(Original.) When the Union Pacific rallcoad was building, there was always a town at terminus which moved on with the finishing of the road. One of these towns was Julesburg, and a very hard place it was. I was connected with the road and occupied the same cabin with my young friend lke Stevenson, a disbursing officer. Gue night on my re-turn from up the road I found Stevenson engaged at poker with some miners from Clear Creek, in the moun as. I saw at a glance from the magtude of the stakes that lke was playor with the company's money, for he nothing but his salary, and that was always fully drawn as soon as due. This was not the worst of it. He had lost some $3,000. He was to me a sort of younger brother. He was the lovellest fellow in the world, and all the "lovellest fellows" I have ever known have had a weak spot in them. I thought of the prison door clanging on the poor felw, as it inevitably would when his defalcation was discovered, and a cold shiver ran down my spine. It occurred to me to stop the game, demand the company's money and if not returned to call for help. But this course, how ever it resulted, would turn out badly for Ike. A desperate resolve seized upon me

I have never known whether it resulted from a weakness or a superfluity of nerve. I noticed a pack of cards on a in baking. A plate is put in the botshelf with the same backs as those which the players were using. Taking it up. I began to finger the cards and after marking an ace of clubs dropped it into my sleeve. Then I entered game with a view to getting back the money lke had lost. It was a desperate chance, for if two aces of clubs came on the table at once it would be plain that some one was cheating. But in this event I resolved to accuse the the quickest and surest means of reminers, stop the game and demand a return at all hazards. I did not use the ace until there was a pot of $1,5.0. Then, having two aces and drawing a third. I put in my club and called. At the showdown 1 feit my heart beating like a drum, expectmot. 11/2 ounces; oil of cedrat, 2 drams; ing to see its duplicate. I was obliged to walt an hour for more aces and a big pot, during which time Ike increased his loss by $200, leaving me $1,700 to win in order to make him whole. I opened a jackpot of $700 with a pair of aces, drew a third and again slipped in the club Two of the miners held big hands, and the pot grew to $2,000 before the showdown. Again I was in an agony of fear lest the duplicate ace should be in their hands. Ike had passed out, and as I glanced around the board I saw him take up his cards to examine them. Catching his eye, I gave him a look, and he, after noting a card in his hand, threw them, backs up, on the table. He had the ace of clubs. This ended the game. The miners had had little money at the start, and the loss of what they had won, with a hundred more, cleaned them out. they looked very sullen and began to peak of my having held two hands each four news during the evening. The red bearded man put each card the table as he came to it, arranging them by suits. Two-thirds of the pack had been told off and yet no duplicate ace! A dozen, five, four, three, two, one! The last card was the seven of spades

Great beaven! Where was the extra ace of clubs? I glanced around the cir cle of faces and saw a peculiar satisfaction gleaning in Ike's eyes, over which he had drawn his hat so as to conceal them from most of the miners He had withdrawn the compromising card. 1 breathed a long drawn sigh of relief.

Ike was saved from disgrace and imprisonment, though I had come within an ace of death. I gave them a sound lecture on risking trust funds, at the same time handing him the money h had lost. I was in $300, which I did not know what to do with, not earling to use money acquired by cheating. There were three men in the sides Ike and myself, and I finally con cluded to send each man a hundred dollars anonym

NATURAL FLESH. An Excellent Quality That Sheep Inherit From Their Sires Only.

I have noticed in a flock that all the lasty, thick and naturally fleshed lambs come from some ram that has this quality, says John A. Craig. 1 have in mind one of several that were handled in the way peculiar to this condition. He always was round and smooth in form. No matter how thin he might become his back was always covered and smooth, while there were others, though carrying considerabl fat, whose backbones could be felt from shoulder to hindquarter. Now, lambs from the muscular ram seldon seem to go wrong. They are born with a good covering of natural flesh, and this they seem to maintain throughout their career if given a chance. Contrariwise, the other lamb is very apt to go to pieces. He may do extra well while on the mother's milk, but as soon as he has to depend on other sources a col lapse takes place. It seems easy for a lamb or a calf to attain a high degree of natural flesh if this feature has been considered in its breeding. It is possible to select for it, because I believe it is possible by the handling to come to a correct conclusion as to the character of the flesh.

1 must confess to having been some what skeptical regarding the ability me have claimed to distinguish be tween the different classes of meat on an animal. It appeared reasonably certain in the instance of cattle, but sheep seemed to originate the most uncertainty because of the fleece wool and the fact that the form cannot be seen accurately while the wool is on. For some time past I have tried to follow this point and at the last international in judging the class of fat sheep I kept It in mind throughout. Overstimulation of Children. Professor Barnes cautions parents against the overstimulation of young children and cites various ways in which this is accomplished. One of these is to provide elaborate playthings in large quantities, which have, says, a bad influence on children. A child's interest is so easily aroused that many attractions prove confusing and wearlsome and generally injurious to his development. To Independent Women.

Fashionable clergymen seldom insert the word "obey" in the marriage serv-

It is the bride's pet aversion. While it has never really prevented a wedding, it is a stumbling block to the altar.

A pretty and a tactful way out of this difficulty of the marriage ceremony was suggested by a bride, who substituted the word "yield" for "obey" and thereby asserted her right to equality with her husband. She recognized his au-thority, but it was the authority of love, not law, and to the feminine mind there is a wide difference between do-Ing a thing because you want to do it and because you have to.

No man has a right to rule his wife any more than she has to rule him. Ripans Tabules are a common sense, effectual cure for dyspepsia, biliousness, heartburn, headache, constipation, dizziness and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. They are intended for the use of men, women and children everywhere, and have proved beneficial in the majority of cases. It is not claimed that they will perform miracles, but some of the cures which they have effected amount almost to that. Easy to take and prompt in action, they have no rival as the best remedy for the every-day ills of humanity.
