THE MAILS.

Twice when we run the old stage coach,
Across the hills and dales;
There hardly did an eye approach,
But what it brought the mails.

But since the stage is done and gone,
And railroads cross the vale;
The days go by and night comes on,
And we don't get the mail.

We stand around the office door,
Our patience gets to qual;
We vow 'twas never so, before
We pended on the rail.

If some should speak their thougts out
I do believe we'd hear some words,
And maybe hear them swear.

Death of Rev. Daniel W. Elledge.

DRAIN, OR., Oct. 18, 1890,
EDITOR OREGON SCOUT:—

As it was the request of the deceased, and many friends, this is written. The death of Rev. Daniel W. Elledge, father of Mrs. Melcina Bartmess and Daniel W. Elledge, well known residents of La Grande, occurred on the 5th of Oct. of the present year 1890, at the pauper's home in Douglas county.

Daniel W. Elledge was born in Floyd county Kentucky June 6, 1813 and was a relative of the famous patriot and pioneer Daniel Boone. He was married to Cynthia Anne Hicklin his first wife in 1837 and was the father of 11 children, 5 of whom survive him. In his prime he was a man of fine personal appearance, great intellect and scholarly attainments, a natural orator and was for many years a popular and eloquent preacher of the gospel, and traveled much in persistence of his chosen vocation. When age and misfortune had bowed his stately form and dulled the active brain, his happiest moments were those when the few friends that clung to him in his adversity would meet around his chair to listen to his words of hope and counsel and join with him in fervent praise and prayer to the great creator, and giver of all good. He lived an upright blameless life—he died a christian gentleman.

Mr. Elledge came to Douglas county in 1881 and took the pastorate of the little Christian church in Yoncalla. Here he married Mrs. Delilah Johnson, an aged widow, and the two old people spent some very happy days together. He brought some little means with him, and received a scanty support from the church people to whom he preached as long as he had strength to meet them, but when failing health compelled him to abandon the ministry, his wants were gradually forgotten and his last years were spent in absolute dependence on the generosity of his nephews and the kindness of his neighbors. There were many appeals made to his children for assistance but they were deaf to his wants. For some time he had been a helpless paralytic, and a great care to his feeble old wife, whose strength at last, utterly failed. He had not means to hire a nurse, and feeling that he was becoming too great a burden to his kinsmen and neighbors, he made a reluctant appeal to the county authorities asking to be taken to the home of the indigent poor. He did this voluntarily, and from a sense of duty to the old wife and generous relatives who had cared for him so long, but to use his own words it "broke his heart" when, on the 6th day of August, he looked his last through streaming tears upon his faithful old helpmate, and the little home where had been spent the last happy days, and perhaps the most sorrowful ones of a long and blameless life. After that, darkness settled swiftly on body and brain, and the end soon came. The sorrow of parting from all dear to him, the humiliation of being an inmate of a pauper's home, wasted his feeble sands of life and hastened the coming of that long repose for which he ceaselessly prayed as the only possible end to his misery. He died suddenly and the keepers of that place of wretchedness hastily buried him without giving his friends or relatives an opportunity to pay a last tribute to his memory. His kinsmen here, who were even then making arrangements to move him to a more comfortable home, were not notified of his death till after his burial. They intend to remove his remains from their present resting place and gratify his wish, that he might be decently laid away to his eternal sleep. But it is hard to think that "Uncle Dan," died neglected and alone; without a loving friend to watch the falling pulse, or a gentle hand to close the sightless eyes, that he was buried without a single mourner to follow him to his grave in the potter's field.

There sleeps he now alone—not one
For whom that generous heart would crave
No friend, or daughter, wife, or son,
Has dropped one tear upon his grave.

OUR FARMERS.

A Sensible Article They Will do Well to Read.

DIFFERENCE IN PRICE OF GRAIN.

Only by Thorough Organization Can They Hope to Succeed.

EDITOR OREGON SCOUT:—

The farmers of Union and Baker counties are complaining bitterly because they are unable to obtain cars to ship their immense surplus to seaboard. The cars are taken from this line of railroad and sent over to the Palouse county where there are rival lines. We need another line of railroad here to create opposition and cheapen transportation. Unless such means are obtained soon, the great future of the Grande Ronde and Powder River valleys and surrounding country, with their millions of acres now lying uncultivated, yet ready for the plow, holds out a sorry hope for the farmer. Railroad companies profess to believe they are independent of legislative control in respect to fare and freight as an individual who hauls on an earth road with his own wagon. The people think differently. They reason that railway companies are granted special privileges by virtue of their public charter, principal among which is the right of public domain, by which may be condemned and applied to their use the property of individuals, or by which they may cut a man's farm in twain. And the question naturally arises: What compensation will the public receive for conferring such privileges on a corporation, if it derives therefrom no rights in the way of increased transportation privileges? The line of railroad through Grande Ronde, instead of increasing their transportation facilities, takes off the majority of their cars and sends them to another country where they have heavy opposition, and the farmers of Union and Baker counties must wait until the Palouse farmers' grain is marketed. The United States government should regulate such a state of affairs.

Why do not the farmers combine and ship their grain direct to Portland and not sell to the middle men? In Portland wheat is quoted at $1.20 and in New York barley is quoted at $1.00 and on the rise, now that President Harrison has signed the tariff bill, for it keeps out Canada's barley. And yet, in the face of all this, the middle men are putting on a long face and say they cannot afford to pay but 47 cents for wheat and 80 cents for barley. They are not to blame for buying as cheaply as they can, but the farmers are to blame for not combining together and shipping direct to headquarters and saving the thousands of dollars the middle men are getting away with.

The Spokane Review of last week says that the Palouse farmers are receiving 58 and 60 cents for their wheat delivered on the cars. Here we are only offered 47 cents. The Farmers Alliance helps the farmer over there greatly, in many ways. At the Alliance store you can buy one third cheaper than at other stores, if you belong to the organization. Union and Baker county farmers should have a similar organization. That labor is more nearly on an equality with accumulated wealth in this country than in others, there is no doubt, but that they are entirely equal, cannot be truthfully contended, and unless labor learns to take care of itself as intelligently and with the same sagacity as does capital, as the country grows older, and accumulated wealth increases, this inequality will widen and become more defined. To form an organization for the purpose of asserting certain rights, and to improve the condition of men, requires that degree of intelligence which begets resolution of will, coupled with moderation and common sense. In the marching column of human progress there is a place for, and the want of, an alliance among the farmers of Union and Baker counties. For years the feeling has been gradually possessing the mind of the farmer that, though in his life and profession there are many features possessing happiness and contentment, yet in view of the fertility of the soil he cultivates, and the accumulated wealth of the country, his life is not all that it should be. As he has gathered in the fruits of his farm on each returning fall the conviction has some-how come to him that from the proceeds of his yield too small a share will be distributed to himself and family, and thus he will fail to make those improvements in his home which are demanded by taste and comfort. He has been asking himself: How is it, when humanity has been taking such long steps forward, that my profession fails to keep pace with the others? He feels that it does not, as too often, his sons when grown to manhood revolt at the thought of working on a farm. They want to get into town, clerk in a store, drive a street car, shine up a locomotive or do anything but what their fathers did before them.

WOLF CREEK.

A Good Crop—Literary Society Organized—Sale of Lands—Personal Mention.

Oct. 25, 1890.

Beautiful weather.

Threshing is about over with.

Will Simonis has moved on to his claim to enjoy the eternal solitude of a "bachelor life."

Crops in general were very good this season, especially grain, there being upwards of 25,000 bushels raised on the creek.

Thomas O'Bryant has purchased the 240 acres of ground, lying east of H. Gorham's ranch from Thos. Wright of Union. Price $10.00 per acre.

James Simonis says his way of living a bachelor life for five years, as he has done, is becoming monotonous, so "ye Wolf creek girls," watch your chances.

The Wolf creek school is prospering under the good management of the teacher, W. L. Charnes. It has a large attendance and bids fair to be a very profitable term.

Mr. John Simonis is still on the sick list. He has been sick several weeks and is gradually growing weaker. He is scarcely able to sit up for a few moments at a time. His daughter, Mrs. Dale of Baker City, is visiting him now.

The youth of Wolf creek met Friday night October 24th and organized a debating and literary lyceum. The society will be in full blast in a week or two, and we are sure all those coming out will be delightfully entertained as well as profited.

WOLF CREEKER.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS!

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,
SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have without relief. About the 15th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack such a manner that I was bent over when I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when I was told of Dr. HENLEY, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost instantaneous effect and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.
