THE SUBSIDY BILL

STRONG REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION DEVELOPED.

Senator Hanna Not Followed—The Subsidy Bill Too Much of a Steal For a Large Part of the Republican Party—The Chicago Tribune's Campaign of Republican Editors in Central Western States.

The Chicago Tribune has been making a canvass of the views of the editors of the leading newspapers of a number of the central western states. In a recent editorial the Tribune sums up the results as follows:

AGAINST THE SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

Of the Republican editors in Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin and Indiana who have been asked by the Tribune for their views concerning the ship subsidy bill a majority are opposed to that measure. Some disapprove of it because its chief beneficiaries will be corporations that need no government aid. Others do not believe it will benefit the least the producers of the middle west, though they will have to pay a part of the proposed subsidies. There are others who believe natural causes will build up the American merchant marine in the course of time and that a resort to subsidies is unnecessary.

It is the good fortune of the editors of papers printed in smaller towns to be tolerably well acquainted with their subscribers and their opinions. When one of these editors says "the people" are against a measure, he speaks advisedly so far as his constituency is concerned. He is not making a random guess. Therefore when a number of country editors express themselves in reference to the ship subsidy bill as do those whose opinions have been printed in the Tribune it means that behind them are a great many Republican village people and farmers who hold the same opinions.

The public sentiment of the Republican voters of the middle west concerning this ship subsidy legislation is not reflected accurately in the columns of newspapers which use the editorials and the plate matter of the national committee. This is a fact senators and representatives from that part of the country should bear in mind and escape the mortification and apprehension they will feel if they discover on returning home that they have defied public opinion in their states and districts.

The following quotations from other important Republican organs give some idea of the revolt Senator Hanna has stirred up by his attempt to put the ship subsidy bill through:

It has been made manifest during the session that the sentiment of the vast middle west and of a considerable proportion of all other parts of the country is unalterably opposed to the subsidy bill. Among those who are not actively opposed to it another very large proportion of the public is either apathetic or not fully informed as to the character and purpose of the measure. The active support of the bill comes from the interests to be benefited and from the handful of senators who have taken it upon themselves to endorse these interests with a rich annuity from out the public treasury.

The senatorial contest over the measure is thus fairly a contest of public sentiment against private interests, and the fact that the latter are so efficiently powerful to fight their battle on anything like equal terms is in itself unpleasantly suggestive of the extent to which private interests have gained influence in the senate.—Chicago Times-Herald (Ind. Rep.).

Senator Frye is probably correct when he says that the ship subsidy bill represents the "stupid judgment of the most experienced shipping men of this country put into legal form by the best counsel obtainable," but he has, unconsciously no doubt, given the whole ship away. The shipping men have had the best counsel obtainable to help them plan a raid on the United States treasury under the pretense that it is for the benefit of commerce. Why didn't the commerce think of it first then? But commerce isn't asking for this ship subsidy bill and it doesn't want it.

When the hair falls out, it is accompanied by mucous patches in the mouth, eruptions on the skin, sore throat, copper colored spots, swollen glands, aching muscles and bones, the disease is making rapid headway, and far worse symptoms will follow unless the blood is promptly and efficiently cleansed of this violent destructive poison. S. S. S. is the only safe and infallible cure for this disease, the only antidote for this specific poison. It cures the worst cases thoroughly and permanently. In the fall of 1900 I contracted blood poisoning. I tried three doctors, but did me no good; I was getting worse all the time; my hair came out, ulcers appeared in my throat and mouth; my body was almost covered with copper colored spots and offensive sores. I suffered severely from rheumatic pains in my shoulders and arms. My condition could have been no worse; only those afflicted can tell how I felt. I had lost all hope of ever being well again when I decided to try S. S. S., but must confess I had little faith left in any medicine. After taking the third bottle I noticed a change in my condition. This was truly encouraging, and I determined to give S. S. S. a thorough trial. From that time on the improvement was rapid. A month later I was free from all signs of the disease; the sores and ulcers healed and I was again free from all signs of the disorder; I have been strong and healthy ever since.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known. $1.00 is offered for proof that it contains a particle of mercury, potash or other mineral poison. Send for our free book on Blood Poison; it contains valuable information about this disease, with full directions for self treatment. We charge nothing for medical advice; cure yourself at home.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

that anybody is but a few of "the most experienced shipping men," whose first proposition was so rank and offensive that it has been necessary to prune it a good deal, but which still provides $10 benefit for a little coterie of four shipowners to $1 that it confers upon the public. The ship subsidy bill threatens the future success of the Republican party, and the quicker it is killed the better.—Minneapolis Journal.

A SHAMELESS SCHEME.

Advocates of the ship subsidy bill, with the greed characteristic of men in pursuit of loot and booty, are endeavoring to hide track everything else in congress with a view of rushing their scheme through. It tries the patience excessively when an open, barefaced graft and grab like this is attempted. Here is a bill manifestly drafted in the interest of a few individuals and corporations. Should it become a law it will take from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000 directly out of the pockets of the masses of the people and bestow the sum upon a few persons already swollen with wealth. Senator Hanna is wielding the power of the administration in the endeavor to force it through. ***

Examples like this have a deplorable effect on the country. They spread the idea that government is a game of grab and steal and teach the masses of the people to try their hand at it through confiscatory taxation.—Portland Oregonian.

The advocates of the ship subsidy bill have abandoned the attempt to force it through the senate. They are now trying to conciliate the opponents of the measure—so far, apparently, with small success. The bill seems to be doomed, and few Republicans in house or senate will shed tears if it prove to be so.

That the bill was drawn by the attorney of a great steamship company is admitted; that many of the proposed amendments emanate from the same source is not denied; that the measure was introduced in return for large campaign contributions in a general impression, if not a moral conviction, throughout the eastern states.

Under these circumstances the bill is justly regarded with suspicion. Prominent Republicans in congress decline to consider it a party measure. Whoever may have agreed with the shipping interests to introduce it in return for campaign contributions certainly had no authority to bind the Republican party to such a bargain. Whatever political debts he may owe, he cannot be permitted to pay them at the country's expense.

Many leading Republicans understand these facts and are resolved to prevent any attempt to deliver the goods in the case. If the bill should by any chance get through the senate, there are in the house many Republicans celebrated for party loyalty—yes, even for party servility—who stand ready to lead a party insurrection against it and to assist in voting it down.

The people desire any proper laws which will build up our mercantile marine, but the present subsidy bill is not of such laws. Its source is bad, its terms are bad, and some of the methods adopted to promote it are, at least, questionable.

The auspices under which the bill was introduced make it unpopular in the middle west from the outset. No prominent Republican newspaper hereabouts has been able to defend it. Among the people at large it has barely a handful of friends. Why not let it die?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

FALL TREE PLANTING

BEST TIME TO SET OUT THE DECIDUOUS VARIETY.

Care Should Be Taken That Only Good Specimens Be Planted—How the Roots Should Be Treated—Size of the Holes.

Fall is an excellent time to plant trees. By this time the deciduous trees, says The National Stockman, are just before the buds open out, as the leaves are remaining on all the time, are constantly transpiring moisture, and in order to supply this moisture the roots need to take hold of the ground and begin growth at once.

In the fall there is generally not so much pressure and hurry of other work as in the spring. And what is of more importance, the rains of fall and winter will settle the earth around the roots of the newly planted tree, so that growth can begin at the earliest moment in the spring.

The first thing, of course, is the trees. They should be obtained from a reliable source, for the buyer is wholly in the hands of the seller and cannot know what he has got for a number of years, when the trees, if they live, will come into bearing. And he should not be taken with cheap trees. They are a deception and a fraud. The first cost of a tree is a light matter compared with the planting, the care afterward and the waiting year after year until bearing begins. A poor tree is dear as a gift. The rule should be "first class trees at a fair price."

It should be understood that good, white holes should be prepared for the trees not less than three feet in width, better if four. As for the soil, the best should be selected, since an orchard is planned for a lifetime or longer.

CASTORIA. The Kind You Have Always Bought.

Before planting, the roots of the tree will need attention. They are always more or less mutilated in digging. Bruised and injured roots are to be cut off, and the broken ends of good roots—only the rugged ends—are to be cut off, with a clean, sloping cut on the underside, and in doing this every good root possible should be preserved, for the roots are the life of the tree.

In planting it takes two persons to do the work properly. The assistant is to make the soil fine with the back of the spade and shovel it in slowly while the planter holds the tree in its upright position, working the fine earth in among them with his hands and tramping well when all the roots are covered, so as to make the ground over and around them as firm and solid as possible. The perfection of planting consists in placing the roots in connection with the soil as nearly as possible in the same direction as that in which they were before removal and not slightly—one or two inches—deeper than the tree stood in the nursery. If the season is very dry, it will be a good plan to give each tree a bucketful or two of water when nearly done planting.

Planting should not be done too early—not before there are two or three sharp frosts to loosen the leaves, so they will come off easily. They must in no case be left on the trees, even for an hour after digging, as they carry off moisture rapidly, and the trees would soon be wilted, and to strip off the leaves by hand before their office is completed is not good. The planting may continue as long as the soil works well (is not wet and sticky) and the ground not frozen.

After planting, and before winter sets in, a small mound of earth—earth without any mixture of straw or grass—is to be raised around each tree. This should be about a foot in height and 18 inches in diameter at the base. The mound protects the tree from the depredations of ground mice, which often ruin young trees by gnawing the bark, and, in addition, holds the tree steady in the storms of winter. This should never be neglected. In spring it is to be leveled down.

Envy. A worthy old colored woman of Atchison, who is very religious, was recently asked, "When you go to heaven, how are you going to fix the old prejudice between the whites and blacks?" The old woman thought awhile and replied, "They ain't going to be no whites there."—Atchison Globe.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. Things of great value are always selected by counterfeiters for imitation, notably the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which has many imitators but no equals for indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, nervousness and general debility. The Bitters sets things right in the stomach, and when the stomach is in good order, it makes good blood and plenty of it. In this manner the Bitters get at the seat of strength and vitality, and restore vigor to the weak and debilitated. Beware of counterfeiters when buying.

Southern California.

Notable among the pleasures afforded by the Shasta route is the winter trip to Southern California and Arizona. Renewed acquaintance with this section will ever develop fresh points of interest and added sources of enjoyment under the sunny sky, the variety of its industries, its prolific vegetation and among its numberless resorts of mountain, shore, valley and plain. The two daily Shasta trains from Portland to California have been recently equipped with the most approved pattern of standard and tourist sleeping cars, but the low rates of fare will still continue in effect. Illustrated guides to the winter resorts of California and Arizona may be had on application to C. H. Markham, G. P. A., Portland, Oregon.

BAD COLDS.

Quinine ten years behind. Colds do not now have to be endured. Dynamic Tonicol, a powerful remedy, cures colds in an ordinary treatment into 12 hours, and about the worst of colds over night.

"It was the worst case of grip I ever had. A half dozen friends had sure cures. Still it hung on. I heard of the Dynamic Tonicol. To my amazement I found both cold and grip cured in an hour. I ordered and recommended them to the people."—Barney Bentley, ex-member congress and attorney, 61 Sacramento street, San Francisco. July 7, 1900.

"Winter colds have always been serious things to me. They are hard to stay for months. But the last winter, cured by Dynamic Tonicol, I have been free from colds and grip since. Both cold and grip disappeared in a couple of days. Nothing else does this for me."—Mrs. Emma L. Hellen, 112 New street, San Francisco. August 6, 1900.

"I live across the street from where Dynamic Tonicol is sold. I have seen it sold for years. I have tried it many times. It is a sure cure for colds and grip. I have recommended it to my friends and they have all been cured. I have seen it sold for years. I have tried it many times. It is a sure cure for colds and grip. A singular battle was witnessed recently in an English apary.

A hive of bees was besieged by a large swarm of wasps. The bees made valiant efforts to try to drive away their besiegers, and the wasps made furious assaults to drive out the bees. The battle raged for two days, at the end of which time the bees, exhausted by the fight, were taken possession of by the wasps.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phipps, of Poteau, Arkansas. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by A. K. Wilson.

Farewell of the Leaves.

Said the leaves upon the branches
One sunny autumn day:
"We've finished all our work, and now
We can no longer stay.
So our gowns of red and yellow
And our cheeks of solar brown
Must be worn before the frost comes
And we go rustling down."
"We've had a jolly summer,
With the birds that built their nests
Beside our sunny branches,
And the squirrels that were our guests,
But we cannot wait for winter.
And we do not care for snow.
We have had the sun and the rain,
We have had our clasp and gown."
