 One of my neighbors, a man by the way, suggests that every man ask his wife how she wants him to vote on the question of woman suffrage, and then vote her way regardless of his own preference. If men would do that the question could be decided by the women, as it should be. Let me say that the man who has no wife could vote for his mother, or sister. He who has neither should not vote at all on that question.

ITCHING ECZEMA FIFTY-FIVE YEARS

Suffered Torments from Birth — Boils Formed as Big as Walnuts — In Frigid Condition and Could Hardly Work — Tried All Kinds of Remedies to No Avail — At Last WHOLLY CURED IN 8 MONTHS BY CUTICURA

"I had an itching, tormenting eczema ever since I came into the world, and I am now a man fifty-five years old. I tried all kinds of medicines I heard of, but found no relief. I was truly in a frigid condition. My hair fell out, and so bad that I broke out all over with red and white boils, which kept growing until they were as big as walnuts, causing great pain and misery. I thought they would take the skin off my whole body, but I kept from scratching as well as I could. I was so run down that I could hardly do my work. Mr. Nelson R. Burnett recommended the use of Cuticura Remedies, telling me he was confident they would benefit me, and in time cure me. I used the Cuticura Soap, Ointment, Resolvent, and Pills for about eight months, and I can truthfully say I am cured. I cordially recommend Cuticura Remedies to all who are afflicted the same as I was, believing that they will use them according to directions, they will find them all they are represented to be. Any one doubting the truth of what you can write to Mr. Burnett, who will cheerfully vouch for my statements."
 Hale Rowland, R. F. D. 3, Cedar Corners, Tipton, Ia., Aug. 17, 1907.

"I cheerfully endorse the above testimonial. It is the truth. I know Mr. Rowland, and know the condition he was in. He never tires of praising the Cuticura Remedies."
 Nelson R. Burnett, Tipton, Ia."

MY UNAVAILABLE EDUCATION.

Women are handicapped in the professions by the fact that we may marry. My friends appeared doubtful, saying that I was too good looking to remain single. I put this down to flattery and pursued my studies, then took hospital work. On coming out of the hospital I hung out my shingle in a quiet street, ready to practice only among women and children. I hadn't been settled a week before I received a call from an old lady living directly opposite, who wished me to go over to her house and see her son. "The poor boy," she said "has always been strong and well till four or five days ago, when he had trouble with his heart. Do come and see him. Suppose you tell her words that her son was a boy, I went over there on an easy chair, was a young man not less than twenty-five years old. He showed no outward signs of illness, his color being good, though when I took his pulse test his heart beat I found his pulse quite rapid. I asked him to give me his symptoms, which he did in these words:
 "A few days ago I was looking out of my window. I remember the circumstances well. It was about 2 o'clock. A cart was lumbering up the street. You opened your front door and went out. Suddenly my heart, which had always beat regularly, began to jump and flutter. I fell back on my chair and waited for the unusual action to subside. It finally did so, but it returns every day and about the same time."
 "Do you drink coffee?"
 "Yes."
 "Stop it at once."
 "Liquors?"
 "Occasionally."
 "Stop them too."
 "Smoke?"
 "He smokes all the time," his mother put in.
 "Stop smoking, but gradually—two cigars a day for awhile, then one and finally none."
 He looked quite cut up, but said presently, "Well, seeing it's you, I'll do it. But there's no other doctor I'm depending that could persuade me."
 "That's the advantage of a woman physician," said the mother. "Men are dictatorial and unsympathetic."
 I put my ear down on to the patient's chest to hear the beating of his heart. It certainly beat rapidly, but I could hear no sounds denoting any organic difficulty. I told him that his trouble was nervous and by following my directions he would soon be free from it. I went away not expecting to be called in again.
 Within a week my patient's mother came over to say that her son, notwithstanding that he had followed my recommendations, had daily recurrences of his trouble. I asked her when they came on, and she said about 2 o'clock. This was the hour that I went out on my afternoon rounds, and I hastened to her at once. I went in the next day to see the patient. I went the next day directly from my office across the street and found the young man looking well enough, but the action of his heart was certainly above the normal.
 Well, I attended him for several months, his condition remaining much the same. I found my visits to him a relief, instead of talking about his ailments being secured to attract little importance to it and chatted delightfully on other subjects. Many a time when visiting him I would suddenly discover that my time had been slipping away and I must get out my afternoon calls. Indeed, there were times when I found I had neglected some important case.
 One afternoon when my patient said he was well, I said to myself, "I have told you a great deal about my heart, but you have told me nothing about yours. Mine beats wildly whenever I see you go out on your rounds of afternoon visits. As sometimes it is normal. In other words, it has beat for you ever since I first saw you leave your office. I would know if yours does not beat for me."
 I rose with dignity, not to say irritation, and replied:
 "Do you mean to tell me that you have been fooling me all this time?"
 "My heart is affected."
 "For—for me only?"
 "For you only. I can't love but one woman at one time."
 Opposing currents struggled within me. I was vexed to have been treated like a well, like a woman instead of a physician. Nevertheless I could not keep down a delicious sensation that I was doing my duty. I maintained a professional status.
 "My time," I said curtly, "is as valuable when visiting one who has intention to be made a fool of me as a patient who needs me. I shall make you pay for this."
 I strode out of the room. But I was too late. The fellow had caught me. I tried to stay away from him and keep him away from me. It was no use. The paws of the trap closed about me. I married him and lost the results of six years' hard work.
 And yet, while I don't wish to discourage others of my sex from studying physiology, I trust around your sex with my husband and my children has been in keeping with nature, and I have not regretted marrying.

THE AWKWARD "MRS."

Single as Well as Married Women Once Carried This Title.
 A curiously awkward word, if it be a word, is "Mrs." It is not spelled as it is pronounced—no one but a Welshman or a Scots woman would be pronouncing it as it is spelled—and its pronunciation is a clumsy contraction of the good old English designation "mistress."
 In the days of old, when leisure had gotten luxury and people were less anxious to elip their speech, the full pronunciation was often used, and "mistress" was not altogether allowed out of existence by the vulgar "miss." But nowadays "mistress" has dropped out and consequently the contracted pronunciation of "Mrs." has prevailed and holds the field.

 Another point worth noting in the history of the designation is that about 150 years ago and earlier "Mrs." was applied quite impartially to unmarried as well as married ladies. Even children were sometimes styled "Mrs."
 The burial of an infant daughter of John Milton, who died at the age of five months, is recorded in the parish register of St. Margaret, Westminster, and her name is given as "Mrs. Katherine Milton," followed by a small "c" to indicate that a child is meant. But this may be regarded as an exceptional use of the title.—St. James' Gazette.

A Sshetlarian Dap.
 "Tip was an Irish water-his name was really Tipperary and Tip for short," said a New York clubman. "He knew when it was Sunday, and he kept the day. He was the only Sabbatharian dog I ever knew. He used to sleep on a rug in my room. I had to keep early hours in those days, and every morning at 7 o'clock Tip would put his cold nose against my face and would say that it was time to go to work. Then while I was dressing he would go to the village postoffice and bring home the mail. On Sunday morning he never stirred off his rug until I was good and ready to get up, which was usually quite late, and nothing could induce him to go to the post office on that day. And the best part of the story is it is absolutely true."—New York Tribune.

No Plot.
 The actor, rounded up in Russia with a bunch of others, retained his composure while his companions in misfortune were giving way to despair. "I can prove my innocence to the complete satisfaction of the authorities," he said.
 "How can you do that?" one of his companions asked. "You will always be suspected of being connected with a plot."
 He smiled confidently.
 "Not when I tell them that for years I have been playing in musical comedies."—Baltimore American.

CATARRH BLOOD AND SYSTEM DISORDERED

Catarrh is not merely an inflammation of the tissues of the head and throat, as the symptoms of ringing noises in the ears, mucous dropping back into the throat, continual hawking and spitting, etc., would seem to indicate; it is a blood disease in which the entire circulation and the greater part of the system are involved. Catarrh is due to the presence of an excess of uric acid in the blood. The Liver, Kidneys and bowels frequently become torpid and dull in their action and instead of carrying off the refuse and waste of the body, leave it to sour and form uric acid in the system. This is taken up by the blood and through its circulation distributed to all parts of the system. These impurities in the blood irritate and inflame the different membranes and tissues of the body, and the contracting of a cold will start the secretions and other disgusting and disagreeable symptoms of Catarrh. As the blood goes to all parts of the body the catarrhal poison affects all parts of the system. The head has a tight, full feeling, nose continually stopped up, pains above the eyes, slight fever comes and goes, the stomach is upset and the entire system disordered and affected by this disease. It is a waste of time to try to cure Catarrh with sprays, washes, inhalations, etc. Such treatment does not reach the blood, and can, therefore, do nothing more than temporarily relieve the discomfort of the trouble. To cure Catarrh permanently the blood must be thoroughly purified and the system cleansed of all poisons, and at the same time strengthened and built up. Nothing equals S. S. S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head, goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and makes a complete and lasting cure. S. S. S. removes every particle of the catarrhal poison from the blood, making this vital stream fresh and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, the head is "sweated" and cleared, the hawking and spitting ceases, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and vigorous health restored. S. S. S. also tones up the stomach and digestion and acts as a fine tonic to the entire system. If you are suffering with Catarrh begin the use of S. S. S. and write us a statement of your case and our physicians will send you literature about Catarrh, and give you special medical advice without charge. S. S. S. is for sale at all first class drug stores.
