BUTTE CITY'S GROWTH.

No Camp Ever So Favored With a Succession of Great Discoveries.
Butte City grew up hardly out of the bare desert, grew like the natural douglars of that high, rugged, apparently unsharable plateau—tough, resistant, of strange aspect, aping no eastern growth, adapting itself to the rigorous conditions of an unamiable land. By no stretch of imagination would any of the early pioneers, trailing westward with white topped schooners, have selected that mountain basin of Montana as a site for a city, the future metropolis of a great state. Approachable only by crossing high mountains, almost bare of vegetation, scantily watered by desert streams, with a rugged, unlovely butte rising in the center, the valley seems the last spot in the world that men should choose as a home. But the pioneers who first went there thought nothing of scenery or ease or comfort or homelikeness; they burrowed into the stream beds seeking gold. Hundreds of little towns they built in the desert, a few shack houses, saloons, gambling places, a wild riot of life, tomorrow forgotten. So Butte appeared hardly forty years ago, with no better prospects than scores of other mining camps, the same rough life, the same law of the six shooter.

But this barren valley was wonderfully favored of nature. For a time the stream beds gave forth great riches in placer gold, and when the placers began to fail and Butte was threatened with the same fate that had swept a hundred other mining camps into oblivion there were yet men who had faith in the town. For years they struggled onward in poverty, seeing the camp gradually decreasing in importance and population, and then suddenly silver was discovered, then copper. No mining camp in the world's history perhaps was ever so favored with a succession of great discoveries. Many camps have been famous for gold alone or silver or copper; none has ever yielded such enormous wealth in all three. Following the opening of the first bonanza mine—the Anacoda—scores of claims were taken up, and it was not long before Butte had risen to its present eminence as the greatest center of copper production in the world.—Ray Stannard Baker in Century.

Uricosol Cures Rheumatism

Uricosol is a uric acid solvent—that is, Uricosol dissolves the excess of uric acid in the system and eliminates it, curing rheumatism.

Uricosol does this without injuring any part of the body—in fact it aids the stomach, creates an appetite, stimulates the intestinal glands—has a healthy action on the liver. Uricosol is very effective in chronic rheumatism for it can be taken without injuriously affecting any part of the body.

For sale at $1.00 a bottle by all druggists, or sent prepaid to any address upon receipt of price. Address all communications west of Mississippi to Los Angeles, Cal. East of Mississippi to P. O. Box 481, Atlanta, Ga.

The Spread of Tipping.
When did the habit of tipping barbers and hairdressers originate? I do not believe it was known to the Londoner of fifty years ago. I may be mistaken; my knowledge of that time is based only upon hearsay. But is it not a modern innovation? And if we are to give these little presents to the artist who cuts our hair, if gifts are to be showered in this reckless profusion, where, I ask, are we to stop? Why should we not hand a few pebbles to the draper's assistant who brings down shirts and collars from inaccessible heights behind and spreads them on the counter for our inspection? Why not to the bootmaker, the grocer, the tobacconist? Possibly the fashion may already be growing in this direction. I grow old and make no pretense of keeping up with the times. Nor have I money enough to throw about recklessly. To my mind the practice of giving gratuities is dangerously on the increase. It is becoming a menace to every reasonable citizen. I would have it put down with a strong hand.—Fall

LIQUID FILMS.

Some Experiments With Knitting Needles, Threads and Soapbuds.
Two knitting needles are attached to each other by two threads at their ends to form a rectangle. On dipping into soapbuds and taking out by a third thread attached to the upper needle the rectangle becomes filled with a transparent film like a pane of glass. A fourth thread attached to the upright threads will be imbedded in the film in any position in which it may happen to fall. But if the film is broken below this thread it will be pulled up into a circular arch by the tension of the contracting film above. The single arch may be changed to a double arch by pulling on a fifth thread attached to the middle of the fourth, but the latter will fly back to the form of the single arch if allowed to do so. An endless thread dropped

Mr. Snyder's Singing Mouse.
A. H. Snyder has a singing mouse in his house, and the mouse has a family of little ones. The mother mouse makes a sound in a high key, a sound that is thin and wiry, but not displeasing to the ear.

Treasurer of the Brooklyn East End Art Club.

"If women would pay more attention to their health we would have more happy wives, mothers and daughters, and if they would observe results they would find that the doctor's prescriptions do not perform the many cures they are given credit for."

"In consulting with my druggist he advised McElev's Wine of Cardui and Thacker's Black-Draught, and so I took it and have every reason to thank him for a new life opened up to me with restored health, and it only took three months to cure me."

Wine of Cardui is a regulator of the menstrual functions and is a most astonishing tonic for women. It cures scanty, suppressed, too frequent, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, whites and flooding. It is helpful when approaching womanhood, during pregnancy, after childbirth and in change of life. It frequently brings a dear baby to homes that have been barren for years. All druggists have $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

player should be provided with a small notebook and a pencil. Blank dance cards, with the tiny colored pencils attached, are pretty for this purpose. The leaves should be numbered to correspond with various articles distributed about the room. The game is then to guess the country or city designated by each of these articles. A tiny jar of cold cream stands for Greece, a miniature pot of baked beans for Boston, a bottle of perfume for Cologne, a cigar for Havana, etc. The guesses should not be made too difficult, but just enough so to brush up the memories of laggard geographers. Prizes should be awarded to those who secure the greatest number of correct answers.

The Hill of Cellar Door.

I know a hill not far away Where children always love to play. The hill is straight and smooth and low; For little folks 'tis better so.

The coasting there is very nice, Without the cold of snow and ice; You slide in summer, fall or spring, But need not bother slide to bring.

It is the safest hill I've found; Sometimes you tumble to the ground, But 'tis not far you have to fall And would not hurt a child at all.

It's very near your home, and so Your mother 'll always let you go, For then she knows you're right near by And she can hear you if you cry.

So up you scramble, down you slide, And, oh, you have a jolly ride! You always want to play some more Upon the hill of Cellar Door!
—Washington Star.

Young Tad Lincoln.

Of all the children who have lived in the White House none has been the object of greater affection from the American people than Tad, the favorite son of President Lincoln, whose early death was the greatest sorrow of his father's life. Tad won the good will of everybody by his ready sympathy with all classes and conditions of people. One story of him is to the effect that he once noticed a wounded soldier hanging about the gates of the executive mansion, hoping to see the president, to whom access was denied, it having been given out that no soldiers were to be discharged on any account. This veteran believed that he would not recover and was anxious to see his family before he died. Tad saw him and on learning what was the matter led him into the executive mansion. They were stopped by a sentinel at the door of the president's office, but Tad shouted in his loudest boyish voice: "Father, let me and my friend in!"

Mr. Lincoln never could deny Tad anything, even when he was most busy, and the boy entered the room leading the crippled and sick soldier, for whom Mr. Lincoln immediately wrote out an honorable discharge.

Benny on Corn.

Corn is a very useful vegetable. If it were not for corn there would be no corn cakes with butter and molasses. Corn grows in large fields, and you plow it with a horse. There was a man who had a cornfield, and he had no horse, but he had a large and faithful wife, who took care of it, accompanied by a trusty dog, while he wrote poetry for the papers. We ought to be thankful if we have a good wife, which is much better than hanging around saloons and wasting your time in idleness. Corn is also useful to feed pigs with and can be made into cob pipes, which will make you sick if you are not accustomed to it. Let us firmly resolve that we will reform and lead a better life.
—BENNY.
