The council held a special meeting yesterday afternoon for the purpose of receiving bids for the construction of water works. The bids were opened and considered, but nothing definite will be given in regard to the matter till tonight, when another meeting will be held. The whole matter is now under advisement by the council.

The eight-year-old son of S. H. Yockey, of Baker City, was dragged to death by a horse last Wednesday evening. It seems the boy was attempting to catch the horse when the rope became entangled on the boy's arm and the horse drug him all over the field until exhausted. His body was entirely stripped of clothing, and his back, neck and left arm were broken.

A lostine correspondent of the Chieftain says: "It is reported that the body of Mr. Grassman, the trapper, who has been missing since last April, was found a few days ago a short distance from the mouth of the Wallowa river. It appears that he had left his camp and started for the meadows. In climbing out of Grande Ronde canyon his snow shoes had failed him and he fell over a bluff, killing himself instantly."

The Jones Brothers, with their families, took their departure Tuesday for a summer's outing, to search for recreation and health. The Wallowa Chieftain says: "A couple of individuals, who have been stopping on Prairie creek the past few months, suddenly left last week, and about the time of their departure a couple of horses and a saddle also disappeared. Saturday morning the parties upon whom suspicion rested were seen beyond Elgin, and on Sunday last two men interested in the property stolen started in pursuit of the thieves. Up to the present writing no returns have been made."

The city council of Baker City has entered into a contract with a company to put in a system of electric fire alarms, to cost about $1200. This action does not seem to meet the approval of a number of the heaviest taxpayers who have to foot the bill. Baker scrip is worth about 50 cents on the dollar and the monthly revenue is much smaller than the expenditure. From all appearances the city is fast nearing bankruptcy, and we do not blame the taxpayers for making a kick at the extravagant manner in which the city government is carried on.

W. S. Byers, of the Pendleton mills, was in the city last week looking after business connected with the mills. He is much pleased with the appearance of our town. Mr. L. B. Rinehart has been buying wheat for him for the mill and while in the valley Mr. Byers contracted for 10,000 bushels of wheat, at Elgin, at 60 cents on board cars. Most of this wheat will come from the Wallowa valley. Mr. Byers says the recent rain has caused the farmers to dispose of their wheat and that the price has dropped a little.

Queer Proceedings.

Considerable ill feeling exists among a number at the manner in which the case was conducted against the four young men arrested a few days ago for their deviltry at Telocaset and firing their pistols into several houses and setting one on fire in Pyle canyon last Friday night. Complaint was made by Jo Yowell and a warrant sworn out in Justice Blakeslee's court for their arrest. The sheriff, after two days hard work and at an expense of nearly $200 to himself and county, succeeded in bringing them in. They were all placed under bonds to appear for trial on Monday. Most of them were placed in jail, being unable to furnish the necessary bonds. On Monday, however, it seems they were all ordered to be turned loose, no trial being held. We understand there were several witnesses here to testify against them. While we do not pretend to say that the men could have been convicted of any crime or that they were guilty, yet this is a funny way of conducting business. If such business is allowed to be carried on the county will find itself engaged in a damage suit one of these days. You can not arrest every man and place him in jail without giving him a trial. These young men should have demanded a trial, and if not guilty, let it be proven so. Somebody should surely be responsible for the costs in this matter.

Children's Day.

A large crowd was in attendance at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening and were highly entertained by the many songs and recitations rendered by the children and the excellent choir of that church. It was Children's Day and the exercises were mostly devoted to them. The superintendent and teachers of the Sunday school deserve much praise for the manner in which they had trained the children for this occasion. They all did well considering their ages, and the recitations of some of the smaller ones, scarcely old enough to talk, were especially pleasing to the audience. The church was decorated in fine style with evergreens, flowers and a number of birds. The building was well illuminated by electric lights and presented a very bright and cheerful appearance.

Milton's Enterprise.

The town of Milton is working hard for a woolen mill there and it is now stated that a gentleman is on the way from the east who proposes to take hold of the enterprise provided the citizens there subscribe $25,000 in stock which it seems has about been secured. This should be a reminder to our citizens that we must wake up and see that such an industry is established here. Matters have about assumed a definite shape, and all that is now required is a little push and energy. Will our citizens get in and do their part, or will they stand idly by and see other towns secure the field and prosper by their enterprise and push? We can and ought to have a woolen mill.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their popularity purely on their merits.—R. H. Brown, druggist, Union, Oregon.

Written for THE SCOUT.

"Auld Lang Syne." Last night in dreams I visited The dear old home again, And wandered for awhile amid The forest and the glen. The squirrels played among the flowers And trees of leafy June; The wild birds, from the shady bowers, Sent forth a merry tune. The yard in front the cottage door Seemed like a little pen, But flowers as fragrant as before Were blossoming again. I traversed all the many fields, The scenes of early toil, Where each succeeding harvest yields The products of the soil. Oh woodsides! all thy beauty clings Around my memory! Each message of thy welfare brings Much happiness to me. The old stone church beside the wood I visited once more; There in the little pulpit stood The preacher, as of yore. His once brown locks were snowy white; His form was somewhat bent; He preached, with his accustomed light, Glad tidings that were sent. Brothers and sisters, all around, With love and friendship greet; But some familiar forms I found Were missing from their seat. Around the yard my way I wend Mid graves with flowers dressed, Where many dear departed friends Are laid away to rest. At length a change seemed passing o'er These visions of the night, And scenes of the Atlantic shore Passed slowly out of sight. —LUSA TACK.

Written for THE SCOUT.

Despair. My soul is groping in the dark; Midst surging waves my found'ring bark Is drifting on Toward a rough, tempestuous shore, With shoals beneath and rocks before, With rudder gone. My anchor has no steady stay; My compass, that should guide my way, Is broken now. Before me looms the rocky reef; I know of naught to give relief, Or mercy show. The waves that lash the sounding shore Seem ready now to flood me o'er In watery grave. The thunder's peal and lightning's flash, With wind, around my bark now clash, And none to save. The surf now dashes high and fierce, And chilling blasts my vitals pierce With cold intense; But yet a little further on I strike—my mortal powers are gone, Bereft of sense. —H. C. EMERY.
