News Notes From the Na- tional Capital.

THE CINCINNATI CONVENTION.

Difference of Opinion as to What Effect
It Will Have on the Coming Election.

WASHINGTON, May 22, 1891.

EDITOR OREGON SCOUT:—

Close observers of the game of politics were not surprised to learn that it was charged that both the democratic and republican managers had paid emissaries among the delegates to the Cincinnati convention. It would be extremely difficult even where all the delegates were regularly accredited from legitimate organizations, and simply impossible in a convention where many of the so-called delegates represented only themselves or at best paper organizations, to keep out crooked men. And I happen to know that more than one man went to that convention from hereabouts who has on past occasions handled crooked political money.

If I desired to be personal it would be possible to name one of the delegates at that convention who has been named as a member of the national committee, and who, in at least two campaigns, while ostensibly connected in a conspicuous manner with one political party, was in the pay of the campaign committee of another. Dates and amounts paid might in this case be specified if it were necessary.
He belongs to the fortunately small class of men who live by the sale of their honor.

There are grave differences of opinion here as to the effect that the work of the Cincinnati convention will have upon the campaign next year, but all agree that it depends entirely upon the actions of the great alliance convention which is to be held on the 22nd of next February. If that body endorses the work of the convention just closed, then will the third party have assumed mammoth proportions; if not, it will not be a great factor in the fight.

A man never gains anything by trying to make small of the people who do not think exactly as he does; and one would naturally suppose that a man who has been in congress, in journalism and in Pennsylvania politics as long as Col. Tom Bayne, of Pittsburg, has, would have long ago learned this lesson; but he hasn't. He was here this week and in an interview he said of the coming campaign: "This country will have reasons for feeling gratified if the opposing tickets are headed, respectively, by Harrison and Clevelland, because no matter which was elected the victor would stand between the people of the United States and that peculiar and unreasonable brand of foolishness which is labeled 'free coinage of silver.' Neither Harrison nor Cleveland would permit a free coinage bill to become a law if by any means in their power they could prevent it."

A senator who read these remarks sharply said: "Is Tom Bayne the people of the United States? Why he talks like a lunatic. I am satisfied that if it could be possible for the people to vote upon the question of the free coinage of silver, without any distracting political questions being mixed up with it, more than two-thirds of them would vote in its favor.
It is the one-third who oppose it who would be gratified to see the two parties again led by Cleveland and Harrison."

A newspaper man with more imagination than good judgment started the silly rumor that Mr. Harrison snubbed Senator Quay when that gentleman was here this week. The cause of this conclusion was that after sending for Senator Quay to come here Mr.
Harrison found himself so busy that he sent the senator a note requesting that the interview be deferred to a more convenient time. Bless your soul, Mr. Harrison may not be in love with Quay, the man, but he will never think of snubbing Quay, the boss, who controls the Pennsylvania delegation to the republican national convention.

Mr. Harrison and all the members of the cabinet, except Blaine and Noble, who are away, seem to be as busy as beavers, but it is probable that they are only catching up with the routine work that accumulated while the president was away. At any rate if they are engaged in any work of national importance they are keeping it very quiet. It is known that Mr.

Harrison is awaiting the return of Mr.
Blaine before taking up the important matters pending before the State department. The new Peruvian minister is more than anxious to obtain the same trade reciprocity for his country that Brazil now enjoys with us, but he has been informed that nothing can be done until Mr. Blaine returns.

Several times this week it was rumored that Mr. Harrison had asked for the resignation of Commissioner of Pensions Raum, but he hasn't up to date, and Gen. Raum, who claims that his son and himself are the victims of a conspiracy, says that he does not intend resigning unless asked to do so.
It is believed here that Mr. Harrison would gladly accept the resignation of Gen. Raum, but that he, for some cause, dislikes to request it. If the resignation under a cloud of Gen.
Raum's son from the pension bureau shall succeed in breaking up the practice, all too common in Washington, of officials appointing their sons, daughters and in some instances their wives, to important positions under them, it will prove a blessing in disguise for the public service, as this practice has grown to be an evil of mammoth proportions. J. H. C.

COVE CULLINGS.

COVE, OREGON, June 3, 1891.

Ho for the water works?

Rev. Trumbull held service at the Morrison church last Sunday.

Miss O'Neal, of Cornucopia, and Miss Baker, of Union, visited the Cove this week.

The Baptists propose to collect the subscriptions for the new church and complete it immediately.

There has been about 250 head of hogs sold in the Cove this week. They go to the Portland market.

Ben, son of Mike Duffey, has been very sick this week with la grippe.
He is much better at present.

Now is the time for the people to see their likeness. Shafer, the photographer, is here with all his machinery.

Considerable improvement is being made on some of our roads by the road supervisor, together with the boys.

A number of teams are busy hauling flour to Union and loading with wheat to return. This speaks well for the place.

Mrs. Lou Childs has rented a portion of Wm. Russell's residence which she will occupy in company with her sister, Miss Ada Bloom.

Mr. Wesley Duncan was kicked on the side of the head by a wild horse while trying to catch it. He was insensible for twelve hours.

Dr. Ewin performed the last operation that he thinks necessary on W.
Haggerty's neck, Sunday. All his patients are improving.

Jas. Russell has gone to Moscow, Idaho, to contract or dispose of his teams. Jim has a good lot of teams that he would dispose of very reasonably.

Mr. Dion Keefe, contractor from Walla Walla, was the recipient of many welcome hand shakes last Saturday and Sunday. He thinks some of returning to Grande Ronde.

We understand a picnic is arranged for next Sunday. Now is the time for picnics, excursions, etc. Strawberries are beginning to ripen; there is an abundance of ice in town for ice cream; plenty of posies for the ladies to gather, and pin on the boys' coats; the streams are low enough to catch the mountain trout, and everything is favorable to encourage people to visit the Cove, for the exclusive purpose of enjoying themselves and seeing the most beautiful place in Eastern Oregon.

A Great Offer.

That five-dollar map offered to new and old subscribers by the St. Paul Globe Publishing Co. is one of the most valuable and expensive premiums ever used by newspaper publishers. And, by the way, the Globe is one of the greatest, brightest and best papers in the country, too—the leading paper of the Northwest. Read the Globe's announcement. It will tell you all about the map.

EAGLE VALLEY

The Garden Spot of Union County.

A LARGE PER CENT OF LAMBS.

The Hay Crop—Brief Notes and Personal Mention—The Wagon Road Committee.

EAGLE VALLEY, May 30, 1891.

Health good.

Strawberries are ripe.

Mrs. Nellie Beck is on the sick list.

P. Bache, of Baker City, was in this valley recently.

John Scott has taken the place of Harvey Lee in Chandler Bros.' store.

Mrs. Col. Makinson and daughter, Miss Estella, are visiting relatives in Baker City.

Mr. Poppy, of Big creek, was in this valley recently and reported that Big creek was almost too dry to be saved.

We had a small rain shower a few days ago, which cooled the air a little and refreshed the grass which was tolerably dry.

Mrs. Eugene Chandler and sister, Miss Lillie Young, started on a visit to their sister, Mrs. Witherite, of Walla Walla, recently.

Capt. Craig and G. W. Moody produced ripe cherries on the 27th of May. Can the Cove do as well? If so, please let us know.

Mr. Harvey Lee, who was on the sick list a few weeks ago, has recovered and is able to be about. He is not working in the store now.

A baseball club has been organized.
One of our high headed players got the summit of his sneller pealed a few Sundays ago by the ball.

Mr. Al Waldron and lady, who have been residing on Snake river for the past few weeks, are now visiting Mrs.
Nellie Beck of this valley.

The Barber Bros., our successful sheep men, have marked over 100 per cent of lambs this year. The other sheep men also are doing fairly well.

The Band boys have been making improvements. They gave a successful and well managed dance a few weeks ago, which was largely attended.

Matt Simonis, who was married a few weeks ago to Cora Kirby, returned to Sanger a few days ago to begin work as a married man. He did not take his wife with him. How could he leave her?

Haying will commence in about two weeks. It is thought that the first crop will be a little above the average.
Many of us expect to cut three crops this summer. We expect to have enough to help the outsiders a little.

Will we let the glorious Fourth of July pass without celebrating it in this valley? Some say not. That is what I say. Who will start the ball rolling? It won't hurt us to have two picnics in Eagle in one summer. The more the merrier.

The citizens of this valley were notified to meet at the Craig school house Saturday, May 30th, at 2 p. m., to see what amount of money and work will be donated by the citizens of the valley to aid in the completion of what is known as the Powder river road, leading from Eagle valley to the towns of Union and Baker City, Oregon. Joseph Beek, W. W. Kirby, John Fewell, Newt. Young, C. H. Craig and Kay Young were appointed as a committee to see what amount could be raised.

WHO AM I?

HIGH VALLEY.

HIGH VALLEY, June 1, 1891.

The good, faithful clouds, which have been holding on to their moisture with a death grip for more than six weeks, got together Wednesday evening and gave us a regular let down.
High valley always catches the rain when there is any passing around, and this time got her upper side well soaked, and that none too soon. The farmers have been wearing long faces for nearly a month on account of the dry spell. The hay crop will be short on account of this non-Baptist turn on the part of the weather, but everything being considered we have no serious grounds for complaint. These drops are as good as nickles, and coming directly as they do in the shape of good crops, they are easy to take care of.

Long visits, long stories, long exhortations and long prayers seldom profit those that have to do with them. Life is too short! Moments being precious, learn to be brief, to condense, abridge and intensify. We can endure many an ache and ill if it is soon over, while even pleasures grow insipid and pain intolerable if they are protracted beyond the limits of reason. Learn to be brief. Log off the branches. Stick to the main facts in the case. If you pray, ask for what you want and stop.
If you speak, tell your message and hold your peace. Boil down two words into one, and three into two, and note the good result.

That escaped deceiver, Schleppey, is said to have failed to marry his victim near Sumnerville. There is just this standard of action that the world follows in its judgment, however, that the writer does not believe in, and relates to this very action and judgment between men and women in the social fabric and wherein the social world has one kind of money for the use of the dominant section, socially, and a decidedly different one for the other.
We refer to the judgment and fate that attends men and women in this lax day. A young man may sin against all the commands; he may despoil the fairest homes and leave a track of woe in his passage, but let him show signs of repentance, how quickly hands are extended toward him to save him from the pits that he, himself, has dug. Hands, fair, soft and white, will be eagerly extended to save the wreck of all that is moral and manly, and homes will quickly open their doors—in fact there is nothing generally too good for the prodigal son (or call outer) when he once turns away from the swine and husks. The robe and the ring and all are for him.
But how about the daughter? Ah, that is where the difference comes in.
When the woman once starts out to sow a few wild oats her path thence-forward leads downward to a final and a certain Hell. Should she show ever so many times a desire to change from that course of life, no friendly hand is ever extended to save her from—herself. The wolves that most bitterly bark on her track will have licked and fawned about the feet of the rake who may have caused her ruin and fall.
Should she lay her hands upon the promises of the gospel, her fingers clutching them like the hands of a drowning life, cruel women will beat them, crush them and break their hold, and send her swiftly to the Hell that yawns always at her feet. For the repentant Magdalen no church door swings wide open. For the repentant rake they more than meet him half way and coddle him as if his soul was especially worth a dress parade of all the church corporals, while that of the woman's—well she was only a woman, let her go and be damned. The good Christ will forgive her sins, though they are as deep as scarlet, and make her white as the driven snow. She can stand purified, chastened and saved, but the christian men and women, while admitting these gospel truths, can never carry them out in their treatment of the women, but will break their necks to do so for the rake, especially if he has the additional salvation of cold cash. We do not believe in this hypocrisy of church standard doggerly. It is not right.
Those who transgress the laws should be equally held to an accountability without regard to sex, and the spectacle changed from women beating their fallen sisters down deep into Hell, yet fawning on their seducers and murderers, to one of common honesty and justice between men and women, and one no more deserves Hades than the other. Let there be tickets for two and no return coupons of travel that way. The responsibility being equal, the shame is for both. We would not palliate the offense, but we would be just. Have ye not heard, "Let him that is without sin cast the first stone?" J. W. MINNICK.
