Speed of a Locomotive.

a locomotive can run, some interesting official figures have been given by Mr. Stretton, an eminent English engineer, showing briefly that the highest speed ever accurately taken was with a Bristol and Exeter broad gauge engine, having nine foot wheels, and which was, as long ago as 1853, officially timed at a speed of just over eighty miles an hour for a short distance, this occurring in the case of a falling gradient and with a light load.

He also distinctly asserts that this speed is the maximum that can possibly be obtained with locomotives of the present type, the cause of this being. he declares, that at such a speed as that the resistance of the air, the back him, can be seen in his office. Dr. Toel pressure in the cylinders and the friction altogether have become so great and large Hospitals of Germany, Switzthat they absorb the whole power of erland and England, and is the only surthe engine, while the pressure on the wrong side of the piston becomes greatly increased by the fact that the exhaust steam cannot be got out of the cylinders fast enough. - Electrical Re-

Death by Electricity.

The experiments of Dr. Tatum have done not a little toward clearing up the mystery that has surrounded the physical mechanism of death by electricity. He has made it more than probable that there is a real difference between the effects of continuous and alternating currents, in that the former self and generally a bore to his friends. seems to kill only through a direct action on the substance of the heart, while the latter owe whatever added danger they may possess to a distinct action on certain portions of the nervons system. Dr. Tatum has also shown that the difference in the effects of the two classes of current is fac less than some foreign investigators would have us believe. - New Orleans Picayune.

Love, Fright and Clam Shells. How easy it is for a man to "fly to pieces" in an e pergency!

A few days no I saw an occurrence on the street of a large town in sthis state that was as wildly exhibarating to rhoumatism; cured, the bystanders as it was to the participants bitterly humiliating.

A fine appearing young man was accompanying an elegantly attired young woman in a promenade about town. All at once an enormous dog darted fairly against the lady mentioned

Many Hearts.

SEATTLE, WASH., December 11, 1890. Dr. J. Engene Jordan, Scattle Wash -- DEAR Sig: One year ago last October my little girl was vaccinated against my wishes. Her arm was inflamed for seven weeks. After that her head broke out in terrible sores, discharging pus and never healing until spring. She had such terrible pain in her head that it drove her almost insane. In August she received a fall which made her much worse, and she was taken with spinal meningitis in its worst form. She grew constantly worse, and the doctors could do nothing for her. She was just about dying perfectly speechless, almost blind and suffering intense majority of cases of impaired hearing agony. We had given up all hope, and would are hereditary, and are largely owing have been glad to see her die to end her terribisuffering, when, hearing through Mrs. McDouguld of Dr. Jordan, we sent for you.
