Some time ago a party found the bleaching bones of a woman's skeleton on a rocky bluff in the western part of Powder River Valley. The remains had evidently been there many years, as no trace of clothing was visible. The bones are now in the possession of a prominent physician of Eastern Oregon.

A San Diego dispatch says: Officer Weller brought into custody an unknown wild man captured in a canyon about fifteen miles east of the city. He lived in a sort of den, which he had dug out in the side of the canyon. He was placed in the cell for maniacs. He could not speak, and grunted like a wild animal.

The steamer Badger, supposed to have been hopelessly wrecked on Jones Island, steamed into Victoria harbor the other day. At the underwriters' sale her owner bought the vessel for $150. He proceeded to the wreck, felled the hole in the hull with cement, floated the vessel, got up steam and went to Victoria.

Labelle, the "king of opium smugglers," who escaped from the United States secret-service officers while being conveyed from his home at Port Huron, Mich., to Detroit about two years ago by jumping through a car window, has been caught at Olympia, Wash., where he was driving a laundry wagon under the alias of Boulanger.

A recent decision of the Supreme Court of Washington construed the law regarding community property of husband and wife to mean that all community real estate is exempt from execution on a judgment rendered against an individual member of the community, when the debt for which the judgment was obtained is not incurred for the benefit of the community.

During the progress of a ball game between the San Diego and the San Francisco teams recently at San Diego the receipts were attached by the contractor who had constructed the grand stand. It has come to light that Manager Hellman has failed to pay any portion of the numerous claims standing against him. The players will suffer to the extent of their salaries and expenses.

The Stellaoom hospital for the insane has at present 420 inmates. There is every class of inmates confined in the institution. Some are not violently insane, and are allowed to wander about the grounds. Sometimes they are given easy tasks to perform. It is necessary that the keepers watch them carefully, as insanity seems to sharpen some of the faculties as well as to destroy others. The desire to escape from the institution is the one which causes the officers more trouble than anything else.

Actual canal excavation has now begun on the Nicaragua canal. In spite of the swampy condition of the land near Greytown the soil is of clay and sand, and is of sufficient consistency to stay where it is dumped.
