

SAFE AND EFFECTIVE.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the safest and most effective remedy for indigestion, irregularity of the bowels, constipation, biliousness, headache, dizziness, malaria or any disease arising from an impure state of blood. They have been in use in this country for over fifty years, and thousands of unimpeachable testimonials from those who have used them, and their constantly increasing sale is incontrovertible evidence that they perform all that is claimed for them.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless and safe to take at any time.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

Proof Enough.—"Your party was an immense success, Amy." "I should say it was! The society papers called it a 'function!'"

THE BUCANEERS OF OLD

Flaunted the skull and cross bones, their ensign, defiantly at the masthead. Your modern pirate, not on the high seas, but upon the high reputation of standard remedies, skulks under various disguises. His hole-in-the-corner traffic has never to any degree affected the health of the nation, although that standard invigorant and corrective has long been the shining mark at which his shafts have been directed. The pirates, composed of fiery unrefined elements, with an infusion, or extract possibly, of some tonic bark, are still sometimes recommended as a substitute for, or similar to, or possessing virtues kindred to those of America's own family medicine. These perish speedily, while the good and preventive of disease pursues its successful career, overcoming malaria, dysentery, nervousness, kidney troubles, constipation and rheumatic ailments, not only on this, but on many continents.

Mrs. Grubb—And so your daughter's wedding day is set? Don't you think she is too young to marry? Mrs. Grubb—No, indeed. She has ruled the whole family for three years.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are widely known as an admirable remedy for bronchitis, hoarseness, coughs and throat troubles. Sold only in boxes.

It varies.—Graves (gloomily)—This is a hard world, isn't it? Merriman—That depends altogether on whether you fall on a brick sidewalk or a feather bed.

TRY GERBER'S for breakfast.

It was Ben Johnson, we believe, who, when asked Mallock's question, "Is life worth living?" replied, "That depends on the liver." And Ben Johnson doubtless saw the double point to the pun.

The liver active—quick—life rosy, everything bright, mountains of trouble melt like mountains of snow.

The liver sluggish—life dull, everything blue, molehills of worry rise into mountains of anxiety, and as a result—sick headache, dizziness, constipation.

Two ways are open. Cure permanently, or relieve temporarily. Take a pill and suffer, or take a pill and get well. Shock the system by an overdose, or coax it by a mild, pleasant way.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the mild means. They work effectively, without pain, and leave the system strong. One, little, sugar-coated pellet is enough, although a whole vial costs but 25 cents.

Mild, gentle, soothing and healing is Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Only 50 cents.

TREES' SANITARY INFLUENCE.

Their Relation to Dwelling Houses and to Individual Health.

For the last few years public attention has been quite frequently called to the influence of trees upon climate. The special issue of the United States agricultural department on forestry, and many other contributions, have shown how rainfall is affected, how the balance of the atmosphere is disturbed and how climate changes from the extended and rapid removal of forests. There is another study of trees allied to this which has reference to their relation to houses and to individual health.

Both the atmosphere and the soil are cooled and moistened by the presence of trees. This results from the drawing up of the water from the subsoil and from the exclusion of the sun's rays. Besides this, a considerable portion of the rainfall collects on the leaves and branches.

M. Fantiat has shown that the leafage of leaf-bearing trees intercepts one-third and that of pine trees one-half of the rainfall, which is afterward returned to the atmosphere by evaporation. On the other hand, these same leaves and branches restrain the evaporation of the water which reaches the ground. This evaporation is nearly four times less under a mass of foliage in a forest, and 2-3 times under a mass of pines, than in the open.

Then we have stagnation of air from that interruption of wind currents caused by the foliage.

It is, therefore, not without reason that the sanitarian studies the trees of the yard or lawn in their bearing upon individual health. Persons of susceptible lungs, or having any tendency to rheumatism, need to be carefully guarded against such influences. Where the foliage is dense about houses, or where the limbs overshadow the piazzas or roof, they become the storage places for damp, unwholesome air. The falling leaves gathering from year to year give a corresponding dampness to the soil, while at time of foliage the sunshine is measurably excluded. It is pretty evident that mankind was not intended to be reared in the woods. The influence of trees in causing malaria, or in so intercepting it as to have it tarry among them, has long been known. "A dry garden on gravel of three acres in extent in Surrey, surrounded by trees, is generally three or six degrees colder than the open common beyond the trees, and a large pond in a pine wood twenty miles from London afforded skating for ninety consecutive days in the winter of 1885-6, while during the greater part of the time the lakes in the London parks were free from ice."

We know with what interest the lover of trees watches the growth of those planted by his own hand, and how many are apt to be scattered about the new home mansion. As years go on, and their growth and foliage increase, the owner is loth to remove them or severely to shorten their branches. If so, there is great danger that the dry soil and once comfortable home will come to be the dampest and least desirable spot in the neighborhood. A recent careful writer has given the following sensible direction as to tree planting as it bears upon the conditions of health: "A tree should not stand so near a house that if it were to fall it would fall upon the house, or, in other words, the trunk should be as far from the house as the height of the tree. Belts of trees may be planted on the north and east aspects of houses, but on the east side the trees should not be so near nor so high as to keep the morning sun from the bedroom windows in the shorter days of the year. On the south and west aspects of houses, isolated trees only should be permitted, so that there may be free access of the sunshine and of the west winds to the house and grounds. High walls and palings on these aspects are also objectionable, and should be replaced by fences, or, better still, by open palings, especially if the houses are occupied during the fall of the leaf and in the winter.

"Trees for planting should be chosen in the following order: Conifers, birch, acacia, beech, oak, elm, lime and poplar. For our American homes we must add the maple, the ash and the tulip tree, or American poplar, although the dense foliage of the maple is sometimes objectionable. Pine trees collect the greatest amount of rainfall and permit the freest evaporation from the ground, while their branchless stems offer the least degree of resistance to the lateral circulation of the air. Acacias, oaks and birches are late to burst into leaf, and therefore allow the ground to be warmed by the sun's rays in the early spring. The elm, lime and chestnut are the least desirable kind of trees to plant near houses. They come into leaf early and cast their leaves early, so that they exclude the spring sun and do not afford much shade in the hot autumn months, when it is often required. Trees are of value in indicating choice of residence. Rich foliage, ferns and mosses tell of dampness and alluvial deposits. Flowers and fruit trees point to a dry and sunny site. Children will be healthiest where most flowers grow, and old people will live longest where our common fruits ripen best. Pines and their companions, the birches, indicate a sandy or gravel soil, elms a rich and somewhat damp soil, oaks and ashes a heavy clay, poplars and willows a low, damp or marshy soil. Let then our aesthetics be tempered by our desires for health, and choice and abundance of trees be adapted to our sanitary needs."—Medical Classics.

The Sensible Are Sociable.

I have often wondered what it was that made men affable, and why there should exist so many degrees of sociability. After pondering over this question, I have concluded that while intellect offers a large figure in making a man affable, often the main reason may be found in self interest. A boor always shows that he is deficient in common sense, and gains absolutely nothing by his rudeness but the dislike of his fellows. A sensible man will always be civil.—Nashville Democrat.

PECULIAR INFATUATION.

Different Methods of Following the Infatuation. "I Love One Another."

Do men ever fall in love with each other? Women do. Not long ago a young woman in New Jersey was married to a youthful laborer on her father's farm. Some time afterward it was discovered that the husband was a female; the young wife refused, however, though earnestly entreated by her friends, to give up her chosen consort. The strangest part of the discovery was the fact that the bride knew her husband was a woman before she was led to the altar.

If men do not exhibit this strange infatuation for one of their own sex, they at least oftentimes give evidence of the fact that they love one another. There are many instances on record where one man has given his life for another. There are many more instances where men have given life to another.

It is a proud possession—the knowledge that one has saved a precious human life. Meriden, Conn., is the home of such a happy man. John H. Preston of that city July 11, 1880, writes: "Five years ago I was taken very sick. I had several of the best doctors, and one and all called it a complication of diseases. I was sick four years, taking prescriptions prescribed by the same doctors. I truthfully state I never expected to get any better. At this time I commenced to have the most terrible pains in my back. One day an old friend of mine, Mr. R. T. Cook of the firm of Curtis & Cook, advised me to try Werner's Safe Cure, as he had been troubled the same way and it had effected a cure for him. I bought six bottles, took the medicine as directed and am to-day a well man. I am sure no one ever had a worse case of kidney and liver trouble than I had. Before this I was always against proprietary medicines, but not now, oh, no!"

Friendship expresses itself in very peculiar ways sometimes; but the true friend is the friend in need.

Method of Extinguishing Fires.

An English fireman writes: "From experiments I have lately been making in a small way I believe that plaster of paris and alum. Say, for instance, that a fire breaks out in a building or warehouse, and that a bag containing 500 or 600 pounds of the above mixture be thrown on the fire, I believe that it would completely subside it."

It may be considered at first sight that it would be difficult to introduce a heavy sack into a burning building. This could be obviated if, after experiments, say by the fire brigade, the ingredients were found to act. I would make it compulsory to have an incombustible pulley block projecting from every house or building so that the sack of composite could be hauled up in a few minutes.

If a few sacks were always in readiness at the nearest fire station, hauled to a truck or barrow ready for use, many valuable lives and much property would be saved."—London Fireman.

Simple Indian Remedies.

The Indians on the plains have a number of simple remedies for ordinary ills that are very effective. For instance, on a burn, a cut or a sting of a wasp they at once put soft mud, usually mixed with saliva. When a man hiccoughs they get him to sneeze, and the sneeze usually ends the attack. On a boil they blow for minutes at a time, keeping the sore place damp at the same time, and thus evaporating the moisture. For a bleeding nose they stuff the nostril with dust in an aggravated case. For a light cold they wrap a wet cold rag about the throat at night and sleep with it on. They are great believers in the curative powers of mud, and they use it for a great many kinds of sickness, especially any one in which there are violent shooting pains, in which cases the moistened clay is applied as hot as the sufferer can bear it. I have tried almost all of their remedies and found them effective.—Chicago News.

The Scales Evenly Balanced.

Nowhere else in nature do the scales of retributive justice seem to be so evenly balanced as among the little people of the water. Looking at this fact as it affects the frog, it will be seen that while snakes devour frogs in great numbers, frogs eat young snakes. The same thing applies to the crawfishes, which in maturity prey upon tadpoles, while the mature frog esteems nothing better than a crusty little crawfish. Time and again when turtles are given credit for dragging down and drowning young ducks, the bull frog is the real culprit; and a constant slaughter goes on in ponds where both abound with the catfish as the aggressor and adolescent frogs the victims on the one hand, and mature frogs butchering the little cats on the other. Water spiders and beetles are popularly supposed to be at the mercy of frogs; but in reality the young frog has no more deadly enemies than aquatic insects.—Henry Newport in Detroit Free Press.

A MAN GAINED 181-2 POUNDS

In Two Months Under Dr. Darrin's Electric and Medical Treatment. Free Treatment Continued by Drs. Darrin.—One of the Doctors to Visit The Dallas, Pendleton and Baker City.

ROY, PIERCE COUNTY, WASH. Dr. Darrin's Electric and Medical Treatment cured me in two months ago of heart disease, constipation, indigestion and enlargement of the liver. When I first commenced, my head was dizzy and I was so fat that I could not see the tip of my nose. My legs were so swollen that I could not walk. My heart is now very little. The palpitation is not all gone but the pain and distress in my stomach and bowels have ceased to trouble me. The enlargement of the liver is gradually going down. So I begin to feel like a new man. My friends are surprised to see me look so well. When I commenced treatment I weighed only 95 pounds; now I weigh 113. I can not thank you enough for the relief you have given me. I am sincerely your friend, WM. McCUTCHEON.

More Cures by Dr. Darrin.
