FIRE AT MONMOUTH.

On Sunday morning June 16th fire was discovered in Frank Fisher's book and stationery store. It became evi deut to each one as he arrived upon the ground that the six buildings the postoffice corner were doomed, the workers paid their attention saving the contents of the buildings All was saved in the postoffice excep the boxes, which were too securely fastened to be removed in the hurry and excitement. But little was save of Mr. Fisher's household goods, as he lived in the rooms over the postoffice The most of the valuable contents of the other houses were saved in a bad ly damaged condition. The hardest struggle was in saving Mr. Flynn's continuing their studies during the residence in the burned district. Nothing could have been done to save all that part of town south of the post office and east including the livery stable if the wind had been blowing.
