Today is Dallas day at the state fair, or it could seem so from the absence of people on our streets.

Some assert that the state fair horse racing with the lid on is like apple dumpling without the sauce.

At last a private citizen has brought suit against the Southern Pacific to compel them to accept $2.50 an acre for 160 acres of their railroad land.

It is our belief that this man will win out, but we are afraid this procedure will have to be followed by every one who desires any of this land.

Another session of our city council has come and gone and we are still without some plan devised for a permanent night-watch. As time goes on, the nights get longer and longer, leaving our town unprotected for more hours than before.

The editor of this paper does not take it upon himself to edit his advertising columns. That space is purchased by our business men to do with as they see fit, so long as nothing objectionable to public decency is advertised. We would prefer no personal references among competitors, but that is entirely their affair and not ours.

Oregon excel in fruit. Because her apples are the acknowledged standard of the world, bringing highest prices from the trade of New York, London, Paris and Berlin. Her pears, cherries, dried prunes and strawberries have a national reputation, unequalled by the fruit of any other section of the United States. Why? Because nature has given her a soil containing the necessary plant food, a climate without extremes, and moisture had sunshine just right to produce a fruit of beautiful color, firm texture, and unrivalled flavor. And her people have the intelligence to take advantage of these conditions.—Wilbur K. Newell, president state board of horticulture.

The answer made by the Pacific States Telephone company in the suit brought against it by the state of Oregon for unpaid taxes is one of the most important in our history, as it involves a question of national as well as state importance. Should this company succeed in their contention, it will knock many of our present and contemplated laws into worse than a cocked hat—in fact such a result would be too far reaching and disastrous to seriously contemplate. The question raised is one that must be considered, however, and might be settled now as well as at some future time. In brief, the Pacific States Company alleges that the entire initiative and referendum system as enacted by the people and the legislature is void, null and worthless because it violates the Constitution of the United States and of Oregon in something like fifty different ways.

A Sense of Proportion.

GILMAN COMPANY WANTS DAMAGES

Alleges Business Was Ruined by Acts of Furniture Association

Alleging that its business was ruined by the furniture association, the Gilman Auction & Commission company has filed suit in the United States circuit court against twenty of the leading members of the association asking for damages according to the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law in the sum of $150,000, placing the actual damages suffered at the hands of the combination at $50,000.

The Gilman company is located at 411 Washington street, and alleges that it was forced into the Northwest Retail Furniture Dealers' Protective association, one of the retail associations of the general organization, but afterwards withdrew. The persons and firms named in the complaint are nearly all of Portland, as follows: F. S. Harmon & Co., D. N. and E. Walter & Co. of San Francisco; Hayward Bros. & Wakefield, Doernbecher Manufacturing Co., W. and J. Sloan, of San Francisco; Meyer & Frank, Lipman Wolfe & Co. Tull & Gibbs, C. H. Wortman & King, Taubenheimer & Schmeier, Powers Furniture Co., Oregon Furniture Co., E. A. Covell, J. G. Mack and Herman Cale.

Is Association Dissolved?
 Aside from the claim for damages the most important charge in the complaint is that the furniture association, which was supposed to have been dissolved when the members pleaded guilty in the United States district court this summer, is still active, and according to the complaint filed today, carrying out its operations more actively than before the members were fined.

In the complaint it is alleged that the Gilman company was enjoying a business amounting to $300,000 a year prior to the formation of the combination, from which it derived a net profit of $100,000. It is alleged that the combination, because of its restrictions, and system of fines, ruined the business of the Gilman company, which claims to have suffered actual damage in the sum of $50,000.

According to the Sherman anti-trust law, a person or corporation can recover three times the actual damage suffered from a combination in the restraint of trade. If the jury finds the damage in the Gilman case to have been $50,000, the court will assess a judgment for $150,000. Attorneys fees are also allowed by the law, which are asked for in the sum of $5,000.

Array of Legal Talent.
 The attorneys for the Gilman company are James Cole, assistant United States attorney, who successfully prosecuted the furniture combination in the United States district court this summer; the law firm of Chamberlain, Thomas & Hall, and William McFarlane and A. E. Clark.

The complaint alleges that the persons and firms named as defendants were members of the Northwest Furniture exchange, the Northwest Retail Furniture Dealers' Protective Association and the Oregon Retail Furniture Dealers' association. All of these associations were part of the combination ordered dissolved by Judge Charles E. Walcott last June, the Northwest Furniture exchange being the association for wholesalers, and the others for retail dealers.

Effect of Combination.
 According to the complaint, and as was shown in the federal court last summer, members of the Northwest Furniture exchange refused to sell goods to retailers unless they were members of the various associations formed along the coast, including the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and California. In turn the retailers pledged themselves not to buy furniture from any wholesaler not a member of the exchange. The plaintiff alleges that, in accordance with the rules of the combination a schedule of non-competitive prices, terms of sale and discounts was maintained which throttled the trade. It is also claimed that a system of spy-g was maintained whereby would-be purchasers were sent to the Gilman store to attempt to purchase goods at less than the schedule price.

If successful they would make a return to the association, which in turn would fine the offender. Because of these fines and other restrictions the plaintiff alleges it was forced to discontinue its relations with the association, thereby placing itself in a position where it could not buy furniture.

Because of this fact the complaint alleges the Gilman company was unable to supply its trade, which rapidly fell away and caused the damage to the firm's business in the sum named in the complaint.—Oregon Journal.

The Furniture Trust at Their Old Tricks.

I have been notified by the Oregon Furniture Mfg. Co., of Portland, the only place that I have been able to purchase western made furniture in Portland at wholesale, that Guy Bros. & Patton and Frank J. Chapman told them if they sold to me that they would not buy of them, that I was selling too cheap. No doubt we are selling too cheap as Mr. Dalton came to my store last spring and wanted to set prices. He said that we might as well have a good price, and then they will tell you that they will save you money on furniture. When I started my store last spring I was told by Mr. Chapman that I could not buy furniture in Portland without an order from someone in the association, which I guess was true, as I got Frank Kerslake to send in an order for me.

ELECTRICITY FOR LIGHTING IS ONLY EXPENSIVE TO PEOPLE WHO ARE WASTFUL AND CARELESS. TO YOU, WHO ARE NATURALLY CAREFUL, IT DOES NOT COME HIGH.

It is economical because it can be quickly turned off when not needed. With gas or kerosene there is the temptation to let light burn when not needed, to save bother of lighting and adjusting. In some homes the electric light bill amounts to only about $2 per month. You can probably get some kind of artificial light for less money than electric light, but does it save you anything when it limits opportunities for work and recreation, ruins your eyesight, smokes your walls, mars decorations and increases household work. You can probably save a dollar to-morrow by going without your meals, but it wouldn't be economy. It is not so much what you save, but how you save, that counts. We are always ready to explain the "ins and outs" of the lighting proposition to you. Call on us or phone to us. We are never too busy to talk business.
