DETERMINED ...TO WED

(Original.)
Arnold Treat was thirty-five and an eminent man. When he spoke in court the people turned out to hear him and were spellbound at his eloquence. A number of young women set their caps for him, but he would have none of them.

At last he met Eugenia Duffield and was captured. Miss Duffield was twenty-eight and director on the boards of hospitals and helping hand societies. She had a fine figure, a firm step and carried her head erect on her shoulders. Her administrative ability was remarkable, and it was this that made her valuable as a manager.

When Miss Duffield and Mr. Treat announced their engagement the world said, "What a splendid match!" All went well with the lovers till one day a suit was brought against one of the institutions of which the lady was managing director, and she put the case in the hands of Mr. Treat. In submitting it she told him the incidents leading up to the trouble, to which he listened attentively. Then she gave him the line of defense he was to pursue, to which he listened respectfully. She finished by stating what she conceived to be the law bearing on the case, and he appeared a trifle bored.

As a last word she directed him to proceed in every particular on the lines she had laid down.

"Do I understand," he asked, "that I am to try the case as your assistant or your attorney?"

Miss Duffield without a word folded up the papers and marched away with the remark, "You'll not try it at all." Before the end of a week it was announced that the engagement was broken. Nevertheless the breaking of it was a great disappointment to both Mr. Treat and Miss Duffield. It was finally renewed after she had acknowledged herself in the wrong, for her brother was a lawyer and told her she had acted like a fool. For awhile the couple were very happy. Their troubles came again, this time from the side of the man. He had a protegee, whom he endeavored to get into Miss Duffield's hospital. She informed him that under the rules the patient was not admissible whereupon Mr. Treat remarked that he would apply at a hospital where there were more elastic rules.

"Do you mean to imply," asked Miss Duffield, "that our rules are not proper ones?"

"They are not such as I should approve. I am on the board at St. Luke's, you know."

"Our institution doesn't follow the leadership of St. Luke's by any means. I think you had better take your patient to your own hospital."

"I did not ask your advice. I asked admittance for the patient at your hospital."

Immediately after this interview the engagement was broken. "That will never be a match," said a veteran matrimonial observer. "You might as well put two captains in command of the same ship."

However, the two lovers were miserable apart, and this time at the suit of the man they came together again. Then they concluded that once married they would learn to work in double harness and decided to make a plunge into matrimony, and the wedding day was set. One day Mr. Treat drove up to Miss Duffield's residence and, alighting from his carriage, ran up the steps and rang the bell.

"I have just heard," he said when his ladylove came down, "that our wedding is to be the largest and most brilliant ever held in this city. This I hear from others, while I, the principal participant have not been consulted."

"First," replied Miss Duffield, "I was not aware that you were to be the principal participant; second, I consider you on such an occasion without any rights whatever, and, third, the woman's will as to marriage ceremonies being absolute, I did not think it necessary to inform you."

"I think it necessary," said the groom expectant, flushing, "to inform you that I detest spectacular performances and would not consent to make a guy of myself on any account."

"You'll neither make a guy nor a groom of yourself with me," replied the lady. "We will consider this affair off for the third and last time."

The next step in this affair, after weeks of misery on the part of both, was a note from the man, which by a singular coincidence crossed one from the woman. The man's note asked for an interview; the woman's invited him to call. When they met the man began:

"I have called to say that I have found it impossible for me to live without you. I confess that I expect to find it impossible to live with you and have my own way about anything. Therefore I have called to beg for one more trial. The first time I attempt to have my own way you may break the engagement."

"I have come to a similar conclusion," said the woman. "I confess that I have been very miserable. I have sent for you to say that if you care to try it once more we will be married as privately as you wish."

"That is the woman's part. I am ready to submit to as resplendent an affair as you desire."

They were married before a few friends and went on their wedding trip. That was five years ago. They are married today and comparatively happy. But they do not live as married people usually live. The man lives at his club, the woman at her own home.

He dines with her twice a week and frequently takes her to the opera or the theater. MARY T. PIERCE.

J. C. Baxter, Braidwood, Ill.

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly the most economical preparation of its kind on the market. A little of it goes a long way. It doesn't take much of it to stop falling of the hair, make the hair grow, and restore color to gray hair.

If your druggist cannot supply you, send us one dollar and we will express you a bottle by mail, and we will return the dollar to you nearest express office. Address, J. C. AYER CO., Lowell, Mass.

SHEDDING FEATHERS.

Information Concerning Care of Fowls During Molting Period.

During the late summer and early fall the egg supply decreases materially. This happens because the hens cannot lay eggs and produce feathers at the same time. This annual throwing off of the old feathers and putting on of new plumage is known as "molting." As nature provides for a renewal of the covering of many animals, birds, fishes, reptiles and insects, so we find the same thing in the poultry yard. The old feathers begin to drop out, and new ones commence to grow. This process requires about three months, and as molting debilitates the fowl by causing a great drain on the system egg production ceases. The hens that begin to molt early should be retained, as they will be the ones that will finish the process before winter and be ready for laying by the time eggs go up in price again; hence never sell those that begin to molt early, as they will be your winter layers, but feed them bone, meat, linseed meal and a variety, not overlooking a little sulphur in the food occasionally.

If you wish to make your hens molt quickly and with the best results a few hints will perhaps be of value. First, keep in view that feathers contain lime, nitrogen and some oily matter, but they are mostly mineral and nitrogenous in composition. If the hens are fed on oily food it seems to loosen the feathers, provided they are nearing the molting period. But after the feathers are thrown off then the food should be rich in nitrogen and lime; hence, clover meal, bone meal, lean meat and cut bone are excellent. But little grain is necessary. A tablespoonful of sulphur in the food of twenty hens three times a week will assist, as feathers contain sulphur also. By this system of feeding your hens will molt in ten weeks, the average time being three months. No kind of feeding will force a hen to throw off old feathers and put on the new at once. Feathers do not come in a day; they must grow. They do not all appear at the same time. Even if a hen molts by becoming naked in a day or two you will have to wait until the new feathers grow, but you can assist growth by judicious feeding.

500 REWARD for WOMEN
Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"I was a great sufferer for six years and doctors all the time with a number of physicians but did not receive any benefit," writes Mrs. George Rogers, of 641 Bond Street, Saginaw (Mich.). "I had given up all hope of ever getting better. Thought I would write to you. I received your letter telling me what to do. I commenced to take your 'Favorite Prescription' and follow your advice. I have taken ten bottles to all, also five visits of the 'Pleasant Pellets.' Am now regular after having missed two years and suffered with pain in the head and back. I was so nervous, could not get to sleep. Now I can thank you for my recovery."

Don't hesitate to write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. If you want good medical advice from a fully qualified physician as to your personal good I will. Such letters are always answered free of charge and confidentially.

A medicine which has outlasted all others for women in the past third of a century and being recommended by all those who have used it, is a good remedy to be to Dr. R. V. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is pure, vegetable and does not contain a particle of alcohol to destroy the blood corpuscles and weaken the system. Do not permit the dealer to mislead your intelligence by suggesting some other compound which he recommends as "just as good," because he makes it himself.

Liver Troubles
"I find Theodor's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver & kidney diseases. It cured my on after he had got at $100 with doctors. It is the best medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.
If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Theodor's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Theodor's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Theodor's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Theodor's Black-Draught for liver & kidney complaints and found nothing to equal it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT
The gape worm can frequently be dislodged through the efforts of the chicken itself—vigorous sneezing. Several recipes are given to induce this effort, such as blowing Persian powder down the chicken's throat or putting the chicken in a box or keg and making a lime dust. There appears some danger of overdoing the job and smothering the chicken sneezing itself to death or stifling it.
