The Oregon Front.

Wednesday, Dec. 21, 1900.

NORTH POWDER.

How Our Correspondent Spent the Christmas.

By The Portland Statesman.

The Christmas spirit of yesteryear is still evident in the North Powder country today. The people are frugal, but contented, and there is a general feeling of happiness. The children are all well-dressed, and the adults are equally so. The country is a Picturesque one, and the people are a hardy race.

TRAIN WRECK.

A Fatal Smoak-up Near La Grande.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN KILLED.

The train was passing through the town of La Grande, when the engine and caboose were struck by a snowslide. The engineer and fireman were killed, and the train was delayed for several hours. The accident occurred near the town, and the cause is unknown. The train was carrying passengers and goods.

RESIDENCE OF J. A. Pitt, Union, Or.

Mr. Pitt's home is one of the most pleasant and comfortable in the state. It is a large, well-lighted house, and the grounds are beautifully kept.

W.T. Wilson's Store, Union, Oregon.

Wilson's store is one of the most popular in the country. It is a well-stocked store, and the prices are fair. The store is well-lighted, and the goods are well displayed.

TRACED TO THE FISHERS at the Dock.

The fishermen are busy on the dock at the port, and the boats are all filled with fish. The season is a good one, and the fish are plentiful.

CHRISTMAS AT THE ABO.

The Abos are preparing for the Christmas season, and are busy with their work. The season is a good one, and the Abos are well pleased with the results.