

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Pretty Playthings That Mary Made Out of "Stickers."

Little Mary is the happiest of children usually, but one day her Auntie Joy found her looking almost doleful.

"I'm tired of everything I've got to play with," said Mary. "I wish I had some new playthings—some playthings that nobody had ever thought of before."

"I don't believe there are any playthings like that," said Auntie Joy smiling. "But come with me and I'll show you how to play with some playthings that used to make me very happy when I was a little girl, but that I never see any little children playing with now."

By the time Mary had found her hat Auntie Joy was ready with two paper bags from the kitchen. They went out to the empty lot near the house and Auntie Joy told Mary to be careful.

"We shall like the playthings we are after much better in our bags than clinging to our skirts," she said, laughing.

So they filled the two bags with the "stickers" which Mary had always hated before and went back to the veranda. And here Auntie Joy poured the "stickers" out on a big paper and showed Mary how to make them into dolls' furniture.

Mary enjoyed the play so much that it was supper time long before she expected it.

"I haven't had such a good time this summer," she told Auntie Joy as they went into the house together.

And if any of Jane Jerome's little girls want to make doll's furniture out of "stickers" all they have to do is to stick the "stickers" together in any shape they want them. And the boys, who don't care about doll's furniture, may make pretty baskets in the same way.

Pet Eagles.

There are a few cases in which eagles have been made pets, so that you may suppose that if the birds were commoner they could be tamed at least as easily as bears. An imperial eagle taken from the nest accepted caresses, answered to a call and did not fly away when at liberty. At Alva there used to be an eagle kept on a chain, which shows, perhaps, that it could not be trusted to roam about the Ochsils. A golden eagle, caught when fully grown, was successfully domesticated, but its wings were cut when it was first taken and so it had time to get accustomed to its new home and new life. Sometimes it went off for two or three weeks, but always came back. It was fed on crows, shot for it. Whenever it attempted to seize a crow on its own account it always failed. Jim being much too artful

Rhyme of the President.

First stands the lofty Washington. That noble, great, immortal one. The older Adams next we see. And Jefferson next the number three. This Madison is fourth, you know. The fifth one on the list, Monroe. The sixth, and Adams comes again. With Jackson seventh in the train. Van Buren, eighth, falls into line. And Harrison makes number nine. Then comes another, Buckle's son. And Polk, eleventh, as we learn. The twelfth is Taylor in rotation. Fillmore, thirteenth, in succession. Fourteenth, Pierce has been selected. Buchanan, fifteenth, is elected. As sixteenth Lincoln rules the nation. And Johnson, seventeenth, fills his station. The eighteenth, then, is Grant, you know. And, nineteenth, Hayes from Ohio. When Cleveland comes at twenty-two. Then Harrison as twenty-third. When Cleveland once again is heard. As twenty-fifth, McKinley great. Who, too, has shared the nation's fate. And, though the dearest grief is felt, We hail the gallant Roosevelt.

Mamie and the Verses.

"Mamie," said the father, "run out and play; there is something I wish to tell your mother."

"Well, papa," answered Miss Mamie, "my verse at school today said, 'He that hath ears, let him hear'; so I think I ought to stay and hear what you are going to say."

Clement Scott had a characteristic celebration of his sixtieth birthday in London and the first anniversary of his paper, The Free Lance.

Gustave Salvini, a son of the famed Italian tragedian, is to be the Paola in Duse's Francesca in the play based on Dante's poem written for the latter by D'Annunzio.

Extensive areas of excellent land were found on the lower Yukon, upon which there was an abundant and often luxuriant growth of grasses over six feet in height. The abundant moisture and long days during the summer months account for the surprising luxuriance of vegetation in that far north region.

One Thing and Another.

Experts and agents engaged in the government's investigations into California irrigation recommended "a state board of control of waters, the making of unappropriated water state property, the limitation of all appropriations to actual beneficial use and the attachment of all rights to water to the land irrigated."

The theory, recently propounded afresh, that irrigation favors or produces drought does not find support among either scientific or practical men.

Deniable. "You must tell your husband to change his diet," said the physician. "Tell him to eat more beef and potatoes."

"Oh, well," said Mrs. Cumrox after a moment's consideration, "I suppose it is just as well. Beef and potatoes are getting so expensive that even the wealthiest families need not be ashamed to eat them."—Washington Star.

FARM & GARDEN.

REMOVING TREES.

"Grubbing" the Best and Cheapest Way—How to Do It. Some years ago an effective contrivance was patented for pulling small trees by horse power. We think the machine is not now manufactured, and in any case the common method of "grubbing" is found to be cheapest and most satisfactory, says The Country Gentleman. The accompanying diagrams will help to explain the method most commonly in vogue. The writer has grubbed many acres of land similar to that described by the method heretofore recommended and therefore is able to speak about it intelligently.

Provide a good heavy yoke of oxen—horses or mules can be used, but they are not entirely satisfactory. Two log chains seven to ten feet each, a driver and a grubber will be required. If the tree is somewhat large, the grubber cuts off one or more of the roots.

The oxen are started and the operator readily sees where the roots rise on the opposite side. While they are under strain one quick, well directed blow with the sharp ax end of the grubbing hoe will sever the root. The smaller roots will be dragged out. If the tree should be taprooted, a little earth may have to be removed, and as the tree is on a strain it will be severed by means of an ax or the hoe.

The oxen should be driven at a sharp angle with the outer grubbing hoe.

RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

Genes Gleaned From the Teachings of All Denominations. Religion's work is the production of character.—Rev. A. J. Wilder, Episcopalian, Cincinnati.

Keep Up. Human progress waits not for individual laggards.—Rev. Henry W. Pinkham, Congregationalist, Denver.

The Genius of Christianity. The genius of Christianity is to make old things new.—Rev. Dr. J. W. Daniel, Trinity Church, Charleston, S. C.

Mankindness. Mankindness is not to be measured by the square inch.—Rev. H. O. Gilson, Reformed Church, Wilkesburg, Pa.

Selfishness. Our desires are all for selfish or worldly benefits, for honor or gain.—Rev. L. G. Hoeck, Swedenborgian, Brooklyn.

Highest Power. Spiritual power transcends brain power as brain power transcends brawn.—Rev. R. G. Hobbs, Methodist, Springfield, Ill.

True Progress. Sanctified ambition is the motive power in all true progress in the church or out of it.—Rev. Robert L. Rudolph, Reformed Episcopalian, New York.

Divine Words. The gospel is a divine revelation to human hearts from God to you, that it may be a benediction to your life.—Rev. Randolph H. McKim, Episcopalian, Washington.

Unity of Evil. False teachers support one another. You will find it to be true all over the world that the bad man supports the bad man.—Rev. Dr. Frank R. Morse, Baptist, New York.

Nothing Without Christ. No civilization educates if Christ is left out.—Rev. Dr. Henry C. Minton, Presbyterian General Moderator, San Francisco.

Atheistic Lives. The multitude never think of God except in time of trouble, adversity and death. Many are living atheistic lives, though they may not accept the atheist creed.—Rev. W. H. Carwardine, Methodist, Chicago.

Soul of the Bible. The religion of Christians is not the Bible in all its parts, but first of all that portion which is its soul, by which the teaching of prophets and apostles must be judged.—The very words of Jesus.—Rev. John Watson (an MacInnes), Presbyterian, Liverpool.

Various Deaths. Death physical is the separation of the soul and body; death spiritual is the separation of the soul from God; death eternal is the permanence of this alienation from the life of God.—Rev. Thomas J. Porter, Presbyterian, Oxford, O.

Merry Saints. The churches today need more merry saints—men and women who realize that laughter is God given and that cheerfulness of disposition is a daily blessing, for too many people hug the fallacy that tears are somehow more sacred than smiles.—Rev. Dr. F. J. Mallett, Episcopalian, Beloit, Wis.

Good Is Immortal. One thing is certain—this new century holds the day of our passing from this world. Things will outlast us—our books, our furniture, even the marks on our pen scratches upon paper—but if we live worthily and work nobly the influence of what we are and do shall not pass.—Rev. Dr. Wayland Hoyt, Baptist, Philadelphia.

Bible Needed. Again, it is written, "If a man love me, he will keep my words." But how is it possible for a man to keep those words of which he has no knowledge? And how is it possible for a man to have a knowledge of the words of the Lord without a thoughtful, diligent and prayerful study of the Bible?—Rev. H. P. Aston, Baptist, Atlanta.

Leave the Zerstorer's Alone. If life is short, then I think it will be wiser on my part to leave the mysterious alone. I think so. Why so? Because life is short. We cannot do everything. We had better, therefore, make a selection and attend to those things we can get hold of and work to the soul's best advantage.—Rev. Joseph Parker, D. D., City Temple, London.

All Men Are. Virtue and vice, intelligence and ignorance, and all the other human qualities and faults are so little a matter of monopoly, are so well distributed, that a dip from the ocean of humanity at any point will reveal about the same assortment of human fish as will another dip from another point of that ocean.—Rev. Charles Fleischer, Hebrew, Boston.

Money and Peace. One cannot say of the rich that they are the happiest class in the community, and it would be a curious comment on the providence of God if it were true. Peace of mind is quite independent of a bank account. It depends more upon the mental and spiritual attitude of the soul than on a well filled pocketbook.—Rev. Dr. George H. Hepworth, Congregationalist, New York.

A True Woman. A true woman—she is gentle. Gentleness in woman is a queenly grace. A true woman—she is sympathetic. The heart that does not feel another's woe is not the heart of a true woman. A true woman—she is wise. "To know that which before us lies in daily life is the prime wisdom," says Milton. A true woman—she is pious, divorced from the false and the evil and married to the true and the good. And, lastly, the true woman is enthusiastically interested in the right, whether in the home, in the church or in the state.—Rev. J. G. Patton, Presbyterian, Decatur, Ga.

He Wants to Write. This from a correspondent over in Alabama: "The other day I tried my hand at writing, and I was surprised to find I was borned to it. The only wonder is I never knewed it before this. So, well? Heard, thought and raised, to it, I will ask you if you know where I can make a dollar or two a day at it; and please let me know what kind of writin' they'd put me on first—whether Novelty, Historic or Poems, with rhymes to the End. I mean Business and will Write Hard. Let me know at Once."—Atlanta Constitution.

One For Bobby. "I understand," said little Bobby, looking up from his lesson and keeping a forefinger temporarily between the pages of his history, "that there is only one man before whom the czar of Russia must take off his hat."

"Why, yes; that's so. Your book tells all about it, eh? Who is it, did you say?"

"His highness," said Bobby, getting busy.—New York Times.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific November 18th, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to August 25th, eighty seven per cent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably. There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction.
