THE GREAT STRIKE.—The present strike of the telegraph operators is the most important one that has ever occured in the United States. It has reached the most remote corner of the union, and there is no use attempting to disguise the fact that it has nearly paralized comercial operations throughout the country. The strikers are holding out with unflaging determination and there is little doubt of their final success. The business of the companies will abundently justify better wages for operators and they should be paid.

THE GREAT MAIL ROBBER.—Dorsey of Star Rout fame is now attempting to shove off a part of the odium which freights his sensitive nature, upon the dead president, Garfield. He claims that he was the hero of the presidential campaign in Indiana, and that with a great corruption found he succeeded in carrying the state for Garfield. He also claims that the president was privy to this corruption, and that after it was accomplished the president was so ungrateful as to forget to reward Dorsey.—Bah!

TAX LAW CORRESPONDENCE

Mr. W. J. Mulkey's Answer a Little to Clear and Eloquent to Suit Mr. Roger.

He Maintains if the Law is Enforced it Will Drive Capital Out of the State.

Polk County's Assessor Makes a Second Reply—More Forcible than the Former One.

Below we print Mr. Hugh Roger's answer to Mr. Mulkey, the Polk county assessor, as published in Monday's Oregonian, together with his note to the editor.

ROGER'S ANSWER.

THE NOTE.

PORTLAND, Aug. 6, 1883.—Seeing you have printed my circular and the reply thereto by the assessor of Polk county, perhaps you will also insert my answer to the assessor of Saturday's date, copy of which is enclosed. The spectacle of an assessor stickling for the strict observance of the law on the one hand, while he drives a coach and six through it on the other is surely a little too ludicrous. Yours Truly, HUGH ROGER.

THE ANSWER.

PORTLAND, Aug. 4.

DEAR SIR—I am in receipt of your letter of the 31st ult., and have to thank you for the trouble which you have taken to expound your views in a manner so clear and eloquent.

That lands in this state are assessed on a valuation greatly below their actual worth is a fact so notorious, I had imagined, as to be altogether beyond the region of argument. In regard thereto I shall put this simple question: Do you believe there is one single man in your entire county who would sell his land for the assessed valuation? That opinions may differ as to the value of land in certain circumstances I quite admit, but it is too ridiculous to suppose that men knowing anything about it can differ in figures varying as much as from 50 to 75 per cent. Whenever real estate is assessed at its full cash value, as the law requires, there is nothing more to be said on this aspect of the question. That it is not so assessed seems to be well known to everybody except the assessor. The only object of my circular was to have all property valued in "equal and ratable proportion" for purposes of assessment, and so long as that continues not to be done a wrong is inflicted, the law becomes contemptible, and every subterfuge is resorted to for its evation. Your letter enters into other matters which it is needless here to discuss. This much only I would remark, that nothing was further from my intention than to intimidate any one. It is far from the desire of the company to coerce the people of Oregon as to what law they should make. In a recent letter from the secretary in Scotland he says: "The matter lies in a very small compass. There are other fields of investment. Oregon is the only state in which such conditions exist. Is it not therefore only reasonable and natural that we should leave it alone meantime?" Our money can be lent elsewhere to greater advantage, and if the "free people" of Oregon enact laws which drive capital from the state that is their concern, not ours. Yours truly. HUGH ROGER.

To the Assessor of Polk County.

MULKEY'S REPLY.

DALLAS, Oregon, Aug. 8, 1885.

MR. HUGH ROGER—Dear Sir: Your letter of the 4th inst. has been received by me. I am glad to see by it that you give your assent to, at least you do not controvert, my position that I cannot lawfully lower the valuation of your mortgages below their face. As that was the only object, as far as it could be gathered from your circular letter, and as our difference of opinion about that formed the only issue between us, a further reply from me would seem to be unnecessary, but that I wish to acknowledge my obligations to you for the very graceful manner in which you have yielded your first position.

You now seek, if I understand your second letter, to have "real estate assessed at its full cash value," and you say when that is done, "nothing more is to be said on this aspect of the question." That request it is your privilege, as a tax-payer, to make if you think the assessment too low. To quote from my former letter to you: "You would be justified in that case in demanding that I should obey the law and make a proper assessment of land."

In response, therefore, I meet you frankly and say that when you have made your complaint in that regard specific and in the proper manner, and have indicated wherein the present assessment is defective, I promise you that I will, and, as I believe, the Board of Equalization will give your suggestions a sincere and careful consideration.

I accept your statement that you did not intend to intimidate any one in threatening to withdraw your capital from Oregon, I wish to say, in my own excuse in so intimating that I was, and am still, unable to image any other reason for the incorporation of that statement in your circular letter. That ends what I have to say in answer to your letter, but I take this occasion to call your attention to the somewhat offensive language used by you in your note, accompanying your letter, published in The Oregonian. I have not, I am sure, "stickled for the observance of the law" in any sense that brings me blame, and as to your metaphorical figure of the "coach and six," I refuse to understand what the language implies, for the reason that it would necessitate me to reply in terms that I could not use without doing violence to that courtesy I owe to the public, if not to you. I content myself with saying that it illy lies in your mouth to assail me "With ignominious words though clerkly couched;"

you who have pestered every branch of this government—legislative, judicial and executive—to allow you to escape altogether a contribution to that government which alone gives value to your property here.

CAPTURE OF THE CONVICTS.

Particulars of the Taking of Glenn and Bradshaw by the Sheriff of Douglas County.

Sheriff Purdon of Douglas county arrived here this afternoon, having in charge Bradshaw and Glenn, the escaped convicts, captured by him on Saturday morning last, near Oakland. The particulars of the capture are as follows: On Wednesday evening last he received a letter from an ex-convict, signed "A Friend," who reported to him the presence of the convicts in Douglas county. On receipt of the news he immediately started in search of them, in company with A. J. Barlow and Joseph Kennedy. They took the train to Drain's station, where they procured a hack and proceeded to Rice's hill, where they got on the track and discovered that the convicts had taken the road leading to old Oakland. Leaving the hack at Grecian Bend, they tracked them to a ravine a short distance from town, in which grew a thicket of oak grubs. Here they lost track of them, but met Tom Batley, who said he had seen the smoke of a camp-fire in the ravine, and that he would go over and see what it was, under the pretense of looking for a cow, and accordingly did so. It proved to be Glenn and Bradshaw, the men they wanted. Barlow, Kennedy and Batley watch them all night, while Sheriff Purdon proceeded to Oakland, a mile or more away, and gathered up a posse of five men, whose names are as follows: J. H. Maloney, J. H. Howard, Peter McCragger, J. S. Beck, and E. P. Beck, to assist him in capturing the convicts. They then proceeded to the scene of action and surrounded the convicts, the sheriff and part of the posse going up on the hill back of the camp, and some of them being stationed along the road. They then got as close to the camp as possible without giving an alarm and concealed themselves behind some brush where they could plainly see them. The convicts were in the act of washing their faces and hands. Howard went to the camp and told the convicts who inquired of him that he was out hunting. Just here the sheriff and posse rushed down on them, telling them to throw up their hands, which they did, seeing they had been caught in a trap.

NEWS AT LARGE.

San Francisco has had a very distructive fire, which consumed almost a block in a closely packed portion of the city. Losses are estimated at $200,000.

A Mr. Charles Thompson, of Astoria, while working on a building in that city on last Monday, fell a distence of thirty feet, and sustained injuries from which he will die.

D. L. James, a heavy star route contracter in the south, has been arrested, charged with whole sale forgery. It seems that nearly all his securities were forged names. When will the mail service stealing stop?

The great Conclave of the Knights Templer will meet Monday, Aug. 20, in San Francisco. Elaborate preparations are being made to constitute this gathering one of the grandest affairs of the coast. Sixty or seventy Sir Knights will go from Oregon.

We are glad to note that the free pass nuisance is to be abated somewhat on the Northern Pacific rail road. General Manager Haupt has sent out a notice which, if carried out, will spoil the fun of a large class of free pass tramps who have for years infested the rail road.

Lost Art Found.

A valuable art, once so well known to the inhabitants of the republic of Perrydale and adjacent territory, has recently been discovered by the well-known haberdasher, J. D. Walling, F. A Vigilance Committee Takes McPherson Out of the Jail and Hangs Him.

Snoderly and Ownbey Left to be Dealt With as the Law Directs.

The Former Hanged Tuesday in the Presence of 4,000 People, Declaring His Innocence to the Last.

JAMES F. McPHERSON.

Columbia Chronicle Extra, Aug. 5.

For several days rumors have been rife of the probable lynching of J. F. McPherson if he secured a stay of proceedings from the court, but as there was so much talk we were inclined to think that it was all talk. It was noticed yesterday, however, that a great many people were on our streets who seemed to be engaged in earnest conversation wherever a squad would congregate. In the evening the streets were alive with people, but very little was said in regard to the murderers. At about 10 o'clock a body of masked men, numbering about sixty persons, took possession of the public square, and placed guards around the scaffold and throughout the square to keep outsiders from interfering. A portion of the crowd then demanded admittance into the jail yard, and, upon refusal of the jailor to open the door, a crowbar was procured and the door pried open. The jail guard began shooting, the fire being returned by the mob, who then grabbed the guard and held him until the work was done. Geo. F. Church, who was acting as death watch, locked the jail door at the first alarm and threw the key under the steps. As the mob entered the jail they remarked to the guard: "We are not here to break the law, but to fulfill it. That appeal don't go." The jail was then broken into and McPherson taken out and assisted upon the scaffold, his shackles still upon his feet, and the rope was placed around his neck and made fast over the beam. As he mounted the scaffold, he exclaimed: "Before God I am innocent. You are hanging an innocent man." He begged piteously for mercy, and asked them to hang Ownbey first.

He then offered up a prayer, when, as soon as he was through, he was pushed off the scaffold. The rope was either too long or else it slipped, McPherson striking the side of the trap as he fell, and his feet reached the ground. Strong hands grasped the rope and his ponderous body swung clear between the heavens and the earth, and he was literally strangled to death. By this time the streets were full of people, all eager to see the execution, but the vigilantes kept them out of the yard until all signs of life were extinct. The body was then given to the jail guard and the coroner summond. Upon his arrival the body was cut down, and he summoned a jury who rendered a verdict as follows:

We, the undersigned coroner's jury, summoned to inquire into the cause and circumstances attending the death of Jas. F. McPherson, do find that the said Jas. McPherson came to his death by hanging and strangulation, the person or persons causing his death being unknown to the jury.

EZRA SNODERLY.

Special to The News.

DAYTON, W. T., Aug. 7.—Tuesday, August 6, will long be remembered by the people of Dayton, W. T., as being connected with the hanging of Ezra Snoderly, one of the three Cummins murderers, hanged to-day in the presence of 4,000 people. Long before the hour set for execution people began to assemble around the scaffold in Court House square. At 11:30 A. M. the Dayton Grays, under command of Capt. Burns, marched into the yard and formed in half square around the scaffold.

At 11:40 Snoderly was brought out between Sheriff Hosler and Deputy Sheriff Cavanaugh, preceded by Revs. Whitcomb and Van Patten, and followed by Sheriff Thompson, of Walla Walla county, and Sheriff Wilson, of Garfield. On leaving the jail Snoderly shook hands with Ownbey and remarked that he (Ownbey) knew that he (Snoderly) was innocent. To which Ownbey replied that he knew he was guilty. A scaffold was built immediately in front of the entrance to the jail yard. Snoderly ascended the scaffold with a firm, quick step, and took a seat on the platform. Rev. Whitcomb offered a long, fervent prayer, the prisoner kneeling with bowed head. After prayer Sheriff Hostler turned to Snoderly and asked: "Mr. Snoderly, have you any remarks to make?" Advancing to the front of the platform, Snoderly said: "Gentlemen, I die an innocent man. I die for the crime of another man. Is that right? I hope you will all pray for me. I am innocent. I think I am prepared to meet my God. I have been a bad boy and stolen things, but of this crime I am innocent. I owe no one a grudge, and I hope no one has a grudge against me. I am innocent. You are hanging an innocent man." Snoderly then shook hands with all on the scaffold, saying a few words to each. He talked a few minutes with Sheriff Wilson, who arrested him, using about the same language as when talking to the audience. While Sheriff Wilson was adjusting the noose, Snoderly said, "Gentlemen, I die an innocent man. I'm innocent. You are taking an innocent man's life. I'm innocent. The black cap was then drawn down, and at 11:50 A. M. Sheriff Hostler sprung the trap. His neck was broken by the fall, and he died with scarcely a tremor. The drop was four and one-half feet. At the end of twelve minutes the physicians pronounced him dead. Everything passed off smoothly, showing great care on the part of Sheriff Hostler. Snoderly's self possession caused much surprise, the general impression being that he would break down. The universal verdict was that he died game. The remains will be taken to Garfield county and buried alongside that of his brother.
