There have been persistent rumors that Dr. von Holleben, the German ambassador, who is now dean of the corps, will soon relinquish his post here for another one on the continent, and there have also been infimations that Count Cassini, the Russian' ambassador, who has been at Washing ton since June, 1898, will be trans-ferred to another post. If these two prospective changes occur, Senor Azpi-roz, the Mexican ambassador, will become dean of the corps, with Signor Mayor des Planches of Italy ranking next and Sir Michael Herbert third in he order of prece Prefer Wages to Tips. The waiters of Earls are up in arms against tips. They held the other night a meeting whose battle cry was "A bas pourboire!" and are shortly to issue handbills setting forth the evils of the tipping system-familiar topic, though never before presented from the waiters' viewpoint. Tipping is a complicated system in Paris. Each "pourboire" as it is collected is put into a general box, and at the end of the day the total is divided equally among the waiters. They receive no wages, but, on the contrary, have to advance to the cafe keeper at the beginning of each day a sum estimated at one-half of the day's Whether or not the gratul pourboire. ties reach the estimated total the fixed sum is paid to the owner for "expenses." One garcon recently brought suit against his employer for these expenses and recovered. The 2,000 walters at the meeting determined on similar action. Frenks of the Mont Pelee Eruption Professor Angelo Heilprin in an ad dress on the Mont Pelee eruption said the first phase was the emission from the crater of a brown colored cloud which was impelled to a vast height. Almost simultaneously a black cloud intensely luminous shot downward toward the city and when over St. Pierre was shattered by a tremendous lightning stroke, which sent the death dealing blast in all directions. Some of the freaks of the destruction, he said, were inexplicable. In one case a body was found scorched to a crisp, and beside it lay a box of matches untouched by fire. Jewel boxes were picked up with the exterior unscathed and the trinkets inside fused in a solid mass.-Philadelphia Record.

Then there were dried cels sliced in chicken broth, sharks cooked in a doz en ways and served in several courses; "lotus flower," consisting of a slice fat pork, a slice of dried duck and a plece of preserved watermelon, so ar-ranged that one could take a bit of all three at once; dried mushrooms, turtles, preserved ducks' eggs, sharks' air bladders in oil, abalone ment, a dainty worth its weight in gold, being a tiny part of a little sea animal; the web of ducks' feet, duck which had been baked, stuffed with mushrooms and
