends upon thee frown, Look ahead, be not discouraged. Be courageous, rive it down.

Should base scandal so pernicious, Aim at thee its poisonous dart— On thy name to bring dishonor— Have no fear, 'twill miss its mark

Should to-lay be dark and cloudy, And the sunlight hid from view-Bright the sun may shore to-morrow, And the sky be cloudiess blue.

Learn to gather up the sunbeams, Casting not one ray aside, Nobly battle with life's troubles, Fearlessly, what 'er betide.

Tho' dark shadows fall around us, We each duty here should do. And if thorns bedeck our pathway, We shall find the roses too.

Find the roses and the sun-hine-Find the sorrow and the cares ntermingled with each other. As in wheat there grow the tares, —Mrs. Nellie Bloom. WEST OAK LAND, Cal,

WORK OF HORSE THIEVES.

A Report That an Organized Gang Exists in the Mountains.

The East Oregonian says: From a man who has been touring in the mountains on horseback and knows whereof he speaks, it is learned that an interesting state of affairs exists in the Blues. Between the head waters of McKay and Mill creeks there are numerous caches of horses, most of which have been rebranded over the old brand, rendering it indistinguishable. In each cache, stowed away in the inner recesses of the mountains, are some fifteen or twenty head in the charge of two or three men, and it is supposed that a gigantic steel by an organized gang of some twenty horse thieves has been in progress for the past several months, and the number Her many friends trust that she will of horses thus cached away is estimated at from 100 to 150 head. Two or three horses belonging to each stock man are quietly driven from the range, the number being so small that little suspicion is excited. It is believed that the horse thieves are perfectly organized, that they have a chief who plans and conducts operations, and that the band is composed of several reservation toughs who have dissappeared, and some men from Wallowa valley. Occasionally one is sent to Adams or Athena to buy a pistol, a cartridge-belt or cartridges, and doubtless the members of the gang are armed to the teeth and ready to resist any interference.

The band of horses found by Constable Stamper, William Crews and "Cy" Ashpaugh in the mountains and restored to their owners were among those taken by the thieves. It is the probable intention of the gang to collect as many horses as possible, drive them to some out-of-the-way station and ship them to Eastern markets, dividing the spoils between them. Their plans can only be frustrated by a possee of armed men, strong enough to visit the caches, overpower resistance and sieze the horses. Last Thursday night, a band of twenty head was driven by two unknown men from the headwaters of the Umatilla to the Looking Glass. These were doubtless some of the stolen horses."

Has Our Sympathy.

We have heard that some of the off scouring of this city-the feeted emanations of public sewers-have talked of a neck-tie party regarding the editor of the Times-Mountaineer. To them, we will say that this paper, on the water question, is anchored to its principles and they will meet with a hearty welcome when they attempt any intimidation. We are naturally constructed to oppose such elements, and will give them a cordial reception when they attempt to inaugurate a policy of violence.-The Dalles Times-
