Letters and Canned Peas.
An original sort of dish is made by combining lettuce with canned peas. Take the heart of the lettuce leaves and chop them. Drain all the liquid from a can of peas and then wash the peas in cold water. Put them into a saucepan with the chopped lettuce, add two teaspoons of sugar and a few mint leaves finely minced. Throw put in two small slices of cold ham, one tablespoon of butter and two tablespoons of water and pepper to taste. Let the whole simmer slowly until the peas are tender. Remove the pieces of ham and add one cup of cream. Let this stew for a moment longer, then serve.

Summer Resorts.
To the mountains our people in increasing numbers yearly look for those days of relaxation and recreation necessary to maintain the human machine in fair working condition. The languorous sloth of the season proves very seductive while it lasts, but many have decided that the annual outing should provide not only radical change of air and surroundings, but also such stimulation of flagging energies as will provide brain and vigor for the return to labor. For this they urge the mountain cities and ramble the balance of the month in the clear and unadulterated mountain air. In this direction the... affords a wealth of attractions. The entire line of road from Ashland to Redding is studded with charming and accessible hotels and camps, where are cheer and comfort and healing at reasonable cost, where you can hunt, fish, ride, loaf, or play with equal facility. Or if you look for healing waters, none better can be found, hot or cold, than the springs at Ashland, Colston, Anderson, Bartlett, Byron and Paso Robles. Before visiting Europe, the people of the northwest should see the glories of Yosemite valley, and the wondrous groves of Mariposa and Calaveras; the Parisians are likely to make inquiries concerning these attractive resorts. Send to C. H. Markham, general passenger agent, Portland, for new booklets on Castle Crag, Shasta springs, McCloud river, Yosemite and excursion rates thereto.

Frigate Birds.
The frigate bird surpasses all others in its powers of flight, inasmuch as, except at the breeding season, it seldom visits the land and is never seen to swim or rest on the waters. An American naturalist, Mr. Lancaster, who spent several years in studying the habits of this and other birds, states that the frigate bird can live in the air for a week at a time, night and day, without once perching or resting. He found these birds able with ease to go 100 miles an hour. The albatross has followed the course of a ship for several days without being known to take any rest. The swiftness of the bird which is almost continually on the wing and never settles on the ground or on trees.

More Stories.
"Harry" exclaimed the little boy's mother, "if you don't stop pulling that cat's tail I will pull your hair and give you a chance to see how you like it yourself."
Harry ceased for a moment and then said:
"Ma, please give me a quarter."
"What for?"
"I want to get my hair cut."

Kaffir Corn.
A variety of Kaffir corn which much has been heard of late is black hulled white Kaffir. The Kansas station recommends this and the red

VARIETIES OF KAFFIR CORN.
Kaffir and says: "For seven years we raised the red. The black hulled white was then tested, and from 1893 to 1898 the two varieties were grown side by side, the red giving an average yearly yield of 37 bushels per acre and the black hulled white 43 bushels per acre. Kaffir corn heads very considerably in form and compactness. We prefer seed from long, closely compacted heads. Kaffir corn is a warm weather plant, makes a slow early growth and should not be planted until the ground becomes warm. We usually plant immediately after corn planting is completed.

PARAFFINE WAX
Don't let the top of your feet and your hands get the old-fashioned way, scuffed and chapped by the dry, winter wind. Absolutely sure way - by a thin coating of pure, refined Paraffine Wax. Has no taste or odor. Proof. Easily applied. Used in a dozen other ways about the house. Full directions with each tin. Sold everywhere. Made by STANDARD OIL CO.

BALD
Without help, a bald spot never grows smaller. It keeps spreading, until at last your friends say, "How bald he is getting."

Not easy to cure an old baldness, but easy to stop the first thinning, easy to check the first falling out. Used in time, baldness is made impossible with -
AYER'S Hair Vigor

It stops falling, promotes growth, and takes out all dandruff. It always restores color to faded or gray hair, all the dark, rich color of early life. You may depend upon it every time. It brings health to the hair.

Write the Doctor.
If you do not obtain all the benefits you expect from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. Address, Dr. J. C. Lowell, Mass.

The Old Maid
"Auntie, you promised me that when I was 18 you would tell me why you never married. I am 18 today."
"Very well, dear," I was just about your age when I "came out," and for months past I had looked forward to a London season and thought my first ball would never come. But the much looked for night came at last, and when dressed and ready to start, I thought it the happiest moment of my life, but it was nothing to what followed. The flowers, the music, the lights, the bright dresses and the gay people wandering hither and thither - all dazzled me and put me in mind of fairyland. I did not put partners and danced till the small hours of the morning. Every one said I had been a success, but I paid little attention to any of their remarks. I had enjoyed myself wildly. What more could I want to make me happy? I was very young.

"Soon after I met Mr. G. I remember it was almost my first dinner party, and, having sufficiently recovered myself from a fit of shyness, I looked round at my next door neighbor, and there, on my left, were two blue eyes laughing at me. He must have noticed my shyness, I fancied, and, with the pride of youth, I deeply resented it. After that I found the blue eyes nearly always smiling when I looked at it, and I got to love that smile, and even that evening I realized that only foolish 18 could take offense at such a trifle, so we laughed and made friends. All through dinner he talked to me a good deal, and I forgot my shyness and became communicative.

"After that evening we met frequently, danced together, rode together - in fact, hardly a day passed without our meeting, till at last I began to look for him, whether in the park or at a ball or concert. At that time life was brimming over with happiness. I had no very definite idea of the future, and the prospect of it, as it were, was almost blank. I was so young that I preferred not thinking of a change of any sort.

"The first spot on my happiness was at one ball, where I had expected to find Mr. G., and, though I was not enjoying things a bit, I did not want to come away. Perversity of human nature! And only in the carriage did I confess to myself that I had staid on in the hope of his turning up late, and I got to love that smile, and even that evening I realized that only foolish 18 could take offense at such a trifle, so we laughed and made friends. All through dinner he talked to me a good deal, and I forgot my shyness and became communicative.

"Could his presence make any difference to my enjoyment? At first I laughed at the idea, but soon found it was not to be laughed at. Where he was, there my enjoyment was complete, but where he was not I seldom cared to stay. Naturally people began to talk about us, and as is the way of the world, speculated as to what would come of it. If it would be a good thing or not. Well, let them talk. What cared I? I was so certain he loved me that I smiled when people who knew to catch him for her daughter. Poor Alice Dallas! Why, he never so much as looked at her when I was near! How soon was pride to have a fall!

the long months that rainwater I remembered him as I saw him last, waving his handkerchief from the carriage window. "Then one day I heard he was engaged to Alice Dallas. At first I would not believe it, but when belief was forced upon me my grief knew no bounds. Till that day I hardly realized how fond I had grown of G., and the prospect of a long life without him appalled me. I cried as if my heart would break, and then pride came to my rescue. Full of courage and firm resolve, I took up the thread of my daily life and hoped not only to hide my feelings, but to still the dull, aching pain by plunging wildly into reckless excitement. It was all very well for a bit, but the reaction was bound to come, and I discovered that I must try some other remedy.

"We met several times after the engagement was announced - as friends - and I talked and laughed as in the old days, save perhaps for a touch of bitterness, which then I had never known, and the sound of my voice seemed hollow and unreal, perhaps because tears were so near the surface. Then came the wedding and subsequent congratulations, and I was among the first to offer mine, and was it fancy that I thought the bridegroom looked at me a little wistfully and was hardly as radiant as the occasion warranted? But, then, no one thought it was a love match! Had not Alice herself given out that she did not care for him? And he? Well, then, why had he taken this step?

"Miss Dancy paused, and in the now fast gathering darkness Miriam could discern a silent tear, while she herself was not unmoved. "Dance," she said, "but this doesn't think they ever forgot?" "I don't think they ever forgot," but this time she was suffering from the better for its mark. When I found that excitement could not heal my wound, I began, in a small way, to try to find some work to do, even if it were only helping those who were suffering from the same. And when the first feeling of blank and utter loneliness had worn off I was able to settle to more regular occupation.

"Miriam was silent; then slowly, as if touching on an almost sacred subject, "Auntie, is he - are they alive?" she asked. "Yes, dear."
"And was there some mistake?"
"That, dear, I never now think of. Only One knows, but some day we, too, shall see face to face." - Exchange.

His Idea of Brutus.
A well known dramatic reader was making a tour of the west, and one evening he read "Julius Caesar" to an audience which received it with evident delight. At all events, at the end of the evening they all insisted on shaking hands with their entertainer. Finally it came the turn of the local schoolmaster who stepped up with that look of triumph which betokens the appropriate remark to come. "Ah, sir," he said, "while you were reading I could just see Brutus standing there in his flowing gown of purple, trimmed with the royal ermine."

The Convivial Bannister.
Charles Bannister made his first appearance in London in a piece called the "Orators" in Mar. 1792. In this he gave musical imitations, but the performances taking place in the mornings his convivial habits overnight precluded him from shining as he had done. A fact which was noticed by Foote, the manager. To this Bannister replied, "I knew it would be so: I am all right at night, but neither I nor my voice can get up in the morning."
He was invariably in difficulties, on the death of Sir Theodosius Roughton, the topic of the hour in 1781, as he was said to have been poisoned by laural water. Bannister said: "Pooh! Don't tell me of your laural water; I fear none but a bay leaf" (balfif).
Once, when returning from Epsom to town in a gig, accompanied by a friend, they were unable to pay the toll at Kensington gate, and the man would not let them pass. Bannister immediately offered to sing a song and struck up "The Tempest of War." His voice was heard afar, the gate being soon thronged by voters returning from Brentford, who cheered his effort, and the turnpike man, calling him a noble fellow, expressed his willingness to pay "50 tolls for him at any gate."

Tremulous Hands.
When the nervous system is weakened, the body generally shows the symptom of tremulousness in some of its members. The hands shake, the lips twitch at the corners, or the eyelids quiver involuntarily. Such a condition calls for medicine which feeds the nerves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, acting directly on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, has a wonderful influence in restoring nervous force. It quiets the nerves, not by drugging them into stupor but by feeding them into strength. The "Discovery" has restored the health of thousands of those who were utterly hopeless, giving them back natural appetite, physical vigor, healthful sleep and mental strength. There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery" and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

David Duggins, Esq., of Jones, Ohio Co., Kentucky, writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I think I had nervous or general debility of some years' duration. I took three bottles of the 'Discovery.' During the time I was taking it my sleep became more refreshing and I gained fifteen pounds weight and also gained strength every day."

Free, on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only, Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, 1208 pages. Send 21 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers, or 31 stamps in cloth binding to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.
A WEE CYCLIST.

A Little New York Girl Who is Said to Be the Smallest Rider.
Ruth Worland, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Worland of this city, is 3 1/2 years old and is said to ride the smallest bicycle ever made. She may be seen every fine day on Riverside drive mounted on her tiny wheel. The bicycle has a 9 1/2 inch frame, 13 inch wheels and weighs only 7 pounds 3 ounces. The riding costume worn by Ruth on these trips consists of white cashmere bloomers, a full white cashmere dress trimmed at the yoke with baby blue ribbon bows and streamers and regulation bicycle shoes reaching to the knees. A little toboggan cap of pale blue silk completes her suit, and on cold days she wears a black velvet coat.

The little girl knows how to take care of her wheel and is an expert rider. She can sit sideways on the saddle and pedal with one foot and do many other difficult tricks. She can ride six miles an hour and often goes long distances. At the bicycle show held last year at the Grand Central Palace the first prize, a gold medal, was given to her as the smallest bicycle rider in the world. - New York Tribune.

Pussy Sees the Doctor.
To learned Dr. Cattle came
A patient plump and sleek,
Said he: "I have a pain just here,
And some relief I seek."

"I also ought to say that I'm
A prey to nervous fears -
My legs go by my side, that I have Strange noises in my ears."
"My head is hot and aching, too;
My breathing isn't free" -
"Indeed!" the doctor said. "You don't Seem short of breath to me!"
"Now, show me, please, your tongue at once,
I haven't time to waste."
The patient, feeling rather subdued,
Put out his tongue in haste.

"Hem! Yes! You eat too many mice;
You sleep too near the fire -
Be habits both - and so a pill
And action you'll require."
"Here's the pill, and here's the draft,"
The doctor said. "Good day!"
The patient, who'd have liked to talk,
Had then to tuck away.

The Car Tricked.
Peter the Great was once very neatly caught in a trap by a jester attached to the court. The jester was noted for his cleverness in getting himself and his friends out of difficulties. It happened one day that a cousin of his had incurred the czar's displeasure and was about to be executed. The jester therefore presented himself before his imperial master to beg for a reprieve. On seeing him approach the czar, divining his errand, cried: "It is no good to come here. I swear I will not grant what you are going to ask." Immediately the jester went down on his knees, saying, "I beseech your imperial brightness to put that scamp cousin of mine to death." The czar, thus caught in his own trap, could only laugh and pardon the condemned man.
