There came into the car over one of the blinds a slender sunbeam, which fell diagonally downward across the little fellow's dress, and when his eye fell upon this he reached down and carefully closed his hand over it and then raised his hand to his face and opened his fingers. But there wasn't any sunbeam there.

The passengers who saw this were as much interested in it all, in their way, as the small boy was in his, and presently they saw him try it again. Looking down, he saw the sunbeam still there, just where it had been before when he had tried to grasp it, and he made that effort again.

Concerning Good Roads.

In road building the object is to obtaln a roadway with a firm and unyielding surface, one that can stand wear of passing vehicles without disintegration, and it must also be waterproof, so that rains will run off into gutter instead of penetrating the surface. A gravelly soil needs less preparation than any other. Roads need not be over 15 feet wide, with 8 inches of cobblestone or broken lime-Dr. John followed, not half believing stone for foundation and a surface of finer stone as finish. The limestone used for a foundation should be cover-Nothing particular the mated with granite to secure best results. where necessary.

Does not depend on the start but on the finish. It's staying power which carries many a runner to victory. It's like that in business. Many a man starts off in the race for business success with a burst of speed which seems to assure victory. Presently be begins to falter and at last he falls and fails. The cause? ROADMAKING MACHINERY.

It Has Divested Highway Building of Many Difficulties.

Road building in many sections of the country has never got beyond the gravel wagon and the farmer's shovel. In most states the farmer "works out" In most states the farmer "works out" his road tax on a day that is most convenient to himself and when there is nothing that can be done on the farm. He runs a scraper up and down the highway, throwing the dirt in mounds, hauls a few londs of gravel, scatters it about promiscuously and the job is done for the year. It is this kind of "road building" which makes many "road building" which makes many country highways impassable for a good portion of the year.

In no department of mechanical in In no department of mechanical industry has greater progress been made iban in the perfection and manufaciure of roadmaking machinery. The use of this machinery under the direction of experts reduces road building in any kind of soil to a very simple proposition. A wider knowledge of modern roadmaking machinery among the agricultural classes would divest the problem of many apparent difficulties in the minds of those to whom legislatures must look for the initiative in this matter. this matter.

The Nick in the Lapel.

You who have been wearing conts and vests since childhood have perhaps never stopped to consider the nick in the lapel. A controversy is now in progress, on the other side of the lapel.

ILLINOIS HIGHWAYS.

Money Annually Wasted Would Soon Build Good Roads.

Hard roads statisticians have figured that Illinois now spends and has been spending for years more than $2,500,-Curtis bill. This money goes for the pay of the county and township and road district officials, for roadmaking tools, for labor, and where farmers work out their road tax the allowance

This sum, it is estimated, would be sufficient in a dozen years to equip ev-ery township in the state with a north and south and an east and west macadam road of first class quality, yet this enormous sum is annually spent for nothing—dumped into the mud, lit-erally as well as figuratively, through lack of scientific skill applied to road

Advocates of good roads legislation are not all sticklers for macadam, which is usually meant when "hard roads" are mentioned. Gravel, slag, "gumbo" and many other cheap materials can be used. It is even admitted that a fall quality of road can be made. that a fair quality of road can be made of ordinary prairie soil, but it must be

THE COST TO FARMERS.

How Bad Ronds Count In Figuring Profit and Loss.

A potent argument with the farmer when he can be made to listen is the influence of good roads on the marketing of his product. With country roads as they are there are seasons when the farmer could not get his grain to mar-ket if he were offered its weight in gold. Unless he has large capital he cannot take advantage of the actual market conditions, but must be gov-erned in selling by the state of the country roads. He cannot sell unless be can deliver wagon load lots at the railroad station.

A consequence is, say students of this question, that the farmers of Illinois could have equipped the state with macadam pavements for the money they have lost through being forced to sell their product when the roads hap-pen to be good enough to permit haul-

We see much talk of good roads, but they will never be made permanent un-til wide tires are more universally til wide tires are more universally used. It is not, however, on the public highway that wide tires are most advantageous. It is on the fields, through the lanes and about the barnyard where they prove of the greatest value. The State Agricultural College of Missouri found that on blue grass sward 3,248 pounds pulled as easily on three inch tires as 2,000 pounds on 1½ inch tires. In a part of New York state wide tires reduced the cost of hauling 20 per cent, but the saving of draft is not the only advantage of the wide tires, for narrow tires cut ruts that can be seen worst case of dyspersia, the doctors that they ever saw.
