THE SUBSIDY GRABBERS' TRICK.

The ship subsidy bill introduced in December, 1898, contained a provision that subsidies should be granted to foreign built ships under construction for American citizens or corporations where copies of the contract were filed with the secretary of the treasury prior to Feb. 1, 1899. This bill, offered at the short session of the last congress, did not pass. Probably nobody seriously expected that it would pass. Nevertheless, so as to be on the safe side, the president of the International Navigation company, prior to the date mentioned, handed to the treasury official copies of contracts for the construction of four foreign built vessels. The same thing was done by a few other persons. There was no law requiring or authorizing these officials to receive formally such documents and make them a part of the files of the department. They appear, however, to have done so.

The ship subsidy bill which was introduced in the present congress in December, 1899, contained no provision about filing contracts with the secretary of the treasury. It contemplated the granting of subsidies to all foreign built ships owned by Americans which were contracted for prior to Jan. 1, 1900. This covered the vessels the contracts for which had been filed with the secretary of the treasury in February, 1899, and should have been satisfactory to the persons concerned. Evidently it was not, for the amendments to the bill, reported last year by the committee on commerce of the senate, confine subsidies to such foreign built ships as were engaged in business on Feb. 1, 1899, and to ships then under construction where copies of the contracts had been filed, on or before that date, with the secretary of the treasury. These changes in the bill must have been inspired by the men who were smart enough to file contracts two years ago. They wished to increase their share of the $2,000,000 per annum to be given for subsidy purposes by freezing out other American owners of foreign built ships acquired or contracted for subsequent to Feb. 1, 1899.

The committee on commerce was hoodwinked by these subsidy grabbers who had in mind their own interests and not the development of an American merchant marine. It is not strange that when these facts were brought out in the senate ten Republican senators, the majority of them from the states of the middle west, broke away from their colleagues. They, with Senator Allison at their head, practically served notice upon the supporters of the ship subsidy bill that they no longer considered it a party measure.

Nor is it, it is manifestly a tainted measure for the special benefit of certain rapacious corporations which are scheming to secure the lion's share of the subsidies it is proposed to vote ostensibly "to promote the commerce and increase the foreign trade of the United States." - Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

Who is Back of the Subsidy Bill?
The bill has no genuine popular support. There is no real popular demand for it, never has been and never will be. It does not appeal even to the selfish interests of any large class. When it was in the senate in the last session, it was so strongly opposed by the representatives of organized labor and by farmers' organizations throughout the west and south especially that it was abandoned for fear of the effect on the approaching presidential and congressional elections. That opposition has never been appeased, but it is now thought safe to ignore it. The one class that could be relied on to support the measure if it pretended that it will accomplish as the shippers of the United States, who are interested in obtaining as full and cheap service on the

MEN AND MACHINES.

AN ARRANGING OF THE PRESENT SOCIAL SYSTEM.

The late Robert G. Ingersoll's Declaration That Cannibalism is the Most Merciful Form in Which Man Has Lived Upon His Fellow Man. The following, written by the late Robert G. Ingersoll a few years ago, makes interesting reading today: Invention has filled the world with competitors not only of labor, but of mechanics—mechanics of the highest skill. Today the ordinary laborer is for the most part a cog in a wheel. He works with the tireless; he feels the unspinnable. When the monster stops, the man is out of employment, out of bread. He has not saved anything. The machine that he fed was not feeding him—the invention was not for his benefit.

The other day I heard a man say that it was impossible for thousands of good mechanics to get employment and that, in his judgment, the government ought to furnish work for the people. A few minutes after I heard another say that he was selling a patent for cutting out clothes, that one of the machines could do the work of 20 tailors, that only the week before he had sold two to a great house in New York and that 40 cutters had been discharged. On every side men are being discharged, and machines are being invented to take their places. When the great factory shuts down, the workers who inhabit it and gave it life, as thoughts do the brain, go away, and it stands there like an empty skull. A few workmen by force of habit gather about the closed doors and broken windows and talk about distress, the price of food and the coming winter. They are convinced that they have not had their share of what their labor created. They feel certain that the machines inside were not their friends. They look at the mansion of the employer and think of the place where they live. They have saved nothing—nothing but themselves. The employer seems to have enough. Even when employers fail, when they become bankrupt, they are far better off than the laborers ever were. Their worst is better than the toilers' best.

The capitalist comes forward with his specific. He tells the workman that he must be economical—and yet under the present system, economy would lessen wages. Under the great law of supply and demand, every saving, frugal, self denying workman is unconsciously doing what he can to reduce the compensation of himself and his fellows. The slaves who did not wish to run away helped fasten chains on those who did. So the saving mechanic is a certificate that the wages are high enough. Does the great law demand that every worker should live on the least possible amount of bread? Is it his fate to work one day that he may get enough food to be able to work another? Is that to be his hope, that and—death?

Capital has always claimed, and still claims, the right to combine. Manufacturers meet and determine prices, even in spite of the great law of supply and demand. Have the laborers the same right to consult and combine? The rich meet in the bank, clubhouse or parlor. Workingmen, when they combine, gather in the street. All the organized forces of society are against them. Capital has the army and navy, the legislature, the judicial and executive departments. When the rich combine it is for the purpose of "working ideas." When the poor combine it is a "conspiracy." If they defend themselves it is "treason." How is it

"Crying for the Moon"
Has become a proverbial phrase to express the utter futility of mere desire. There are a great many people who think it is as useless to hope for health as to cry for the moon. They have tried many medicines and many doctors, but all in vain. A great many helpless men and women have been cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; people with obstinate coughs, bleeding lungs, night sweats and other symptoms of disease which if neglected or unskillfully treated find a fatal termination in consumption. The Golden Medical Discovery has a wonderful healing power. It increases the nutrition of the body, and so gives strength to throw off disease. It cleanses the blood from poisonous impurities and enriches it with the red corpuscles of health. It is not a stimulant, but a strength giving medicine. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic. Sometimes the extra profit paid by inferior medicines tempts the dealer to offer a substitute as "just as good" as "Discovery." If you are convinced that "Discovery" will cure you accept nothing else. "I was in poor health when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mr. Elmer Lawler, of Volusia, Florida. "I had a severe cold, my stomach, kidney, heart, and lung troubles. Was not able to do any work. I had a severe cough and hemorrhaging of the lungs, but after using your medicine a while I commenced to gain in strength and my coughing stopped right away. Took about six bottles of the Golden Medical Discovery. Thank you, and I feel like spring I had Grippe, and I settled on my lungs, leaving me with a severe cough. I had the doctor, but he didn't seem to help me any, so I commenced your medicine again and took three or four bottles of the 'Discovery' and two vials of Dr. Farrow's Peppermint Cure, and that straightened me up. I feel like a different person. Gladly recommend your medicine to all sufferers, for I know it cured me."

that the rich control the departments of the government? In this country the political power is equally divided among men. There are certainly more poor than rich. Why should the rich control? Why should not the laborers combine for the purpose of controlling the executive, the legislative and judicial departments? Will they ever find how powerful they are? A cry comes from the oppressed, the hungry, from the downtrodden, from the unfortunate, from the despised, from the men who despair, and from women who weep. There are times when mendicants become revolutionists—when a rag becomes a banner, under the noblest and bravest battle for the right.

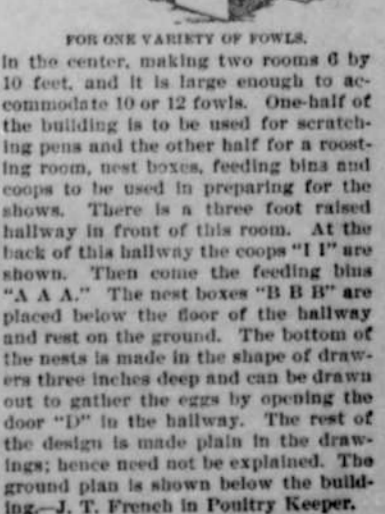

How are we to settle the unequal contest between man and machine? Will the machine go into partnership with the laborer? Can these forces of nature be controlled for the benefit of her suffering children? Will extravagance keep pace with ingenuity? Will workmen become intelligent enough and strong enough to become the owners of machines? Will these giants, these Titans, shorten or lengthen the hours of labor? Will they give leisure to the industrious, or will they make the rich richer and the poor poorer? Is man involved in the "general scheme" of things? Is there no pity, no mercy? Can man become intelligent enough to be generous, to be just; or does the same law or fact control him that controls the animal or vegetable world? The great oak steals the sunlight from the small trees, the strong animals devour the weak—everything at the mercy of beak, claw, and hoof, and tooth—of hand and eye, of brain and greed—inequality, injustice everywhere. The poor horse standing in the street with his dry, overworked, overwhipped and underfed, when he sees other horses groomed like mirrors, glittering with gold and silver, scorching with proud feet the very earth, probably indulges in the usual socialist reflections, that this same horse, worn out and old, deserted by its master, turned into the dusty road, leans his head on the topmost rail, looks at donkeys in a field of clover and feels like a nihilist.

THE KIDNAPERS.
Had the Cuddey kidnaping been shown on the stage people would have declared that it was too unreal to be believed.—Philadelphia Inquirer.
The kidnapers of young Cuddey should be captured at all costs, not because the boy was the son of a millionaire, but in order to prevent the future kidnaping of any child, rich or poor.—Pittsburg Press.

Unfortunately Nebraska has no statute against kidnaping, and the law against child stealing applies only to children under 10 years of age. That would not fit this case, as young Cuddey was 10 years old.—Hochester Democrat.
The kidnaping of young Cuddey is a matter which calls attention to an exceedingly serious condition of affairs. For some reason or another criminals have become emboldened, and crime of late is distinguished for unusual and shocking brutality.—Baltimore American.

House For City Lot.
The accompanying design is for a person with little room who wishes to keep but an variety of fowls. The size of the building is 10 by 12 feet, divided

FOR ONE VARIETY OF FOWLS.
In the center, making two rooms 6 by 10 feet, and it is large enough to accommodate 10 or 12 fowls. One-half of the building is to be used for scratching pens and the other half for a roosting room, nest boxes, feeding bins and coops to be used in preparing for the shows. There is a three foot raised hallway in front of this room. At the back of this hallway the coops "I" are shown. Then come the feeding bins "A A A." The nest boxes "B B B" are placed below the floor of the hallway and rest on the ground. The bottom of the nests is made in the shape of drawers three inches deep and can be drawn out to gather the eggs by opening the door "D" in the hallway. The rest of the design is made plain in the drawings; hence need not be explained. The ground plan is shown below the building.—J. T. French in Poultry Keeper.
