PARK FICKINGS.

December 23, 1891. Lots of snow for the time of year, but not very cold. Jo Van is getting better slowly. Jo is not well by a whole lot. The health of the Park is better than it was some time ago. The Park is nice and clean. It is as white as the winter's snow. Abe has changed cooks again. Mrs. E. Shaw is doing the cooking now. C. Van takes his exercise every day. If he don't do one thing he does two. Abe Van is still getting in logs. They have some two hundred logs in at this writing. I see Sammy Vanzorder is hauling lumber. He must be going to take her in under his wings some of these times. Wm. Martin started for Grande Ronde valley this morning. He was taking some women off, but I suppose one of them was his wife. The stage driver has a time setting and growling, and growling and setting. I think it will be a fine outfit when they start on deck of a cayuse, with a hundred pounds of mail, and the snow so deep you can't see the horse. The school is progressing finely, indeed. They are going to hire the teacher another month. If you go into the school house you don't catch the teacher setting down with the Bible in one hand and his four-year-old club in the other. He has given general satisfaction. I am very glad that I raised a wail from the clergy by publishing the quail story. I am not much of a mathematician or I would not have got such a shot as I did, but as it is I have a slight headache, probably caused by the hard hit from Truthlover. I will say right here that I am a truth seeker and am open for conviction. Now I will leave it for the people to decide who missed the mark the farthest. Truthlover says the Bible does not say that the quails were piled up in a solid mass two cubits high. (Funny.) "And there went forth a wind from the Lord and brought quails from the sea and let them fall by the camp, as it were a day's journey (not about, but a day's journey) round about the camp, and as it were two cubits high upon the face of the earth." Mr. Webster, why do you tell such stuff? For you say upon means resting or being on the top or surface, as "He had his coat upon his back," but Truthlover says flying in the air. Oh! how thin his talk! He says those of us who have seen quails and other birds driven across a lake or plain by the wind and strike against buildings or trees and fall to the ground, etc. I mistrust him, for the quails I used to see in the east could fly faster than any wind Truthlover ever felt. They are powerful flyers and by the help of the wind (which never goes faster than 80 miles an hour) would go very fast. And again he says only the men gathered the quails. Now here, Mr. Webster, what do you want to humbug the people so for? You say the word people means the body of persons who compose a community, town, city or nation. Truthlover has it that it means men only. Now I can read some and can understand something of what I read, but I have not that kind of rubber that I can stretch, like Truthlover has. Why did he not clear up what the Bible says about God getting mad, and making himself out a liar? For he said that the Israelites should eat for a whole month, until it came out of their nostrils. (Numbers 11: 20.) And while the flesh was yet between their teeth, before any had been swallowed he stopped it and buckarooed the people around with a very great plague. Clear that up. Truthlover has tried to varnish the quails over very nice, but to take the story as it reads, without the Reverend's explanation, anyone who thinks would doubt it. He says, Is it wise for a man who never read the Bible in the language in which it was written, etc., to criticise the Bible, a book that has done more good than all the other books ever written put together? I think a man, if he is a believer in anything, ought to criticise it, and if it will not bear the test it is not worthy of man's credulity. There was a man setting and listening to the quail story and when done he said: "That man is mistaken; it was manna the Bible meant." How is that for a Bible believer who was baptised into the church? Who is the dupe? Now let us see what good the Bible has done. It has caused to be put to death, by drowning, hanging, burning at the stake, dragging behind carts, whipping and otherwise, a great many persons, and all, or nearly all, of them were women. They were witches and had to be killed, and all because the Bible says "Thou shalt not suffer a witch to live." It has caused the great rebellion of the United States; it has caused the polygamy of America; it has caused more bloodshed than anything else; it caused the rack, thumb screws and wheel of torture; it caused the Blue Laws of Connecticut, where they used to bore the tongue of anyone who got too smart for the known ones; it has caused the heathen to be drunkards, a great many of them; it has caused women to be kept from the pulpit, the stump, the physician's vocation, and in fact kept more or less in bondage; it teaches the horrible custom of cannibalism; it has caused children to be punished unreasonably, and if the Bible advice had been carried out they would have been stoned to death; but man had more feeling than God and would not do what the book said. It holds for infanticide, for murder and for war. It sanctions human sacrifices. Let me recall a half-forgotten scene. In a quiet New England village live a pair whom nature meant for good, kind citizens. But they became infatuated with the Bible. They believe it to be infallible. Day after day they pore over its pages. They dwell with especial interest upon the story of Abraham and Isaac, until at last they become impressed with the belief that they, too, are called upon to offer up their child. The fatal hour arrives. Nerved for the cruel deed they approach the bedside of their child, a sweet-faced, curly-haired girl of four. How placidly she rests! Folded upon her breast are dimpled hands white as the driven snow; curtains in slumber are eyes as mild as the summer sky. How beautiful! how pure! We would risk our lives to save that pretty thing from harm. How dear, then, must she be to that mother! She is their idol. But that idol is about to be sacrificed upon the altar of superstition. There they stand—the mother with a lamp in her hand, the father with a knife. They gaze for a moment upon their sleeping victim. Then the father lifts his arm and plunges the knife into the heart of his child! A quiver—the blue eyes open and cast a reproachful look upon the parents. The little lips exclaim, O papa! and the sacrifice is made. You say they were insane. Aye, but what made them insane? And what, more than any other cause, is filling our asylums with these unfortunate people? The vain attempt to reconcile with reason the irreconcilable teachings of the Bible. Come again, Mr. Truthlover, and convert an honest seeker after truth. If I am in the wrong, and anyone gets me to see that I am wrong, I will turn to the other side and do the best I can.
