Valuable Oregon Invention.
CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.
SALEM, Aug. 12.
The interest aroused in this section of the state among farmers and mechanics in the workings of a newly invented reaper and thrasher combined, as manifested by the number who daily visit the field near this city, where it is in operation, proved an incentive that induced your correspondent yesterday to follow the crowd and witness the machine in practical operation. W. H. Parrish, who after nearly twenty years' labor, has so far perfected the machine as to warrant its success, was present, and together with the assistance of one man and six light draught horses, was successfully performing the work of a header, header-belt and threshing machine, combined, in his own mind that with the force then employed, he could do as much work in one day as could the ordinary farmer, with the latest and improved header or self-binders and thrasher, aided and assisted by the customary force of 14 men and 21 horses. The assertion may be wild to some, but he is daily giving us practical demonstration of the fact. The machine he is now running as a mechanical structure is crude and in many ways imperfect, the imperfections, however, being such as may be easily overcome by the ingenuity of skilled workmen and iron. The idea, however, is to the satisfaction of all who have witnessed it at work, and manifestly, and it is generally conceded that the invention is one that will prove of immense value to the wheat raisers of this country. The machine weighs probably in the neighborhood of 3600 pounds, and with six good farm horses and two men from 15 to 18 acres can be cut, threshed and sacked every twelve hours. It can be adjusted to suit the speed of any team, and can be run fast or slow at the will of the operator. The machine now used by Mr. Parrish cuts an eight foot swath, but they can be made narrower or wider to suit the purchaser. One would expect to see an ungainly, cumbersome monstrosity in the way of farm machinery in one which it is claimed will successfully perform the work of header and thrasher combined. It is not, however, and looks but little more cumbersome than does an ordinary header, and like it is pushed ahead of the horses. One man or a boy finds occupation in driving the team, while another can with ease attend to the proper adjustment of the machinery while in operation, hang and take off the sacks of threshed grain, tie them and throw them aside to be picked up at leisure. The wheat comes from the machine as clean and free from foreign substance as it does from the ordinary thrasher, and the barns are successfully separated from the chaff, which is left scattered on the field in the wake of the machine. It apparently works to a charm, and the inventor is this year perfectly satisfied with its practicability, after five years' improvement on the original plan of twenty years ago. He claims that he can cut and thresh the grain at an expense of 25 cents per acre, while the cost is from 25 to 35 cents per acre under the present system. With the machine now in use by him he is cutting and threshing about eight acres per day, the crop amounting to about 25 bushels to the acre. He is, however, taking things leisurely, stopping several times every round to explain its workings to inquisitive visitors, who are interested in its workings and visit the field in great numbers to witness its operation. The machine can be manufactured and sold at a cost of probably about $100 per foot of swath. All who have seen it are enthusiastic in its praise, and the inventor takes great pleasure in explaining and showing its workings to all who may feel an interest in it.

THE CAPITOL MILLS.
The New Flouring Mill at Salem to be Second in Size in the Union—It Will Cost $120,000.
The stone foundation of the new Flouring mill of the City of Salem Company is completed, and a large force of bricklayers will be put to work at once and the construction of the building pushed forward with all possible dispatch. The machinery is already on the ground and twelve men were here from Chicago about the 10th of September to put it in position. A portion of it will be put in as the building goes up. The company do not adhere entirely to any one process of manufacture, but with a thorough knowledge of all the late improvements in every process, will combine the most desirable features of each, and intend to make the new mill second to none in the Union. The cost of the establishment will amount to about $120,000, instead of $60,000, as at first estimated. Extensive additions will be made to the present mill of the company, and an extra force of men has been employed on their extensive warehouses, which will be completed in two weeks.

In the Long Run.
BY BELLA WHEELER.
In the long run fame finds deserving men,
The lucky wight may prosper for a day,
But in good time true merit leads the van,
And such a name, unscathed, passes to us,
There is no Chance, no Destiny, no Fate,
But Fortune smiles on those who work and wait.
In the long run,
In the long run all glory sorrow pays,
There is no better thing than righteous pain;
The sleepless nights, the awful thorn-crowned days,
Bring sure reward to tortured soul and brain,
Unmeaning joys evaporate in the end,
But sorrow yields a glorious dividend
In the long run.
In the long run all hidden things are known;
The eye of Truth will penetrate the night,
And, good or ill, thy secret shall be known,
However well 'tis guarded from the light,
And the unspoken motives of the heart
Are fathomed by the years and stand confessed
In the long run.
In the long run all love is paid by love,
Though undervalued by the hearts of earth;
The great eternal Government above
Keeps strict account and will redeem its worth.
Give thy love freely; do not count the cost;
No beautiful a life was never lost
In the long run.

Stone Foundry.
Since the burning of W. T. Gray & Co's stone foundry at Salem, about two months ago, the company have been looking round for a place to rebuild their works where the business will be more profitable. On account of the competition they do not want to continue business in Salem. Learning of the continued advancement of our town and being convinced that it possessed superior advantages as to location, they offered to come here and establish the works providing that they received sufficient inducement in the way of a small bonus from our citizens. We are not informed as to what encouragement the proposition received, but it seems to us that it is an opportunity that should be taken advantage of. That it will be a great benefit to our town cannot be denied. Other towns have offered the company more pecuniary aid than they ask or expect from this place, but they prefer this location. It is short-sighted folly to say that such enterprises have no right to ask a bonus from the town and that they must come and take their chances with the rest of us. Salem has one of the finest water powers in the state, which fact it would seem would preclude the idea of her having to offer inducements to manufacturers to locate their works there; yet she does, and only recently when $15,000 was asked of her citizens to start a woollen mill the amount was raised in three or four days. Manufacturers are what this town needs and must have if it expects to advance any further. It is merchandise to death already, and every new store that is added is one store more than is necessary. We do not presume to tell our merchants and business men what they can or ought to do, but are just convinced enough to think by somebody—a pardonable conceit.

To Our Patrons.
With this issue, the present plan of publishing one side of this paper at Independence will be discontinued. Our reason for this is the simple and sufficient one that a fair test shows us that it does not pay us to continue the present plan. We shall, however, have a regular correspondent at Independence, and shall, as heretofore, give full space to occurrences and matters of interest to this prosperous town. We thank these people for their patronage they have extended to us.
