

Spring Medicine

The best is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the best because it does the most good. While it makes the blood pure, fresh and lively, it tones the stomach to better digestion, creates an appetite, stimulates the kidneys and liver, gives new brain, nerve and digestive strength.

An unequalled list of cures—40,366 testimonials in two years—proves its merit.

Sarsaparilla—For those who prefer medicine in tablet form, Hood's Sarsaparilla is now put up in chocolate tablets called Sarsaparilla, as well as in the usual liquid form. Sarsaparilla has identical the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy—there being no loss by evaporation, leakage, or leakage. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

She Had the Fad.
Her arm about his neck drew tighter. "And promise me," she said, "that you will write from every foreign city you pass through."

Shifting her weight to the other knee, he regarded the girl with some slight suspicion.

"Do you love me so much," he murmured, "or have you started a picture postal card album?"

On Yoke Made by Lincoln.
A recent rearrangement of the exhibits in the Agricultural Museum of the University of Illinois brought to light an old yoke made by Abraham Lincoln, which was presented to the institution in 1871. By order of President Draper the yoke has been inclosed in a glass case the framework of which was made of boards from the old Lincoln home at Springfield, Ill.

OLD SORES FED AND BY IMPURITIES IN THE BLOOD

Whenever a sore refuses to heal it is because the blood is not pure and healthy, as it should be, but is infected with poisonous germs some old blood which has corrupted and polluted the circulation. Those most usually afflicted with old sores are persons who have reached or passed middle life. The vitality of the blood and strength of the system have naturally begun to decline, and the poisonous germs which have accumulated because of a sluggish and inactive condition of the system, or some hereditary taint which has hitherto been held in check, now force an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body. The place grows red and angry, festers and eats into the surrounding tissue until it becomes a chronic and stubborn ulcer, fed and kept open by the impurities with which the blood is saturated. Nothing is more trying and disagreeable than a stubborn, non-healing sore. The very fact that it resists ordinary remedies and treatments is good reason for suspicion; the same germ-producing cancerous cells are back of every old sore, and especially is this true if the trouble is an inherited one. Washes, salves, and indeed anything else, applied directly to the sore, can do no permanent good; neither will removing the sore with caustic plasters or surgeon's knife make a lasting cure. If every particle of the diseased flesh were taken away another sore would come, because the trouble is in the blood, and the blood cannot be cut away.

The cure must come by a thorough cleansing of the blood. In S. S. S. will be found a remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It is an unequalled blood purifier—one that goes directly into the circulation and promptly cleanses it of all poisons and impurities. It gets down to the very bottom of the trouble and forces out every trace of impurity and makes a complete and lasting cure. S. S. S. changes the quality of the blood so that instead of feeding the diseased parts with impurities, it nourishes the irritated, inflamed flesh with healthy blood. The sore begins to heal, new flesh is formed, all pain and inflammation leaves, the place scabs over, and when S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores. Write for our special book on sores and ulcers and any other medical advice you desire. We make no charge for the book or advice.

What a Doctor Is Good For.
Life is such a constant rush to a well-known physician that to secure a little recreation he has recourse to ruses. A visitor called one night and began a speech to the servant.

"I want the doctor to come as quick as he can."

"He can't do it," the servant answered. "He left orders that he was so busy that, unless it was absolutely a matter of life and death, he couldn't go out at all this evening."

"But," said the caller, "it isn't illness at all."

"What then?"

"We want him to come over and take a hand in a game of whist."

"Oh, that's different."

The servant disappeared, and reappeared a moment later.

"The doctor says he'll be over in ten minutes, sir," he announced.—Tit-Bits.

Great Blow.
"What makes your uncle look so seedy, Harter?"

"Why, he blew in ten thousand last year."

"Blow in ten thousand? Why, I never knew your uncle to be dissipated."

"Oh, this wasn't dissipation. You see, he invented a patent bed that turned out a failure."

Substitute for Celluloid.
The many uses and inflammable character of celluloid have led to an active search for substitutes. The new material of C. Trocquent, a French inventor of celluloid, asbestos and the growth material contained in oyster shells. The cellulose is obtained by treating seaweed successively with acid and alkali, and washing. The asbestos is ground with petroleum oil, the ground oyster shells are treated with hydrochloric acid and the insoluble residue is boiled with water, washed with weak alkaline solution, and collected on a filter. The mixture contains from 25 to 65 parts of the cellulose, 2 to 12 parts of the oiled asbestos, and 20 to 45 parts of the oyster shell substances. The mass is treated with formaldehyde, suitably colored, and then pressed into any form or object for which celluloid can be used.

Another Chance to Succeed.
A French painter one day visited the salon in Paris in company with a friend who was a member of the committee of selection and who had been instrumental in securing the acceptance of the painter's work. When the artist came near his picture he exclaimed:

"Good gracious! You're exhibiting my picture the wrong side up!"

"Hush!" was the reply, "the committee refused it the other way."

What "Blue Flame" Means

It means the hottest and cleanest flame produced by any stove. This is the flame the New Perfection Oil Stove gives the instant a lighted match is applied—no delay, no trouble, no soot, no dirt. For cooking, the GUESTS MAKE THE HOTEL.

"Comfort" of Old-Time Inns Would Not Be Tolerated Today.

Among the silly and absurd articles appearing from time to time concerning hotel and inn keeping one tells of a hotel where the modern traveler, tourist or hotel guest would absolutely refuse the accommodations afforded by the inn of one hundred years ago. The only advantage of a hotel of those times lay in the fact that the lack of material comforts drew from the traveler a warmer feeling and greater sociability—a condition in which one man was more his brother's keeper than he is today. Again, the traveler by coach and the small number thrown together, on route or at the hotel, made closer acquaintance than is possible but far more desirable than in our day of big hotels and big crowds.

The modern hotel is a product of the times. The wants, desires, whims, fads and, on top of all these, the imperative demands of those who travel have made the hotel of today what it is from the standpoint of food, accommodations, method of service and management, and from every point of view.

The hotel keeper of today responds to the bidding of the guests. One might almost say of the inn of the past that it was the guest who was the hotel. "Here is your hotel; you have planned it, furnished it; you have outlined its methods of management, and it is what you believe should be comprehended in the word 'hotel'."

The colonial tavern, which would not be tolerated for a moment in our day, was adapted to its times; to speak of it as being superior to the modern hotel is to claim that the old stage coach, which left you more weary and worn at the end of one hundred miles, was a superior vehicle of travel to those used on the modern railroad.

An Ill Wind.
T. P. O'Connor, the Irish leader, began a brilliant after-dinner speech in Philadelphia in this way:

"I must confess that I dread to make after-dinner speeches. At the most sumptuous dinners, if I know that at the end I must make a speech, I am nervous, I have no appetite, I find little to admire in the best efforts of the chef."

"In truth, gentlemen, I readily imagine Daniel, if he was at all of my mind, heaving a sigh of relief as the fumes drew nearer to devour him—leaving a sigh of relief and murmuring:

"Well, if there's any after-dinner speaking to be done on this occasion, at least it won't be done by me."—Exchange.

The Only Appreciation.
"Do you object to the increase of pay for your men?" asked a Congressman.

"No," answered Farmer Cornsack; "not unless he gets to thinkin' he ought to make more speeches so's to earn the money."—Washington Star.

What fence, undying love there is on the stage, and what a tame variety there is in the audience!

THEY MIGHT BE HUMAN.

Prettiest Girl Was Thoughtless in Her Estimate of Others.

It was a bright cool day at the county fair, and the joy crowd that had come out from the city hailed the sandwich-and-coffee booth with a shout of glee.

"But, Nan Burdick, are you going to risk ordering coffee at a place like this?" cried the prettiest girl. "Here! Let me taste yours to see if I can stand it. No, thank you!"—after one sip. "Mercy! I'll take water!"

The young fellow who was serving from behind the counter flushed as he turned away. "Is the coffee so very bad?" he asked anxiously of a lady who was drinking some of it at the farther corner of the booth.

"No, it is not," she told him, pleasantly. "Thank you! We try to make it as good as we can."

Three months later the same prettiest girl, on her way to California, found herself in Santa Fe for the first time. As usual, during the wait of the overland train there, Indiana from the country round were lined up near the station, weaving baskets, making rugs and selling curios. The prettiest girl was among them.

"Isn't he perfectly handsome?" she demanded of her brother, stopping square in front of a young Indian who happened to be standing unoccupied for a moment. "Look at his profile! I've always thought of them as ugly and dirty, but I'd like to have him for an ornament on the lawn."

"Sh!" said her brother, drawing her away. "The way you understand. Some of them are educated."

But the prettiest girl had caught sight of a picturesque squaw, standing apart from the others, talking with a white woman—one of the passengers from the train. Evidently the white woman had known the squaw before, for she called her by name and asked after her family. It was a patient, pathetic face upturned to the questioner, as the squaw told in broken English, how the recent floods had driven her people from their homes and spoiled their crops, and that her own little baby had died from exposure and cold.

The girl pressed close and bent forward eagerly to catch every word. The squaw's voice dropped lower and lower. At last she stopped speaking abruptly and turned away, not without resentment, apparently, but with that look of sad patience intensified.

"O dear, I wanted to hear her!" the prettiest girl exclaimed. "What made her stop?"

The woman to whom the squaw had been speaking was silent for an instant. Then she answered, coldly:

"I suppose she stopped just as you would have done if a stranger insisted on hearing every word when you were telling your personal troubles to a friend."

"Now wasn't that dreadful in me?" demanded the prettiest girl, a minute later, as she hurried back to the train with her run through her brother's.

"You see, I was looking at that squaw as if she were a picture or a show of some sort. They're entirely different from us; they might be human?"—Youth's Companion.

WHEN THE FISH BITE BEST.

It is in the latter part of May and in June, according to a writer in the Outer's Book. This is due to their mode of protecting their spawning beds. In mid-summer they retire to deeper water during which the fishing is very bad. After the first few cool nights of late summer they may be found again among the weeds or on the shallows. Incidentally, it may be said that the law which permits of fishing before July 1 is little protection to the bass in North Lake.

There is little to be said in favor of any particular part of the day. It was never found that the early morning or late afternoon hours were better than midday.

Easterly winds are best. The northerly for pickerel and southerly for bass. While still weather and southerly winds are least favorable.

Times of low barometer, and we may conclude, of unsettled weather, are much better for fishing than periods of high barometer. Cloudy weather is better for bass, both kinds considered, there is no choice.

From this it would follow that a good day for fishing would be one with an east wind, low barometer, clouds for pickerel and clear if you want bass. Go out late in May or in early September if you are a sportsman, and then start fishing after you have had a good breakfast and read the morning paper, if there is one to be had, and come in at a reasonable time in the evening. Whether these conditions would repeatedly give us good fishing is the question. The figures shown in my tables could have been obtained only from the fact that good fishing did repeatedly occur under just such conditions and with the opening of another season it would be well to make notes on just this point.

A Pleasant Exception.
"I'm surprised," said Mrs. Newell, "to hear you speak of Jenkins as a real nice fellow. You used to despise him."

"Yes," replied Newell, "but he's the only fellow I met since we got back from our honeymoon who doesn't grin all over his face and ask: 'Well, how do you like married life by this time?'"—Philadelphia Press.

Frightfully Poor.
The German Emperor's little daughter is credited with this incident. She was tired of all the old games, so said to her playmates:

"I know what we will do. Let's play at being quite poor people—frightfully poor people, who have only one or two footmen!"
