And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's of old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light,

Look for this stamp—THE ROCHESTER. If the lamp dealer hasn't the genuine Rochester, and the style you want, send to us for our new illustrated catalogue, and we will send you a lamp safely by express—your choice of over 2,000 varieties from the Largest Lamp Store in the World.

EYEBROW AND NOSE. How Character May Be Studied From Fea-

The "rainbow of peace," as the eye-brow has been called, and the eyelids are treated of at considerable length as mated and mobile features of the face. In fact, so highly are they extolled that one is almost forced to think that a person ssessed of nothing else but a pair of symmetrical eyebrows could easily express his desires or his emotions, no matter how complicated these might be. Highly arched brows are said to denote vivacity and brilliancy, but not the power of profundity that are allied to the more level kind. Regularly curved eyebrows and energy on the part of their possessors, while the contrary development indicates delicacy, refinement or merely weakness, which is hardly a satisfying diagnosis. A lack of eyebrows is not considered a sign of mental strength.

This is of gives roun for three rows of plants. In the picture, which was photographed in columns of The Journal of Commerce and has written 44 annual Christmas the early spring, the beds in the grass The eyebrows and the eyelids are on terms of close intimacy, and the form of the former is connected with the open-ing of the latter. Only in the romantic novel are black eyes to be found. By those who have studied the question deeply four primary shades of color are recognized. These are brown, green, blue and gray, and each of these has It is considered a somewhat singular fact that the rarest of all noses is that found in the middle of the face, and taking 100 noses at random one will not find on on an average more than three in which the bridge of the nose descends perpendicularly from a straight line drawn exactly between the eyes. A well proportioned nose, according to most au-thorities, should take up one-third of the profile, measured from the commenceent of the hair to the tip of the chin. Napoleon used to say that a long nose headed club in London should have been that whose members were elected for the length of their noses, the chairman hav-ing the longest nose and the hall porter none. A long nose is generally considered the mental superior of a short one.

Hogarth classified noses as angular,
aquiline or Roman, parrot beak, bulbous or bottle, straight or Grecian, turned up and snub. Other kinds, which may be mixed and broken. An unduly red nose does not necessarily indicate that the wearer is a toper. It may be due to tight lacing, indigestion or emotionality tight lacing, indigestion or emotionality of temperament. There are also other ways of explaining the trouble. The smile is purely human, as brutes are unable to elevate or depress the corners of the mouth as a means of expression. As is the case with almost every other feature of the face, physiognomists are found who claim that the lips are of all features the most susceptible of action and the most direct indices of the feeling. These champions of the mouth maintain that every shade of feeling can be described by the lips with more facility than by any other feature.

After Due Consideration.

In Illinois there is an old law on the statute books to the effect that in criminal cases the jury is "judge of the law as well as the facts." Though not often quoted, once in awhile a lawyer with quoted, once in awnie a lawyer with a desperate case makes use of it. In one case the judge instructed the jury that it was to judge the law as well as the facts, but added that it was not to judge of the law unless it was fully satisfied that it knew more law than the judge. An outrageous verdict was brought in, contrary to all instructions of the court, who felt called upon to rebuke the jury.

At last one old fariner arose.
"Jedge," said he, "weren't we to jedge the law as well as the facts?" "Certainly," was the response, "but I told you not to judge the law unless you were clearly satisfied that you knew the law better than I did."

"Well, jedge," answered the farmer as he shifted his quid, "we considered that p'int."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A CITY GARDEN.

A New Yorker with a love for flow ers, but without experience, is so pleased with the results of his amateur garden photographed. The description in Gardening runs somewhat as follows:

The Wall Flower For Garden and Window. No outdoor plant has given greater satisfaction, writes one correspondent of American Gardening, for a window plant in winter than the wall flower. A plant rooted from a slip grew and blossomed all summer in the border and in late fall was potted and brought into the sitting room. It never wilted, but was one mass of blossoms all winter. It has had the same treatment every spring and fall since and is never out of bloom summer or winter.

It roots readily from slips and will stand extremes of temperature better than any house plant, but requires a great deal of water. Its growth will not be checked when lifted, even when in full bloom, if taken into a dark room added or not according to taste, are for a few days and given plenty of water. In front Mr. Emmet had a little lake constructed, fed by a brook which runs from an adjacent ravine, and on this he placed a gondola imported from Venice regardless of expense. At the entrance of the grounds is a lodge in the English style. To the right of the house is a stately windmill, and to the rear is a fine barn of a composite architecture fairly barn of a composite architecture fairly rivaling that of the house. Having fixed all this and several other things of an eccentric nature, Mr. Emmet died, and his widow offered the place to Governor Hill at a price which experts told him was a bargain. He bought it and em-ployed Isaac G. Perry, commissioner of the Albany capitol, to draw up plans for renovating and altering the house to suit nore modest tastes.

As it now is, it is to be the home of

As he has a very firm constitution, is a man of extraordinary temper ate habits and does not allow politics of business to seriously "rattie" him, the chances are that the Hill home will be a political Mecca for many and many a year, far into the twentieth century perbass. The Van Rensselaers constructed a nne boulevard along the ridge, and the residence stands about 500 feet west of this, with a fine macadamized road leading up to it. Interiorly the house abounds in three cornered rooms and other Emmet eddities, but is a delightful place to live in for all that.

The new residence which Senator Fassett is building is a much less dazzling affair, but has one great advantage over Governor Hill's, in that it will hold a charming wife and daughter and a squad of lively and growing boys. The estate comprises 30 acres of the Chemung valley just north of Elmira, in which there is a little hill, and on that the new residence stands. It will be a large building—100 by 100 feet in the clear outline—and somewhat in the colonial style. The first story is of white Ohio limestone, rough faced; the second and third of brick and shingles, and all the verandas will be 13 feet wide.
