

A VISIT EAST.

Mr. J. Newman relates some of varied experiences.

Wayne county, Iowa, Oct. 25, 1890. EDITOR OREGON SCOUT:

Thinking that some of your many readers would like to hear from me I will give you a short account of myself and travels.

I left home on the morning of the 30th of Sept. and reached Salt Lake City on the morning of Oct. 2nd. I layed over here 24 hours and took a general round of the city. We made our way to the great Mormon tabernacle and temple, in company with some of the speakers, that were to speak on the following Sunday, which was to be a big day among the Mormons as they were holding what they called a conference. The speakers were getting the "pitch of their voices" so as to reach the audience. Some of them were in the opposite end of the tabernacle. After a few trials they got the thing figured down to their satisfaction. I will not attempt to describe the tabernacle for fear I will not do so well as Mark Twain when he described the chipmunk as a striped animal with the stripes running the same way that it did.

The temple is an imposing structure 8 or 9 stories high. It is not yet finished. Forty years was the time set to complete it in. I understand the time expires in 1893.

I spent some time in Salt Lake City in 1862 when on my way to Oregon. It was only a village then.

Left Salt Lake Oct. 3rd and reached Denver on the evening of the 4th. Layed over 24 hours. Went to the Unitarian church and heard the best sermon I ever listened to. I was in this place in '59, before it had a name. Now it is the great city of the west with about 130,000 inhabitants. It was here that Horace Greeley made that memorable speech "young man, go west." I took him at his word and am gaining morally, intellectually and financially.

Arrived at Ottumwa, Iowa on the 6th and found the Industrial fair in full blast. It is held in the "Coal Palace" so called because it is built of stone coal. It is a fine building but will not compare with the exposition building at Portland. Learning that President Harrison would visit the fair on the 9th, I went out to my brother's, in Mohaska county, and returned to Ottumwa on the 9th, where I found nearly all of Iowa gathered to see the president. I had the pleasure of taking Mr. Harrison by the hand and it was a treat to me for he is the first president I ever met.

Returning to my brother's I laid over till Monday, giving a lecture in the M. E. church on Sunday, at a little town on the railroad. They only found two faults with my lecture. It was too good to be true and it was too short. These are very good faults. I have had four calls to lecture since I have been in Iowa. That pamphlet of mine, and THE SCOUT with my lecture in, have been ahead of me.

I have been hurried to get through with my visit in Iowa in time to reach the great Liberal mass meeting which is to be held in Chicago on the 28th and 30th. I understand that M. J. Savage, the great preacher of Boston is to deliver the opening address and I want to be there in time to hear it.

J. NEWMAN.

Don't You See?

First Farmer—What is this reciprocity business that Blaine is writing and talking about?

Second Farmer—It is a new game by which we Americans can gobble up foreigners. It is just like this: Suppose you have a mule and I have a horse, which are of the same value, but my horse would be more useful to you than your mule, and your mule would be more useful to me than my horse. Something interferes, however, no difference what, so we can't swap even. Now if you should take $10 and put it with your mule, and I should take $10 and put it with my horse, and then we should swap, you taking my horse and $10 and I taking your mule and $10 that would be reciprocity.

First Farmer—But suppose that nothing interfered so we might swap even and the whole ten dollar business was left out of the transaction, what sort of trading would that be?

Second Farmer—Why bless your soul, man, that would be out-and-out free trade.

First Farmer—So it would—so it would. Contwist my eyes, why didn't I see it before?—Stockton Mail

ANCIENT R AND CEMETERIES

The Palm Gardens of Frankfurt—German Home Life—Customs.

[The following interesting extracts are taken from a private letter written by a step-sister of the editor, who is now traveling in Europe.]

FRANKFURT, Germany, Feb. 6, 1890.

In our wanderings the other day we got into an old part of the town and came to the house in which Martin Luther stayed on his return from Worms on the 15th of April, 1521. I do not know how old the building is. If the old walls could speak they could tell some strange stories. The house was repaired in 1887, but on the outside is a picture of an ostrich that has been there since 1574.

Some of the streets here are so narrow that if a wagon came along it would be almost impossible to get by. They are just now tearing down a house that was built about 600 years ago and has been in constant use ever since. There is no regularity in the streets and it behoves a pedestrian to keep his eyes open. There are four or five stone bridges crossing the river, one for foot passengers.

There is a city named Sachsenhausen just across the river. Have not been there yet but will go soon. There is hardly a day that we do not go tramping off somewhere. I am going to make good use of my eyes and time. The weather has been quite cold with just a sprinkle of snow. In one of the parks that sweet little flower, the snow drop, is in full bloom, also another flower I do not know the name of. It is a golden yellow and very small. The buds are out and there is every prospect of an early spring.

We went over the river today and there we saw some ruins of old walls and towers used in times of war. I am quite sure there are but very few buildings now-a-days that are built one-half so strong. In one of the towers we counted some twenty holes shot in there. I think it must have been done many years ago. We also saw a huge cannon ball in a house on one of the narrow streets, that was shot in there by the French during one of their many fights. The bridges across the river are all free. They are built of stone and iron. It will be long years before there is such a bridge across the Willamette at Portland. Most all the rivers are walled up on both sides with stone, and a dredger is at work one place or another all the time.

We went to one of the Catholic cemeteries. There are some very old graves and in such numbers that one must stand and wonder. Such an immense city of the dead gives one much to think of. There are some very fine monuments. One long stone building that they call a croft here is just full of bodies. In one of the graves there must be nearly a dozen. All of the graves are underground and some of them are cemented over. Others are fastened with iron bars.

With strangers you must do as they do and not as you like. We are boarding with a family and I must say that I would just like to get into the kitchen and cook a meal to suit myself and the children. Nothing tastes so good here as it does at home. Bread, and everything else in that line, is bought at the bakery. They don't seem to know how to bake a cake or anything else.

The people on this side of the big world are far behind those in America. They live from hand to mouth. I think it is mostly their own fault that they don't get along. It is enough to give anybody the chills just to watch them poke around. When they start to do anything it takes a half a dozen men to do the work of two at home. They all seem to think what can't be done today can wait till some other time. It is no wonder that so many get homesick when they come to our land of the free where everything goes with a rush. They haven't the grit of the Americans. The climate here is colder, as a general thing, here, than at home. We haven't had rain enough here to clean off the stone streets, but plenty of fog. In the morning the trees and everything is covered with a thick frost. There does not seem to be much wind here. All the fires are made from coal. I would not give one fire of Oregon fir knots for all their coal. There is nothing like wood for pleasant fires. Dress goods, and all such things are much cheaper than at home. Everything is sold by the meter. A meter is as much as a yard and a quarter. You can get a very good dress here for 75 cents and upwards. For $1.25 a yard you can get goods that sell for $2.50 at home. The dearest thing here is the meat. Meat we get at home for five cents a pound, sells here for eighteen cents. Pork sells at 20 cents a pound. Fruit is very scarce and high and I miss it the most of anything.

We have a family ticket for the season to the Palm Garden. This is a most beautiful place and it is very pleasant to pass the time there. There are palm trees and plants in profusion, from the largest down to the tiniest ferns. In two great rooms you can see most any kind of a flower you think of, roses, pinks, lilies, tulips, hyacinths, crocus, snow drop, lilies of the valley, and a flower that looks very much like the oleander but on a short and more bushy stem. They are most lovely. The number of camellias is just wonderful. They are red, pink, white, mixed, double and single and as tall as trees. When you get above a water fall you can look clear through the Palm House. The ground is covered with fine little ferns. Everything is so arranged that the room presents the appearance of a little valley. It is lighted by electricity. Everything is fresh and clean and pleasant. An excellent band is discoursing choice music most all the time.

Oregon Has it All.

Oregon has the climate, the timber, the water, the mineral, the grazing lands, the fruit in endless variety, communication with every country under heaven, and the most contented population in the civilized world; and what more do you want? Everything that is really desirable is to be found in this State, and the conditions upon which they may be possessed are within easy reach of the industrious and frugal. It will support a population five times as great as that which now finds a home upon its soil, with nothing like impoverishment of its resources. If only eastern people could be convinced that the savage no longer roams the country in war paint and feathers, but that he is couped up on his reservation and is engaged in rural occupations; that our educational facilities are in advance of the log cabin with its rough-hewn seats and Webster's speller as a text book; that we are in a measure civilized, perhaps more of them would venture on an exploring expedition to the Northwest coast. Friends, if you have this opinion of our country and Uncle Sam will not engage to escort you, take a pullman car and ride through in comparative safety. If once you see our country you will be loth to leave it.—Lebanon Express.

The First Step.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything to your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning, you are taking the first step into Nervous Prostration. You need a Nerve Tonic and in Electric Bitters you will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal, healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of this great Nerve Tonic and Alternative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored, and the Liver and Kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. Price 50c. at Brown's drug store, Union, Oregon.

The Road to Wealth. Cannot be successfully traveled without good health. To reach wealth or any coveted position in life, requires the full possession and exertion of all the faculties and nature has endowed us with. These conditions cannot exist unless the physical being is in perfect working order, and this is impossible when the liver and spleen are torpid, thus obstructing the secretions, causing indigestion and dyspepsia, with all of their accompanying horrors.

DR. HENLEY'S English Dandelion Tonic. exerts a specific influence over the liver, excites it to healthy action, resolves its chronic engorgements, and promotes the secretions; cures indigestion and constipation, sharpens the appetite, tones up the entire system, and makes life worth living.
