Thanksgiving is the next stop.

The Roosevelt message to Congress is now passing through the modification period.

What a bond issue under a republican administration? The thing seems incredible after boasts we remember a few years ago.

Would Mr. Cortelyou be as hysterically active in relieving the financial distress of "poverty lane" as he was in relieving Wall street?

John Sharp Williams only knows of three men who ought to be behind the bars for distributing the financial situation. There's concentration for you.

A cable dispatch announces that Mr. Taft rode over the Philippine mountains on a mule. Mr. Taft will forget the experience long before the mule will.

Hetty Green says there is no pleasure like making money, but some people would dispute with her if they could have the pleasure of spending what she has made.

Mr. Harriman is building 800 miles of railroad in Mexico with foreign material and foreign labor. There's where he can evade the American trusts and save money.

Some day, we hear, M. Cortelyou may tell the public about these insurance contributions to the Roosevelt campaign fund. Maybe he is waiting until the tariff is revised.

An Indianapolis story has it that Mr. Fairbanks got his hold of the people by the fight he made on free silver. However, he seems to have lost it by his distribution of free cocktails.

When confidence is restored it will be found that the newspapers of the land were the main factors in bringing it about. There have been no knockers, but all have laid aside political bias and worked harmoniously together to keep the people from getting excited and thus in enflaming the evil. Political capital is bound to be Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

Prevalence of Kidney Disease. Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalence of kidney disease.

While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physician, who usually look for some other cause with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmur's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, kidney, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage.

It corrects inability to hold water and sending pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go out during the day, and to get up many times during the night.

The extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have a bottle. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmur & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Do not make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmur's Swamp-Root, and the address Binghamton, N. Y. on every bottle.

Dr. Kirkpatrick was born on his father's farm near Knoxville, Tennessee, 82 years ago. His parents were natives of Scotland, and came to the United States early in the last century.

He began the study of medicine and surgery in his boyhood, and eventually graduated from the Medical Department of the College of the City of New York in 1858. His early practice was in Quincy, Illinois, and Camp Point, in the same county.

In 1877 he came to Oregon and located in Sebe, where he practiced for six years. He moved to Dallas in 1883. In connection with his practice here, he engaged in hop raising on a large scale for a few years, and then turned the business over to his sons. He retired from practice in 1888 and moved to Los Angeles, where he resided continuously until his death.

Dr. Kirkpatrick was married in early manhood to Miss Mary Grigsby, who was born in Illinois. His wife and the following children survive him: Mrs. Kirkpatrick, of Dallas; Mrs. Nina Dock, Mrs. David Barry, James, Clifford and Homer Kirkpatrick, of Los Angeles; Mrs. George Ryland, of Portland, and Mrs. Frank Costes, of Lewiston, Idaho.

DR. KIRKPATRICK DEAD.
Well Known Practitioner Succumbs to Malady.

Hon. E. C. Kirkpatrick left Sunday for Los Angeles to attend the funeral of his father, Dr. J. E. Kirkpatrick, so long a resident of Dallas and well known all over Polk county. He was aged 82 years, and stomach and bowel

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gorke, last evening, Rev. M. P. Dixon, pastor of the Methodist church, spoke the solemn words that made one twin of Mr. James Rankin, of Portland, and Miss Pauline Gorke, of Dallas. Only a few of the bride and groom's most intimate friends were present besides the immediate families to witness the pleasing ceremony and wish the happy couple Godspeed upon their future life.

The bride looked charming in white mull, and the groom was dressed as befitting the occasion. A sumptuous dinner was served at 9 o'clock, to which all present did full justice, and the newly wedded pair left on the train this morning for their future home in the metropolis. Many handsome and useful presents were given them by their many friends here and in Portland.

The bride is well known in Dallas and vicinity, having lived here for many years, and is one of our most popular, charming and accomplished young ladies, and will be sadly missed from our social circles. Mr. Rankin has without doubt picked one of the fairest flowers of young womanhood that is the good fortune of Polk county to be so plentifully supplied with.

The groom is the well known fireman on The Flyer, and is a young man of solid worth, honorable character, and with the proper ambition to yet be heard of in the top notch of railroad circles.

Besides the bride's family, there were present at the wedding, Mrs. Rankin, of Portland, mother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. John Steinfeldt, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Adams, Miss Ruby Fiske, Miss Edna Holmes, Miss Imal Johnson, Miss Ethel Johnson, Mr. Claud Simpson and Mr. Harry Ballard, of Portland.

MUCH THANKS.

She sat beside me at the play. I know her not at all. But in a coy and careless way she let her hair fall.

And as I handed them to her (Ah, happy finger touch!) She said to me, she said, said she, "Oh, thank you—very much!"

She stood beside me in the car. And we were strangers quite. I wasn't going very far. And so I thought I might kiss my seat to rest her feet. (Now, wasn't that polite?)

As from the overhanging strap she loosed her frantic clutch. She said to me, she said, said she, "Oh, thank you—very much!"

She passed me on the avenue. As promenadeers pass. Her dainty kerchief dotted blue and very light as gauze. She dropped behind. I strove to find. And found it for the lass.

And as I placed it in her hand. Profoundly grateful quite. She said to me, she said, said she, "Oh, thank you—very much!"

Now, this was not one woman lone. But many more from some to zone. And many more from some to zone. Have thus been served by me. And other men who're helpful when They cannot help but be.

And ever thus we get their thanks (It surely beats the Dutch). They always say them this-a-way, "Oh, thank you—very much!"

I hope some time before I go To fill a tomb or urn. The ladies may not thank me so—For I do not do not years. Yet if they don't, stay dead I won't—I surely shall return!

I shall return from out the pit. My ghost and say, the same old way. "Oh, thank you—very much!" —Robertus Love in Judge.

Cipher Code.
"So that dining room orchestra plays by instruction, eh?" said the new arrival.
"Oh, yes!" replied the corpulent proprietor. "When I notice a guest slipping hot coffee I signal 'P. L.' That means 'Play loud.'"

"Yes, and then when I see one eating soup with a great deal of noise I signal 'P. V. L.' That means 'Play very loud.'"

"Clever—very clever. Is that all of the code?"
"No, no! When a man starts to eat corn off the cob I hurry up and signal 'P. B. L. A. B. T. C.'"

"And what does that mean?"
"Why that means 'Play blamed loud and beat the cymbals.'"—Chicago News.

Just Kids.
"SHALL I KISS HER?"

"How do you like my new hat, Kitty?"
"Labley, Minnie, I had one just like it last winter."—New York World.

Incorrigible.
There was one lad who would persist in saying "have went."
"One day the teacher 'kept him in' saying: 'While I am out of the room you may write have gone fifty times.'"

When the pedagogue returned he found that the boy had dutifully performed the task, having written "have gone" fifty times. On the other side of the paper, however, was this message from the absent one: JOHN WHITE.

I have went.—Harpers Weekly.

The Horrors of Matrimony.
"One of the prominent actresses says she out of ten marriages turn out unhappily."
"Yes," replied the old bachelor; "if a man marries a woman for her beauty he is likely to find that a good deal of it is counterfeit, and if he takes her for her money the chances are that she will merely give him an allowance."—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Platform as Amended.
"My platform," shouted the orator, bringing his fist down with a resounding thump on the desk before him. "Is 'Leave well enough alone!'"
"Beg pardon," whispered the chairman of the meeting, an eminent Boston citizen, pulling his coattails gently. "Let well enough alone is the preferable form."—Bohemian.

The Chances.
"Which would you rather be," asked the ambitious youth, "a great speaker or a great writer?"
"It all depends," answered Mr. Skritus Backer, "on whether you would rather take a chance on getting clergyman's sore throat or writer's cramp."—Washington Star.

Her Wages.
"Mistress—Why, Bridget, it seems to me you want very large wages for one who has had so little experience."
"Bridget—Sure, mum, ain't it harder for me when I don't know how?"—New York Life.

Suspicious of It.
"No," said the capitalist, "I don't believe this invention can amount to much. I guess I'll not invest any money in it."
"But," his partner replied, "it looks good. People who have examined it say it's one of the greatest things that ever—"
"It's so use. There must be something wrong about it. The inventor seems to be thoroughly practical."—Chicago Record-Herald.

SQUAW KILLED.

A Drunken Brawl Results in a Dead Indian.

Word came to the sheriff's office at 9 o'clock this morning of the killing of a squaw on Mill creek this morning by an Indian or Indians, while they were having a big time in the early morn as a result of having indulged too strongly of the white man's firewater. Further particulars were unobtainable as the sheriff's mutual telephone wire was run over by a train last night, and information could hardly be gleaned from the person at the other end. The fatality seems to have occurred on the old Blair place, about where Cyrus Blair now lives on Mill creek, near the Ridge-way place. She seems to have been married and to have a husband whose front name is Enoch, but we could not ascertain his last name. Sheriff Grant is in that community today, and was communicated with, and he will at once go there and bring home the perpetrator of the deed, if he can be found.

All is yet surmise as to who committed the murder, and it may have been her husband. Prosecutor Sibley has an idea on the subject that will probably prove correct, but it is not best at this time give it publication, in order that the ends of justice may be more readily subserved. Justice of the Peace O. E. Focht, of Ballston, has been delegated as acting coroner, and will hold an inquest over the remains this afternoon, when it is probable that the murderer will be designated.

We understand that these drunken brawls are of frequent occurrence in that end of the county, being made possible by the dryness of Yamhill county and the consequent dumping into Polk of saloons that work under a government license only. If an Indian is still a ward of the government he should not be sold liquor. This question has never been settled, but should be.

Mr. J. L. Blodgett advertised a cow for sale in the Trestler last week and sold her before the ink was half cold. 25 per cent discount on all wall paper for the next 20 days at Guy Bros & Dalton.

The last coat of plaster is now on the large room in the Riley block and workmen are laying the top floor. It will be the largest store room in town.

The dates for the chicken show have been set as December 27th, 28th and 29th. Ralph Adams has kindly donated the use of his middle room in the new Riley block for the occasion.

There was a drunk before Judge Brown this morning, the only one of the week. As he was without funds he was given 20 minutes in which to shake the Dallas soil from his feet, and he availed himself of the privilege pretty pronto.

Mr. R. P. Boise, of Salem, writes us today, and has these kind words for the Itemizer: "Ever since you will find my check for $1.50 to pay for another year's subscription to your paper which I always read with much interest, and which has greatly improved under your management."

Rapid changes of temperature are hard on the toughest constitution.

The conductor passing from the heated inside of a trolley car to the icy temperature of the platform—the canvasser spending an hour or so in a heated building and then walking against a biting wind—know the difficulty of avoiding cold.

Scott's Emulsion strengthens the body so that it can better withstand the danger of cold from changes of temperature.

It will help you to avoid taking cold.

For the "Human Body—A Temple."

To whom it may concern: I not only consider it a duty but it affords me much pleasure to write a few words in praise of the scholarly manner in which Belle Waterman Findley discussed a very delicate subject which she has chosen to entitle "The Living Temple. If there were more of such thorough and tireless workers in the field, the social problem as it confronts us today would be much easier to solve and control. It is such lectures as these that uplift humanity and greatly enhance Christianity throughout our land.

Very respectfully,
Wm. H. Dale, M. D., Harrisburg, Or.

Mrs. Belle Waterman Findley will speak at the Christian church of Dallas Sunday afternoon, November 24th, at 3 o'clock on "The Human Body a Temple."

Portland is now trying to hog all the apple fairs. Wants them combined and held there next year.

Mr. Gentry, the section boss on the railroad, who has been making his home here, has moved with his family to Independence.—North Yamhill Record.
