NEWS NOTES.

A Child Bitten by a Dog at Baker City.

TROUBLE AT A SCHOOL MEETING

The Woolen Mill—Destructive Floods—Isaac Hiatt Fardened—Flood Fight, etc.

From a private letter showing us by Mr. H. C. Emery, of this city, a description of a horrible accident that happened in the little three-year old daughter of Mr. M. A. Fardened, who lives about three miles on the side of Baker City, on Saturday afternoon last. Mrs. Fardened had been on a visit to her father home, and returned home Saturday, and her husband had left the little girl at home, and went to the depot to meet his wife and when they returned home were horrified to find that a large, vicious dog had entered the premises, and bitten the child severely in the face, breaking the bridge of its nose and left a deep wound, and causing a horrible scar from eye to eye. The child died profusely from the wound. A surgeon was immediately summoned, who dressed the wound, twenty five stitches being put in and at last accounts the little sufferer was doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances, and it is to be hoped that it will soon recover, but it is likely that an ugly scar will mark her face as a reminder of the sad accident. We have read of several accounts of children being bitten by dogs of late, and people who own such dogs should be compelled to keep them chained up or kill them.

There were warrants issued on Tuesday last by County Judge L. N. Sanders for the arrest of Louis McManis, Hughie Lynch, J. Sharp and Benjamin McKeever, upon a charge of intent to kill—Jasper Mitchell being the complainant. An examination was had before the judge on Thursday in which Louis McManis and Hughie Lynch were held to answer, with bonds placed at $500 each, which were given. The other two defendants were discharged. The difficulty grew out of a misunderstanding had at the annual school meeting in Antelope district. It is unfortunate for the district that such means have to be resorted to in order to settle questions of such vital importance as school matters.

We are pleased to note that the woolen mill project is moving along nicely. Our enterprising townsman, Mr. A. E. Eaton, deserves much credit for his untiring efforts to secure this much needed enterprise, and it now looks as though his hopes will be realized. It we had a few more men like Mr. Eaton and Taylor Green it would be a God's blessing to the town. Their work is not all with their mouths, but on the contrary they come down with the hard cash. There are a few who would not like to see an enterprise of this kind started here in Union for the reason that it would help to build up the town, and thereby cause opposition to their business, but enterprising men have hold of the matter and will no doubt succeed in securing the mill. Time will tell who are the enterprising and public-spirited men of the town.

Yuma, Ariz., March 7.—Yuma presents a scene of desolation. From the hill at the prison one looks down on the ruins of almost an entire city. The scene of the late floods is of even a more desolate nature than that caused by a disastrous fire. Along the Gila river the same woe-filled picture presents itself. The total loss will reach almost two hundred thousand dollars. The railroad company has nine hundred men at work and the railroad officials claim that they will run the first train Sunday; but there is an immense amount of new track that will have to be built along the Araby canal.

Isaac Hiatt, whom it will be remembered was sentenced to the penitentiary for life for the killing of a man in Washington county, Oregon, in 1878, was pardoned on Wednesday of last week by Governor Penner, through the recommendation of the district attorney who convicted him, and a petition bearing many signatures. Mr. Hiatt is well known in this county, having resided here a number of years, and was always considered an upright and honorable citizen, and his many friends will be much pleased to learn of his pardon.

A dance occurred a few miles from town in which a free-for-all fight was engaged in. The row commenced by a young man throwing a pie while at supper and striking a young lady present in the face. The insult was resented by the young lady's parent, and the fun began which lasted about an hour. Black eyes and bloody noses were plentiful, and the boys fought like bull dogs. At last a Baker City young man possessed himself of a butcher knife and took possession of the floor, striking several with the weapon before he was disarmed. One man received a gash in the arm, another was wounded in the hand with the knife. Pandemonium broke loose and the dance broke up. There may be pleasure in such rows, but few would desire to have it illustrated.—Baker Blade.

DIED.

PHY.—At her home near the Cove, March 6, at 1:30 p. m., 1901, Mrs. Maggie A., beloved wife of J. M. Phy, aged 35 years, 3 months and 14 days.

She was married to her now bereaved husband May 12, 1899. She leaves to mourn her loss a true, loving husband and six children—three sons and three daughters. Her father, mother and two sisters preceded her across the valley of the shadow of death, to the land of fadeless immortality. One brother and four sisters still live to mourn the loss of a true and loving sister. Only two of her sisters were permitted to be with her during her last sickness, Mrs. A. J. Goodbrod and Mrs. Sarah Welch. Again we are remembered that "Time, like an ever-reeling stream bears all its sons away." Only 38 years of earthly life for an eternity of never-ending glory.

We may say of Sister Phy "None knew her but to love her." When Israel was in its glory and pride it was a custom among its people when the great and good departed this life, to salute one another with the words, "Know ye not that a great one has fallen in Israel today?" So we say of Sister Phy, a great and loving wife, mother, sister and friend has fallen today; hushed exchanged the crosses and tolls of a land of death for a home "not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

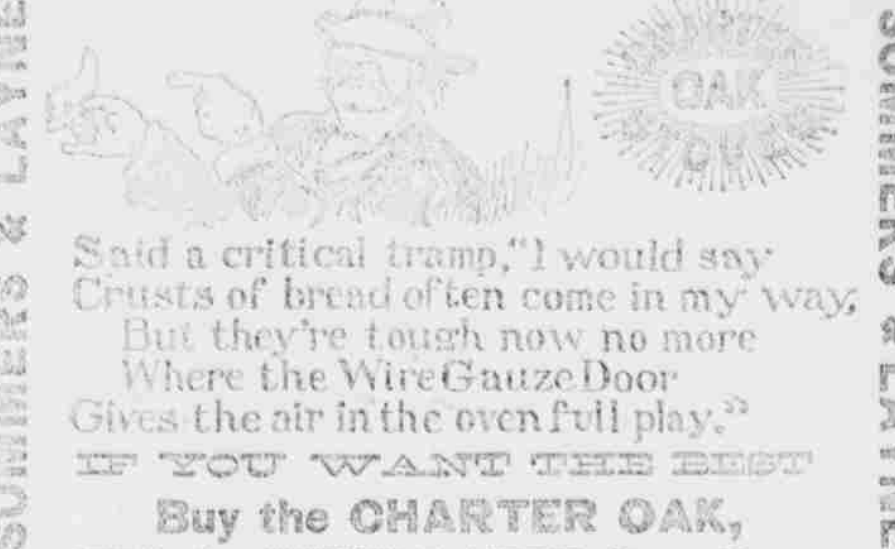

As a wife she was all the name and position indicated. She was true, loving and watchful. To her home was the dearest spot on earth. She made home, "Home, Sweet Home." She was a mother in the fullest sense. She ruled her children by love; they never became too old or grew too large to be drawn close to mother's great, tender heart of love and feel an impress of a kiss that death and time cannot erase.

From such a heart and character, where love and purity reign, where God dwelt, no wonder such a home should be flooded with sunshine and happiness. When nearing death's shadows she called the father, children and relatives around her bed, and with such words as could only flow from a devoted mother's lips, first called the attention of her heart-broken husband to the responsibility so soon to come upon him. She then, calling her children to her side, said, "Boys, I have tried to be all a mother could to you; now that I am going to leave you, promise me that you will be men." Then tenderly putting her arms about the little girls, said, "Be good, kind and true." Then kissing them all good-by, resigned her soul to the God she loved. So with life's labor done, patiently awaited the summons to depart and be forever with the Lord.

Sister Phy was converted and joined the M. E. church in 1895 in whose communion she lived and died. Her funeral services were held in the Episcopal church, of the Cove, and attended by a very large concourse of mourning friends. She was laid to rest in the Cove cemetery where we said good-by until the resurrection morn. "But we shall still be joined in heart and live to meet again." SAM. M. DRIVER.
