Steeds Renowned in History.

Beside the mythical horses there were real steeds that are renowned in history Alexander's charger, Bucephalus, known to every school boy He received after death the honor of a mausoleum, and the city of Bucephala was named after him. Celer the horse of the Emperor Verus, was also honored with a mausoleum in the Vatican after his death, and while living was fed upon almonds and raisins, clothed with royal purple, and stabled in the palace. The horse of Caligula, Incitatus, was still more highly honored while tiving. He was made priest and counselor, ate from an ivory manger, and drank wine from a golden pail. - F. S. Bassett in Globe-Democrat.

Diamonds from the Sky.

Meteoric stones that sometimes fall to the earth are the objects of special study and thorough examination by scientific men. They are all similar in their combination of material or substance. But occasionally new facts are developed. In one stone were found organic remains showing the former existence of animal life. In another that fell in Siberia Sept. 4, 1886, weighing about four pounds, were found small diamonds. A small fragment of the stone was sent to Mr. George F. Kunz, who is with Tiffany & Co., New York. He found minute diamonds that were real stones, because they would scratch sapphires, diamonds being the only substance that can produce a scratch on the polished surface of a sappling. - New York Star.

A Sixteenth Century Map.

In the National library at Paris there is a Spanish globe 350 years old, on which the Congo follows in a remarkable manner the course now given to that river on the maps. All the best maps in the Sixteenth century showed the Congo as rising in the lake far inland, while in this century we first tried to identify the Congo with the Niger, and then for many years made it flow north. - Chicago Herald.

After All Other known Remedies Had Failed-Total Deafness Cured by the Same Method Lighteen Years Ago and Remains Permanens to This

14 Market St , Portland, Or , Nov. 28, 1890 Editor Oregon an: Seeing so many cards and letters in favor of Dr. Darrin, I think it justice to him and as well as the sill cted to tell what he did for my wite two years ago. For fifteen months prior to calling on him she had been suffering constant pain night and day from the effects of rheumatism in her arm and shoulder. She had not rai-ed her arm to her head during that time. She could not sleep only by taking opiates and her general health was poor and broken down. After a course of electric treatment by Dr. Darrin she was cured and has never had a return of her former troubles. Will gladly answer any questions by letter or otherwise. C. F. MAYHEW.

Total Deafness Cured by Electricity. Mr. Editor: In 1872 my daughter was taken with membranous croup, and upon her recovery was left totally deaf. I called on two eminent physicians, who said they could do no hing for her. As a last resort I took her to Dr. Darrin, who cured her so she has never been troupled with deafness since. I consider it one of the greatest cures of electric treatment on record, and great satisfaction give this testimonial, I reside in Berkeley, Alameda Co., California, and will take great pleasmonial. ure in answering any inquiries concerning most remarkable cure. Yours respectfully, WILLIAM S. DIBBLE.

The Drs. Durrin are crowded with patients from 10 A. M. to 8 p. m. They have a large country practice and send their electric emedies to any one desiring home treatment for a y curable chronic, scut-or orivate diseases, which are kept strictly confidential.

CAMP LIFE.

The one thing you'll always find in every cowboy's outfit when he goes on the spring round-up is a "Fish Brand" Pommel Slicker. They make the only perfect saddle coat, and come either black or yellow. They protect the whole front of the rider's body, being made to fit round the outside of the saddle entire. When used as a walking coat, the extension pieces neatly overlap each other, making a regular overcoat with a double stormproof front. When riding, the saddle is dry as a bone, from pommel to cantle, and the rider is entirely protected in every part of his body. These "Slickers," being of extra width, make fine blankeis for camp. Beware of worthless imitations, every garment stamped with "Fish Brand" Trade Mark. Don't accept any inferior coat when you can have the "Fish Brand Slicker" delivered without extra cost. MAKING THE DEAF HEAR.

And How It Was Cured by Electricity System of Educ. on Given by the Various Schot for Beaf Mutes,

There are do: less a large number of children born d ... or who have become deaf since birth t grouph the evil effect of measles or scarlet fever or some other of the kindred scourges of chadhood, who are going through the world as deaf mutes for lack of knowledge, on the part of these that have the care of them, that schools exist to which they may be sent almost free of charge, and sometimes quite free.

In these schools deaf children are not only taught to speak and to know what other people are speaking, but they acquire a thorough education in all branches, and in addition receive instruction in sewing, in the use of tools and a general industrial training, so that when they leave school they are quite prepared. need be, to carn their own living by their own hands or head.

It would seem that no parent could be indifferent to the possibility contained in the system of education given by the various schools for deaf mutes, if aware of their existence. The little people, who might otherwise go through the world aided only by signs, here acquire language so completely that it is only in the dark that they are returned to their world of silence, being deaf only as the hero of Jean Paul's Titan became blind, after sunset, and returning to all the pleasures of sound with the lighting of the lamps. The children thus educated ask no odds of those other children provided by partial nature with better means of taking care of themselves. Comparof taking care of themselves, Comparison of graduates of deaf mute schools and of those of other schools shows no difference whatever in preficiency and intelligence, and in mingling with the world afterward the deaf mute pupils are not accompanied by any painful sense of deficiency. In fact, the more they mingle with the world, as in the case of other youth, the more self-confidence and the larger vocabulary do they dence and the larger vocabulary do they acquire, and they are more injured by receipt of exceeding sympathy than they are by the withholding of it, many of them complaining of the tendency to magnify their misfortune, which almost ceases to be a misfortune to them when they find themselves readily understanding all that goes on about them, finding their way about, and often going to church, to concerts, to theatres, and taking as much enjoyment as those dowho are in the possession of all their Indeed, many educated deaf mutes who have acquired language, and who have any superior intelligence of their own, claim that they have an advantage in their deafness itself; for it has obliged them to concentrate in thought and quick wit and in eyesight the amount of force which is by others dissipated in the world of attaching and detaching sound, and they are, they are apt to think, and that broader, readier and better, for the oc-clusion of one of their senses. When clusion of one of their senses. When Mr. Fawcett, lately a high postoffice official of Great Britain, became in his early boyhood entirely blind, it is said that he resolved that he would go through life exactly as if he saw; and he carried out his intention, as we all know, as far as that was a possible thing, and a large share of his achievement was due to this determination. It would be well if all cople robbed of one of their senses formed the same resolution, and carried it out but half as well.

But long before children who are shut out from all actual sound are old enough to make any such determination for themselves, and while they can only see with a poignant pain that they are diferent from other children, ignorant of any means by which the difference may be cured, it is the duty of parents to supply to them, as far as may be, every deficiency of their senses. This, to a certain extent, can be done at home, and a singular success has attended the practice of treating the deaf child exactly as if it could hear, so that, almost as it were by intuition, it has acquired the art of speech to a limited extent. But as that extent is very likely to remain limited. the rest of the deficiency can only be supplied by schools having no other object than the instruction of the deaf, and it is at once to be seen that every guardian of such a child is under an obligation to the child to inform himself about such schools, and to give the child the advantages to be gained from them, even if in so doing the child in so far has to become a beneficiary of the state. The debt to the state is not a serious one, since it is for the interest of the state that every member of the community shall be brought to the highest perfection.-Harper's Bazar.

How to Thoroughly Enjoy Books,

Lately I have read all the "How I Was Educated" and "Books That Have Helped Me" papers, and I have noted how, in the majority of instances, the great writers and thinkers of today were confined in their childhood and youth to comparatively few books. These they read till they were learned almost by heart. And by so doing they not only got out all, or nearly all, that was in the authors, but insensibly acquired a good literary style. An author whose entire meaning and purpose can be grasped at one reading is not of the highest class, and the more we advance in life and in culture, the more pleasure do we find in our favorite authors. They respond to the improve-ment in ourselves. The more powers of appreciation we possess, the more do we find in them to appreciate. They never disappoint us, but are constantly revealing new thoughts and previously hidden meanings.

The student alone thoroughly enjoys books. Remember this, you skimmers who are not too confirmed in your bad habits, and you readers who would really enjoy the wisdom of our best friends. Bear with me if I repeat, "it is better not to know so many things than to know so many things that are not so."-Julian Magnus in The Epoch.

Nine-tenths of their were removed by Dr. Toel by means of electricity without loss of blood, while in others where electricity could not be used be operated with the knife. The doctor also showed us a serabook full of newspaper cluppings describing such of his operations as the patients had anthorized him to give the reporters at his former home to the East. Cancers and tumors cannot be manufactured, and are consequently not in the manker. They are an absolute and positive proof of the skill of the surseon who has removed them successfully from his patients and has them in his posses-ton is proof of what he has done.
