A SPEAKING LAMP.

Invention Which Reproduces Sound Many Miles Away. The "speaking light" is the latest nov elty which has made its appearance in Paris. It is the invention of a German gineer residing in Paris. The apparatus consists of an ordinary are lamp, minus the globe. This An electric lamp for miners is a relamp is placed on a table and is con- cent invention of a young New York nected on the one hand with an electric generator and on the other with a microphone, which can be placed at any distance, even miles away. On the current being passed and the lamp alight anybody singing or speaking in front or over the microphone board is immediately heard by everybody in the device an absolutely safe contrivance room where the lamp is placed.

The arc lamp reproduces every sound with startling clearness. It is necessary, however, for people looking at the lamp to wear smoked glasses, owing source of air supply. to its intensity. The invention is decidedly ingenious but at present it is difficult to see what useful purpose it can serve except as a substitute for the theatrophone, over which it possesses the advantages of allowing a hundred or more persons to listen to a concert miles away instead of only two, as is the case with the theatrophone. The inventor, however, is of the opinion that at a later period, when more thoroughly developed, the speaking light may have great scientific possibilities before it.

The one great lesson to be learned from a close scrutiny of a family album is doubtless the liability of photodetachable graphs to fade, especially those printed on certain classes of paper, says

British Journal of Photography. The This fading is also more noticeable in the case where sitters have been very fully lighted and there is an absend of shadow or dark portions in the picture. A solid printed picture will first show signs of decay in the half tones the darkest portions not being so noticeable, and a black dress will appear to wear better in a picture than a lighter or middle tint one.

New Dead Sea Found.

In the barren wilds of northern Ti-bet, in a region never before explored by white men, a new dead sea has just been discovered by Sven Hedin, the explorer. Properly speaking, the newly discovered body of water is not a sea; it is a lake. Unlike the Dead sea of Palestine, which is situated but sixteen miles from Jerusalem and has the river Jordan for a tributary, the Hedin lake is in the center of an almost inaccessible plain and is entirely isolated from all other bodies of water.

Leather, even when soft, does not resent itself to the mind as a particuarly good filtering medium. Indeed it might seem just the reverse, so one must commend Mr. W. G.
