BARKED LIKE A PACK OF HOUNDS.

How Lieutenant Gerlach Drove a Big Black Bear Into Camp.

A remarkable story of the capture of a bear comes from Missoula, Mont., by way of San Francisco.

There is no telling what might have happened had not the recent attempt at jail delivery in Charleston, Mass., failed.

Running him into camp.

When he ran onto a big black bear, the bear headed the mountain, and the lieutenant, though unarmed, pelted at him.

There was a chorus of screams, the shouting of horses and the noise of a stampede that made the gallant lieutenant's hair rise.

One day when a jail officer approached Foy's cell he was confronted with a pair of eyes that stared at him from the hole in the door.

Five coats and hold it against the jail wall. He continued to hold it until he had slaked the thirst of the prisoners.

Oliver Curtis Perry's temporary escape from his prisoners by boldly jumping aboard a locomotive and pulling the throttle wide open is of too recent occurrence to require repetition here.

A careful analysis of the cases cited, besides many other notable ones, which cannot be made here owing to the limitations of space, will reveal the fact that most escapes are due more to lax discipline in any manner.

JAILS CAN'T HOLD THEM

Some Criminals Who Have Made Notable Escapes.

MOST OF THEM WERE RECAPTURED

The Ingenious Device of Murderer Foy. How Red Leary and Billy Connors got Away from Ludlow Street Jail—Sharky's Narrow Escape From the Gallows.

There are several criminals in the United States of whom it has been said that no jail is strong enough to hold them.

Sharky was assisted in his escape by his sweetheart, Maggie Jordan, an extremely pretty girl whose devotion he repaid with every tick after she had at imminent peril to herself snatched him from the very shadow of the gallows.

Sharky was arrested for complicity in the escape, but could not be convicted.

Michael O'Connor was a worthy brother of "Willy" O'Connor, the notorious burglar.

Work of Congress. The short session of the Fifty-second congress signalized itself quite as much by the important laws it did not pass as by those which it did enact.

Of the acts that became laws the principal are the following: The automatic copyright bill, the Chinese exclusion and registry act, the act restricting immigration and the national quarantine bill.

NEAT AND ATTRACTIVE

A $2,500 Dwelling That Would Make a Comfortable Home.

In designing a dwelling of moderate cost and convenience should be the first important consideration.

The good housewife will in time forgive the architect who plans well, even though he may exceed the limit of expenditure, but inconspicuously arranged rooms and awkwardly located fixtures are a constant reminder of his incompetency or carelessness.

It is true that a people possess different ideas in regard to planning their dwellings, and what might seem an ideal arrangement to one person would appear to be very inconvenient to another.

Inexperienced persons usually expect too much and cannot understand why a few feet added here and there in the dimensions of the rooms should make much difference in the cost of the structure.

The last important law passed was that restricting immigration. Under this act it will be almost as hard for a steamer passenger to get into the United States as to get into heaven.

Under the new immigration act the masters and surgeons of vessels at the port of departure shall make affidavit that all the immigrants they bring to the United States are good citizens.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

Here is a modest yet pleasing design for a dwelling suitable for a family in moderate circumstances.

The kitchen is provided with a good sized closet for stores and culinary utensils, with a pantry placed in a convenient location and communicating with the dining room.

The entrance from the dining room to the kitchen is through a small vestibule. At the left of the hall is a good sized parlor, with a dining room and kitchen at the rear.
