W. J. Bryan and his chief advisers have issued to democrats throughout the United States a recommendation to meet in their respective communities during the afternoon or evening of September 1st to form city or precinct organizations to fight against the present tendencies of the republican party. Whoever believes in the principles espoused by the Kansas city platform can and should become members of such clubs. As the days go by Mr. Bryan is becoming constantly more popular with the masses and multiplied thousands have deserted the administration banner to train under that upheld by him.

Mr. Bryan's Talent.

There are few public men in the country who possess Mr. Bryan's talent for presentation of principles and ideas in a way that will make them so plain and intelligible to the masses of the people. He has a wonderful faculty for impressing his convictions on other people. This is fully proven in the way he has maintained his position as a political leader and teacher for the last four years. The Republicans cannot be so short sighted as to underestimate this great power of the Democratic standard-bearer. They must know that Mr. Bryan will make out of imperialism all that can be vulged from an issue of such doubtful popularity. With the aid of a strong and logical question with which to go before the country, it would be interesting to contemplate Mr. Bryan's achievements as a vote getter.—Kansas City Star.

A visit to the prune orchards around Dallas would present a very attractive view, most of the trees being well laden with fine fruit.

Educational.

A force of carpenters are rushing the new public school building fast as possible. Day by day the structure becomes more imposing and its merits as a school house become more evident. In years past no one cared to show our school building to strangers but after this all can point to it with pride. The brick academy is to be repaired and will be given a strong coating of cement. The outside work on the college dormitory is all finished, and the lower rooms have been papered and those up stairs plastered, and everything will be ready for the opening of school, September 17th. On account of hop and fruit gathering but few country schools will open until toward the first of October.

THRESHERS OUT NORTH.

On Tuesday, accompanied by Miss Lillian Zander, a Portland teacher, we made a round of about thirty miles through the farming region in the northern part of the county. She knew all about grain sowing in her native country, New Zealand, and wanted to see how they such things in Oregon. Taking out the Salt creek road, the piles of fresh straw to the right and to the left showed that the threshers had been along. The Rose outfit was hanging away in a big field on the Perrydale road this side of the Richmond place, but was off our route. The Baxter, Morrison & Riggs machine was laid up waiting on the spring grain. Mr. Baxter told us that wheat had been turning out from six to 17 bushels and oats from 15 to 25. Among the employes are Perry Caldwell, engineer, Ed. Webb waterman, Wesley Morrison roustabout, Misses Jessie Gillam and Lillie Baxter cooks. The feeding is done by Steve Braly and Ralph Riggs, the band cutting by Mark Sears and Young Syron, and the sack sewing by Andrew James, Robert Sears having attended to the filling of the same. Out in the field as pitchers are Joe Polit, Bert Conner, Scott Wallace and Mr. Webb, the bundle conveyers being Pete Bulber, Lowman Conner, Otto Myr, Mr. Webb and Mr. Bulber. They were to resume their work Wednesday on the John Riggs farm and would soon finish. The poor outputs were evident ly not the results of bad farming, as old land and new land, rich soil and inferior soil, had panned out about alike. All sorts of supposed reasons for the shortage of the crop were given. Pasturage and gardens showed lack of moisture. The acreage of grain south of Ballston is quite large, and at the usual rate of yield would have turned out from two to three times as much as the farmers are getting this season. We jogged along through Ballston, seeing no machine in operation anywhere, but at the home of Kenneth Campbell a crew of threshers were making things fly around the machine of Conner, Focht & Gregg, in charge of N. M. Conner. There is evidently a spirit of confidence between the owners of the machine and the farmers in that section, for as yet it has not been decided what will be paid for threshing. At the end of the season's run the output and the cost will be figured up and each one will pay what is reasonable. Except as a matter of accommodation the machine would not have been run during this season. They have a self feeding apparatus which does good work and saves the employment of two feeders and two band cutters, but they have what we have nowhere else found, a man to pick up the scatterings. They report a wheat yield of from 8 to 15 bushels and that oats went from 10 to 25. Mr. Gregg had the best turn out of wheat and Mr. Conner of oats. Their best days threshing had been 1,800 bushels of oats. These eight teamsters were drawing in the bundles: Willie May, Avery Adkins, Fred Olmsted, Roy Stockton, Taylor Syron, Bert Ray, Roy Gregg and Floyd Conner, their pitchers being Jake Hinshaw, John Mayfield, Thomas Short and Thomas Woodley, Henry Butler and Henry Clark were doing the sack sewing and the threshed straw was being put out of the way by Elmer Newbill and Alton Conner with their two noble steeds, Dick Clansfield made it his business to keep the concern supplied with water and it kept W. W. Stockton busy providing grub for the cooks, Mrs. Woodley and her daughter, Miss Pearl Adkins, who said that none of their boarders complained of poor appetites. At the home of Mr. Campbell and wife partook of an excellent dinner prepared by their daughter, Miss Minnie. It is an industrious family and they are supplied with all the comforts of life. Passing through Perrydale and McGee without seeing any signs of a thresher we found the Sam Stewart outfit at the Jeffries place, north of Bethel. Everything was moving like clock work. Their poorest days run had been 1,050 bushels and the best 2,200. Wheat had varied between 15 and 16 bushels and oats between 15 and 25 bushels. Mr. Stewart said it cost him $75 a day to run, that he charged 4 and 5 cents, and that if in any case the output was not enough to at least pay expenses, the farmer had to make up that amount. In nearly every instance there had been a small profit. Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Holmes, of Amity, are doing the cooking, while Ralph Williams hauls the water and John Bewley does the engineering. After the bands were cut by John Crowley and Earl Ott, the McCallies were packed in by J. W. Pratt and Marshall Davis, and the sacking, sewing and bucking was performed by Fred Emmett, Alvin Post and Bert Webb. Boyd Shields and Glenn Stewart managed to keep the straw bucked away. Al. Athey, Hal. Reese, Jim Crowley and Walter Pratt tossed up the sheaves of grain to the haulers, Sil Hoffman, Sam Munkers, Henry Lomb, Wm. McKee, Bert Shields, Claude Tucker and John Smith. Everything around the concern was business from the work go, there being no time for any foolishness. The Buttrick machine was at John McKee's, some distance north, but it was getting late and we had to turn toward home. The Williamson & Edgar machine had just moved from the crop of W. E. Clark to that of M. F. White. They reported wheat as yielding from eight to twenty bushels and oats from twelve to twenty five and that their seasons run would soon be over. Mrs. Lizzie Edgar and Miss Nellie Williamson had not yet arrived with their cook wagon consequently we can make no exact report as to the quality of their pies and cakes, but we remember having gotten something good to eat at their wagon two or three summers ago. Jesse Williamson serves as engineer, the feeding being done by Roy and Frank McMurphy, after Will Kastner and Van Coats whack the bundle fastenings, Chas. Allen and Emmett McSherry attend to the sacks and the whipped straw is taken out of the way by Chester Allen and Ralph Hubbard. G. Wise, Sam Smithson, Wm. Dawson and Will Tillotson were gracefully tossing up the golden sheaves for Milt Graham, Seth White, Seth Smith, Willard Hughes, Stanley Tucker and Willie Simonton to take to the separator. There is nothing in the seasons output of grain to make farmers light hearted, but we heard none of them will work harder to overcome their bad luck.
