SHAKEN OUT OF GEAR

By malarial disease, the human machinery cannot half perform its office. Digestion, secretion, evacuation are disordered, the blood becomes watery, the nerves feeble, the countenance ghastly, sleep disturbed and appetite capricious. There is, however, a known antidote to the malarial poison and a certain safeguard against it. In malarial regions of the South and West, do this: Buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills from any druggist, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. The genuine McLane's Pills are prepared only by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., and have been in constant use for over sixty years. They are superior to all others in purity and effectiveness. A certain cure for indigestion and sick headache. Address, Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa.

At the Science Examination.—Q. Which is the best-known insulator? A. Poverty.

The very best way to know whether or not Dobbin's Electric Soap is as good as it is said to be is to try it yourself. It can't deceive you. Be sure to get no imitation. There are lots of them. Ask your grocer for just one bar.

In mortgages there is prosperity—for the other fellow.

For throat diseases and coughs use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Price, 25 cents. Sold only in boxes.

"Why don't you go to work?" "I do; but it isn't there."

AN ELEGANT PACKAGE OF FINE CARDS. Including 15 rare novelties, shapes and artistic imported oleographic and chromatic cards. This large and beautiful collection sent by mail to any one who will do this: Buy a box of the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Celebrated Liver Pills from any druggist, price 25 cents, and mail us the outside wrapper with your address, plainly written, and 4 cents in stamps. You can't teach an old dog new tricks, but you can buy a new dog.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED. We positively cure rupture and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay; and no pay until cured. Address for pamphlet, Drs. Porterfield & Leary, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

Don't read! Don't think! Don't believe! Now are you better?

You women who think that patent medicines are a humbug, and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the biggest humbug of the whole (because it's best known of all)—does your lack-of-faith cure come?

It's very easy to "don't" in this world. Suspicion always comes more easily than confidence. But doubt—little faith—never made a sick woman well—and the "Favorite Prescription" has cured thousands of delicate, weak women, which makes us think that our "Prescription" is better than your don't believe.

We're both honest. Let us come together. You try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If it doesn't do as represented, you get your money again.

Where proof's so easy, can you afford to doubt?

Little but active—are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Best Liver Pills made; gentle, yet thorough. They regulate and invigorate the liver, stomach and bowels.

Another View of It. If we could see ourselves as others see us, some of us would see ourselves a great deal better than we really are.

This thought is suggested by Baker in "Francesca Da Rimini." "This life is one continual struggle to hide our baseness from the world."—Detroit Free Press.

BECKMAN'S PILLS (THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY.) Cure BILIOUS and NERVOUS ILLS. 25cts. a Box. OF ALL DRUGGISTS.

A HINDOO CRITICISM.

An Educated East Indian Gives His Impressions of the English. An educated Hindoo, who is writing in the Indian Spectator, eulogizes the comfort of English homes, laments the costliness of English fruits and declares that John Bull has too many things to attend to look after cooking. "In fruits he excels everybody. In sweets he is not inferior to the Frenchman, and always inferior to the Indians."

He continues: John Bull loves to be exclusive. Every man for himself is his motto. Let me alone is his ideal of society. You might travel for hours in the same compartment of a train without exchanging half a dozen words with your companions. I should not be surprised if they wanted a heaven to themselves. Perhaps Swedenborg was right. Even their flirts, male and female, have an air of cold solemnity about them which makes your blood run cold in your veins.

Their very amusements savor of business. Most of them have a cynic disgust of life, are always morose, and, though burning with a desire to oblige you, quite capable of making you turn away in disgust at their coldness. Then there is so much stoutness and solidity in their character. What do they do with a will. If they eat, they eat like giants; if they drink, they drink like giants, turning brandy into water, but if they work, they also work like giants. No half-heartedness, no irresolution, no want of earnestness about them. If you see them walking in the streets of London you would think the world had come to an end. Yet they are only going to the parks.

Everybody has a hobby. The nation is so full of eccentricities. They hold their own; tell a lie and stick to it, is their motto; and then they love opposition. It is a crime to be poor. The goddess of wealth has more votaries than any church. To call one a beggar is the greatest insult. Short accounts make long friends, so goes the English proverb, not like the Indian proverb, friends' accounts are settled in heart. Nobody tolerates being under money obligations to another if he can help it. Your money is the test of your merit. In India poor men could live and even be comparatively comfortable. In England it is not so. It is the law of the survival of the fittest, and the fittest is he who commands most money. There is a feverish competition everywhere, and to be a man of independent means is everybody's ambition. This lies at the root of all that material progress which one everywhere finds in England. But unlike our people, whose 4 per cents or massive buildings or curious jewels are often the only evidence of their wealth, they know how to make good use of their money.

Every Englishman and Englishwoman works, if not to earn a livelihood, to do good to others. The climate is fatal to an idle man. A Frenchman considers to show capacity is the end of speech in debate; an Englishman considers the end of speech in debate is to advance business. They require everybody to be true to his engagements, and I often missed many a one by being only a minute too late. For a punctual man, a man of work, nothing is too good, and there is not a public man who is not a man of work. A good speaker is not always looked upon as the best man in a ministry; a minister who does not work is soon elbowed out. Their Gladstones, Hartingtons, Churchills, Parnells, Bradlaugh are working themselves to death in their respective causes, otherwise they would be nowhere. Reserve power, nothing by fits and starts, is the rule. Nobody hates show and humbug more than they, and the best dressed man is he whose dress excites no notice.

Englishmen talk of the baneful effects of caste in India as if they had none in England, though it may be not in the same sense. A poor man is a Sudra and a rich man a lord, a peer, a Brahmin; but the English Sudra can, like Viswamitra of Hindoo mythology, be a Brahmin, not by austerities like the royal sage, but by the accumulation of wealth. An Englishman never pardons his superiors for any familiarity toward him, nor does he pardon himself for any toward those below him. We in India have yet to learn the lesson of stubbornness and resoluteness, and one might willingly sacrifice half the rhetoric of the country for a tenth of that spirit of self help which is so strongly noticeable in England. There they do all that they attempt. Perhaps this system of mutual dependence is the great bane of our society. "Joint family" is not their motto; as soon as a man marries he hires separate lodgings and keeps separate house. The Hindoo suffers, the Englishman struggles.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Longevity of Our Race. The biologist, Bichat, whose intuitions so marvelously anticipated the conclusions of a later science, held that the normal longevity of our race should be an average of 96 years, bearing his inference on the fact that the life term of all known mammals exceeds at least six times the period of their growth. A dog, growing for three years, may live to 18 or 20. A horse, growing for four or five, attains, and often exceeds, an age of 30 years. A camel, growing twice as slowly, may live to 40 years and upward. An elephant, even in captivity, does not attain its full growth before its 15th year, and in India often outlives two masters. Some of the larger quadrupeds likewise grow very slowly; several varieties of baboons, for instance, do not acquire the characteristics of maturity before the beginning of their teens; and the naturalist, Brehm, mentions a male chacma, who, after becoming the patriarch of his tribe, raided the durra fields of the Zulu villages for nearly thirty years before he met his Waterloo in a fight with the outraged natives. The males of our own species grow for at least sixteen years, but less than one-third reach even the threefold multiple of that age, and hardly one in 300 the normal sixfold.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald in The Forum.

Consolation. A lady dressed in deep mourning and bearing a look of Bostonian refinement and reserve, got on a Chicago train bound for Denver one day last week. Away out in Kariss, near Deadwood creek, there boarded the train a native of the soil in the shape of a woman in a green dresden dress, a blue and red shawl and a yellow nuba. She dropped easily and gracefully into the seat in front of the lady in black, turned round, stared hard for a moment and then said: "Widder?" "I—did you speak to me?" asked the lady in surprise.

"Yes'm—widder?" "Yes." "Thought so. Quite recent, eh?" "Yes." "What ailed him?" "Consumption." "Linger a good while?" "I—I—yes." "Much ag'ny?" "Yes, indeed!" "Coughed a sight, hey?" "Oh, yes; but I—"

"I know what'd cure him in less'n a month. Never knowed it to fail, an' I've seed it tried in cases where they'd been give up by five doctors. Yes'm. But it ain't no use talkin' 'bout that now. Any children?" "Yes, three."

"His folks got 'em?" "No; but really, I—"

"Two boys an' a girl, or two girls an' a boy?" "Two girls."

"Oh! D'd you get your thirds out an' out?" "Really, madam, I—"

"Or did he leave a will?" "Excuse me, but—"

"The law gives a woman her thirds, but 'tain't often she gets 'em out 'n' out. I think she'd ort to have half, don't you?" "I—I—really, I don't know."

"Well, I do. Was you made garden of the children?" "No—that is—"

"Well, I bet I'd be garden of my own young ones if my man was to die. These gardeners git the prop'ly half the time. Did he have money in bank?" "I beg your pardon, but—"

"You ort to make him put it in your name. It makes it lots easier when the man dies to settle things up. His kin try to break the will?" "Excuse me, but—"

"A man can't die nowadays 'thout a pack of his folks tries to break the will, no matter how many wives and children he has. You got to wear crepe all the time or only a year?" "Iardon me, but—"

"It's common to you, but kinder expensive for common wear. But dear me, you ain't more'n 30 or 37, are you?" "No reply."

"I don't know how you feel 'bout second marriages, but I—"

"Oh, madam, please—"

"You'll marry agin, now I'll bet you do. Oh, I know how you feel now. My sister Cindy felt and talked just so, an' she married agin in six months, an' done well, too. I'd wait a year, if I was you. It looks better, shows respect and all that; but if I was young as you an' had only three children I'd—"

But the lady in black had fled to the next car, and her consoler turned to the man on her right and said: "Talk 'bout her not marryin' agin! I've an idee she's gon' west a-purpose to see if the kin do well there, and I don't blame her."—Detroit Free Press.
