

AMERICANS WHO VISIT THE QUEEN.

Our Secretary of Legation Says They Are Democratic and Dignified. Mr. Henry White, secretary to the American legation in England, is visiting his relatives and friends. Mr. White has been secretary to foreign legations since 1883, having been first appointed to the court of Vienna. He remained there but a short time, as the climate did not agree with the health of his wife, and at his request he was transferred to the court of St. James in 1881, and has been there continuously since that time.

Mr. White is a pleasant and interesting talker. As the charge d'affaires of the legation it is his duty to present to the court all Americans who desire the privilege. No discrimination, he says, is made in ceremony. All Americans who wish to attend a presentation can have their wish gratified, provided they are au fait morally. They make their desire known at the legation and their names are sent to the lord chamberlain by the charge d'affaires, and the names are placed among those who are to be received at the next presentation. The queen is more generous to men than to women. The former have eight opportunities during the season of attending a "levee," as the reception for gentlemen is called, while for the girls and yearning matrons but two "drawing-rooms" are held, one in March and one in May. Unmarried gentlemen and ladies are never admitted together except under rare circumstances. A man may accompany his wife, or vice versa.

The court officers are punctilious on these occasions in the matter of dress, and many a woman's heart has fluttered in direful anticipations when preparing her toilet for these occasions for fear she could not pass muster. The trains must be of a prescribed length, and dresses are invariably cut decollete. The rule is strictly observed, the only exception being in case of sickness. To be admitted otherwise even in such cases permission must be secured beforehand from the lord chamberlain. The men adorn themselves for these occasions in the dress of their respective countries, and it is bad taste to appear otherwise. The Americans, of course, appear in the conventional evening suit of black. No sword is required, and, altogether, from the democratic nature of the United States government, Americans are given more license than other nationalities.

American travelers have been very much eulogized. Mr. White says, by writers who depict them as resorting to all sorts of petty schemes to obtain audience with the queen. While occasionally a shoddy person might be encountered whose impudence is greater than his good taste or judgment, and who gives occasion for the ridicule that Americans are frequently made to hear, it is nevertheless the rule that citizens of the United States are not pushing, and that they show more indifference to distinction by notice from royalty than do travelers from other countries. He has seen affluent merchants who have come from the humblest walks in life deport themselves with more grace, dignity and self-possession at a levee than many whose intercourse with royalty had been more extended.

European travel by Americans, he says, has wonderfully increased of late years. Four or five of the largest hotels in London are nearly always filled with them during the season. Many, of course, come to the legation, but the great majority do not. They go quietly and systematically about their travels, as they do about their business at home. In alluding to democracy Mr. White says it may astonish one to hear it, but he thinks it is a fact that there is as much if not more democracy in England than here. Many a peer, he says, would willingly exchange his title for a seat in the house of commons. A man may inherit a title, but if his merits do not command respect and admiration his empty title will not secure them to him.—Baltimore Sun.

How to Measure Wheat. About the time that Daniel Drew began his Wall street career he was up in the country one time to visit some friends, and two farmers called upon him to decide a case. One had sold the other five bushels of wheat, and proposed to measure it in a half bushel and sweep the top of the measure with a stick. The other objected, and Uncle Daniel was asked to decide. "Well, legally speaking, a bushel is only a bushel," he answered. "And can the measure be swept off?" "I think it can." "What with?" "Well, if I was selling wheat I should probably use half the head for a flour barrel." "Which edge of it?" "Gentlemen, that is a point I cannot now decide on," sighed the old man. "If I was selling to a widow or a preacher I am certain that I should sweep the measure with the straight edge, but if I was selling to a man who pastures his cows in the road and his pigs in his neighbor's corn I'm afraid I should use the circular side and scoop a little to boot."—Wall Street News.

Old Church Floors. Church floors present many interesting details. In York cathedral, on the pavement, there used to be certain stones that marked the places where the leading personages were to stand in ceremonies. In Westminster Abbey there used to be a straight line of small stones in the middle of the paved floors to enable processions to keep in the center of the ambulatories, portions of which may still be traced.—Gentleman's Magazine.

Old Fashioned Watch Chains.

Among the presents showered on blushing brides this season figures the old fashioned watch chain, more than a yard long. After many years of suspending watches from chateleaines, from short chains hanging from a brooch and from ribbons secured by monograms; after wearing them in breast pockets or tucked into the bosoms of dresses with short chain pendants, after carrying them in leathern straps or slipped into the clasp of a bag or using them as decorations for the handles of parasols and umbrellas, and cases and portemonnaies, as clasps for bracelets or concealed beneath a miniature in a brooch or behind the heart of a floral pin—fashion has gone back to the ancient style of chain thrown around the neck that our mothers and grandmothers affected.

The new chains are very fine and generally are divided at intervals of three or four inches by pearls, turquoises or garnets, strung like beads, or by small diamonds, rubies, sapphires or moonstones, set clear. As for the watch it is hidden in the folds of the dress or carried in a side pocket. It is small in size, and the back should be encircled or entirely incrustated with gems similar to those on the chain. One very handsome watch and chain that I saw the other day was the dainty trifles of a bridal corbeille was ornamented with both rubies and diamonds. The stones were set alternately between short lengths of the chain and formed a spiral on the back of the watch.—Paris Cor. Jeweler's Weekly.

Beaten to a Mummy. The phrase "beaten to a mummy" has been familiar to me from my youth up, and I have always understood it as equivalent to beaten to a jelly. Does it not refer to the medicinal substance formerly known as mummy, which kept its place in our dispensaries until pretty late in the last century? It was variously composed and not always of the same consistence, but its general appearance would probably resemble that of soft pitch.

I speak now of the spurious kinds, which were doubtless most common. Even the "genuine" sorts were not, however, necessarily Egyptian. Penicher, in his "Traite des Embaumemens" (Paris, 1699), gives directions for the composition of mummy from human flesh expressly for medicinal purposes. He recommends certain parts only of the body to be used, and these to be dried, macerated and spiced out of all likeness to their natural condition. Mummy so prepared entered into a great variety of "balms" and other medicaments, for which Penicher in his concluding chapter gives recipes from old writers.

Some of these have the consistence of oil, others that of an ointment. It is clear, from the references in Nares, that in our own country mummy and its preparations were well known, and from the "make mummy of my flesh," which Nares quotes from an old play, to "beaten to a mummy" is a natural and an easy step.—Notes and Queries.

Tamagno and the Czar. The Italian Count Sergardi is an entertaining conversationalist and has the national fondness for music. He was much amused when told of Tamagno's behavior in this country and that the great tenor brought his own brother along as his valet.

"That will be good to tell in Rome," he said. "Tamagno's traits are so well known there that it will be appreciated. Italy has often laughed at him. He was a street car driver in Turin and is without education. Verdi had the greatest difficulty in personally teaching him his part in 'Otello.' Some time ago an Italian company to which Tamagno belonged was engaged at a theatre in St. Petersburg. The company was one day given an audience by the czar.

"You know how strict is the etiquette of the Russian court. None may leave the imperial presence except at the czar's bidding. There came a lull in the conversation and Tamagno remarked that he thought he would go and abruptly left the room. The rest of the company was horror-stricken. But the czar laughed and nothing came of it."—Chicago Tribune.

The Latest Popular Game. It need not surprise any one to drop into an evening gathering or a quiet home circle and find people who wear spectacles across their noses and carry dignity by the ton trying to snap a row of ivory chips into a little wooden cup. That is the new game, christened tiddler-winks. It requires a small wooden cup called a wink pot and two dozen bone or ivory chips called winks, also four larger ones about the size of an old fashioned pants button, known as tiddler-dies. There is a cushion to snap the chips upon, or you can spread a small square of Brussels carpeting under the tablecloth, which answers just as well if not better. The trick is to snap the winks into the wink pot by means of the tiddler-dies held between the thumb and finger, the winks lying flat on the cushion or table. This is the game of the season—the great social snap, so to speak. There are two or three ways of playing and keeping tally of the game. Ever tried it?—Springfield (Mass.) Homestead.

Child Definitions.

I asked a little girl how she would define love. Unhesitatingly she answered, "It's going around." I asked a little boy the meaning of the word guilt. "It means telling on another boy." I asked Harry Sullivan to define a gentleman. He replied, not without some fervor, "Oh, a fellow who has a watch and chain." I suppose he read disappointment in my face, for he hastily added, "and loves Jesus." This same boy had a very hazy idea of Old Testament history. He had heard of Adam and Eve—"They stole apples and were turned out of the garden, and then they had to work for their living till the sweat poured down." A girl of 11 told me how she wished to live in the country "because then I shouldn't see a lot of people having a lot of things I can't have."—Mrs. Dorothy Tennant Stanley's Book.

Destruction of Forests. The consumption of pine from the forests of Wisconsin and Michigan is enormous. While Canada is being looked to for future supplies, it is shown that that country is becoming alarmed at the rate at which her forests are disappearing. Furthermore, it is estimated that in California alone in 1889 $25,000,000 worth of timber was destroyed by fire, the greed of speculators and the efforts of the herdsmen to secure pasturage for flocks.—Philadelphia Press.

Cincinnati uses 2,500,000 cabbages every year for its sauerkraut manufactories. Its supply is drawn from Michigan, of which Detroit is headquarters, and also Illinois, where Chicago is the distributing point. The cabbages are generally sold by the ton, the price ranging from $10 to $25 per ton. The trade of Cincinnati in kraut extends through Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Georgia and into the Virginias.

One of the greatest problems of the future is thought to be the transformation of carbon energy into light upon the same principle that the glow worm and firefly give their light, and when a single pound of combustible material will furnish as much light as is now obtained from a ton of coal.

When grapes are served do not spit out the stones, but eject them from the mouth into the half closed hands, from whence they should be transferred as unobtrusively as possible to the plate.

The Lady or the Mitten? Jack Hustle—Will you marry me? Rita Hustle—This is so sudden—give me time. Jack Hustle—You can't afford to waste any more time. You must be 26 now. Say yes, Rita.—Puck.

Don't chase a lie, but pursue the liar with all your energy. If you have ever used Dobbins' Electric during the 21 years it has been sold, you know that it is the best and purest family soap made. If you haven't tried it, ask your grocer for it now. Don't take imitation. There are lots of them.

A Half Memory.—Teacher—"Who discovered America?" Student—"Columbus." Teacher—"What year?" Student—"1492." Teacher—"What day?" Student—"I don't remember his name, but he was a 1492."

The physicians of Berlin assert that their practice has fallen off 25 per cent. Since Koch's operations began, and consequently they demand from the government free lymph.

"I'm hoping for something to turn up," he said, as he entered her house to propose. And scarce had he made her an offer to wed than she spitefully turned up her nose.

THEIR ONLY MEDICINE CHEST.

William W. B. Miller, Deer Lodge, Montana, writes: "I have been using BRANDETH'S PILLS for the last thirteen years, and though I have had nine children, I have never had a doctor in the house except three times, when we had an epidemic of scarlet fever, which was so much diminished by a vigorous use of BRANDETH'S PILLS. I have used them for myself, two or three a night for a month, for liver complaint, dyspepsia and constipation. In diarrhea, cramps, wind colic, indigestion, one or two BRANDETH'S PILLS fix the children at once. A box of pills is not the medicine chest we require in the house. We use them for rheumatism, colds, catarrh, biliousness and impure blood. They never have failed to cure all the above complaints in a very few days."

A Proper Correction.—"When you date a letter wrong do you rub out the error or rewrite the letter?" "Neither. When I find 1890 at the top I simply write—1."

IF YOU HAD A FRIEND

About to visit some section of country where malaria disease, either in the form of malarial fever or bilious remittent fever, which would be about the best advice you could give him? We will tell you to carry along or procure on arriving that potent medicinal safeguard, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, known throughout malaria-plagued regions, here and in other countries, as the surest means of defeating the miasmatic poison and robbing it of its fell destructive influence. Not only does it fortify the system by increasing its stamina, but overcomes irregularity of digestion, the liver and the bowels, and counteracts the unfavorable effects of overexertion, bodily and mental exposure in rough weather, or occupation too sedentary or laborious, loss of appetite and excessive nervousness. The functions of alimentation, bilious secretion and sleep have in it a most powerful and reliable auxiliary.

FIGHT FOR LIFE!

Awful Position of a Young Man.—Thrilling Experience in the Grasp of a Monster.

Like a miserable wretch encircled in the deadly coils of the anaconda, helplessly struggling against an inevitable fate, is the unfortunate sufferer of Paralysis, or softening of the brain. He fights in vain against the cruel monster; he sees his intellect failing; he refuses the constantly recurring attacks of forgetfulness and absent-mindedness stealing over him and becoming more and more frequent; he sees and realizes that his mind—once the willing servant of his will—is rapidly escaping from his grasp, and his mental sufferings over the consciousness of the fact are indescribable. In this fast American age of ours this dread malady is rapidly increasing. The vital statistics of the last census, as well as those of all the Lunatic Asylums of the country show this to be a fact. All eminent nerve and brain specialists agree that not alone to mental overwork is this dread condition attributable, but that to follies, excesses and dissipation (bringing on as they do nervous exhaustion, depleted vital force and loss of manly vigor), is the awful cause of Paralysis more frequently traced. Statistics show that when one student or brain-worker is affected, a dozen others are men who have led fast lives, or those who suffer from the results of boyish ignorance.

The man who commences to feel the preliminary symptoms of this most insidious and awful disease, realizing his powers are failing, and that something should be done, frequently calls on the average medical practitioner, who, being unable to help him, either laughs at his troubles as "imaginary," or gives him some simple, harmless prescription, of no benefit whatever. Only from the eminent specialist on brain and nerve diseases, who has devoted a life of study in that direction, can the victim hope for relief, and even the expert is powerless to cope with the disease when it has been allowed to advance too far. Three physicians attached to the medical staff of the Cosmopolitan Dispensary have made diseases of the nerves and brain a life study, and with the aid of modern American and European discoveries in medicine, galvanism and electricity, are having wonderful success in treating such cases. They are able to re-create nerve force, and can assure a speedy and permanent restoration to mental and physical health, strength and vigor in all cases which have not reached an absolutely incurable stage. Hundreds have been cured of various diseases. Among them are Charles Hempler, 55 Davis street; William P. Kane, 1713 Post street; Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Smith, 1705 Market street; Mrs. M. J. McManus, 814 Jessie street; Alexander Wood, 505 Seventh street; I. M. D. Wright, 1324 Florida street; Andrew M. Martin, 48 Ridley street; Peter A. Anderson, 1300 1/2 Stockton street; H. E. Snook, 1021 Market terrace; Miss Grace Sachs, 4 Lewis street; J. P. Hanson, 211 1/2 Geary street; Mrs. Pauline Voss, 2610 Manchester street; James J. Welsh, 310 Clementina street; Fred Gronsdan, William Tell House, Bush street; Miley Dolan, 126 Ivy street, all of San Francisco; C. F. Eckhart, of Gilroy, Cal.; A. Astory, of San Rafael, Cal., and others. Write to some of them and learn for yourself. Hundreds of patients are being treated by mail, as our new system of question blanks enables a thorough diagnosis to be made, so that medicines and directions can be sent by mail or express, with assurances of successful treatment. Every character of disease treated. Each visitor seen privately, and all communications received in sacred confidence. Out of town patients write, COSMOPOLITAN DISPENSARY, Stockton, Ellis and Market streets, San Francisco.

Let every enfeebled woman know it! There's a medicine that'll cure her, and the proof's positive! Here's the proof—if it doesn't do you good within reasonable time, report the fact to its makers and get your money back without a word—but you won't do it! The remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—and it has proved itself the right remedy in nearly every case of female weakness.

It is not a miracle. It won't cure everything—but it has done more to build-up tired, enfeebled and broken-down women than any other medicine known. Where's the woman who's not ready for it? All that we've to do is to get the news to her. The medicine will do the rest. Wanted—Women. First to know it. Second to use it. Third to be cured by it. The one comes of the other.

The seat of sick headache is not in the brain. Regulate the stomach and you cure it. Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the little regulators.

READ AND BE CONVINCED.

COQUILLE CITY, Or., Dec. 31, 1890. J. Eugene Jordan, M. D., Seattle, Wash.—DEAR SIR: It has been some time since I wrote a letter to you, but I have been so well that it has not been necessary. You remember when I first wrote you in May, 1889, I was in a fearful condition with a complication of troubles. I could not stand on my feet five minutes at a time unless walking around; it seemed as though my back would break apart. You remember that I had an enlarged lung or a bunch under my short ribs on the left side, and it seemed to me as though I would smother to death. I also had liver and stomach trouble. In fact, my health was completely broken down so that I would have been much better dead than alive. Could not do any housework at all. Now I am getting so stout; my side does not trouble me, and I can do all my housework, washing and all. Please publish my testimony in any of your books or papers, as I was just as bad as any one could be and get well. There are a great many weakly people here and I know your medicine would cure if they had them to take, and I am sure if it was near here so that it could be procured they would take it, as all know how much I have suffered. I beg to remain Very respectfully, Mrs. C. C. MEYERS.

Dr. Jordan's office is at the residence of ex-Mayor Yesler, Third and James. Consultation and prescriptions absolutely FREE. Send for free book explaining the Histo-genetic system. CAUTION.—The Histo-genetic Medicines are sold in but one agency in each town. The label around the bottle bears the following inscription: "Dr. J. Eugene Jordan's Histo-genetic Medicine." Every other device is a fraud. It Will Recover.—"He's a disgrace to his name." "What is his name?" "Smith."

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY. As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reliable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good one can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, O., by F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by druggists. Price, 75 cents per bottle.
