

PINKIE PRIM

Instead of taking 'candy,—
(The kind that gives you cramps,)
When Pinkie made a purchase,
She asked for trading stamps.

At last she got her book full,
(It took an awful while!)
"I believe I've got enough now,"
Said Pinkie with a smile.

To store she went a-trotting,
To see what-all was there,
That trading stamps were good for,
She picked a rocking chair.

And after she had tried it,
And found the size all right,
She gave it to her Mama.
But,—Mama found it tight.

Still, Mama thanked her daughter,
Of Pinkie 'twas so kind!
So thoroughly like Pinkie,
To "bear her Maw in mind."

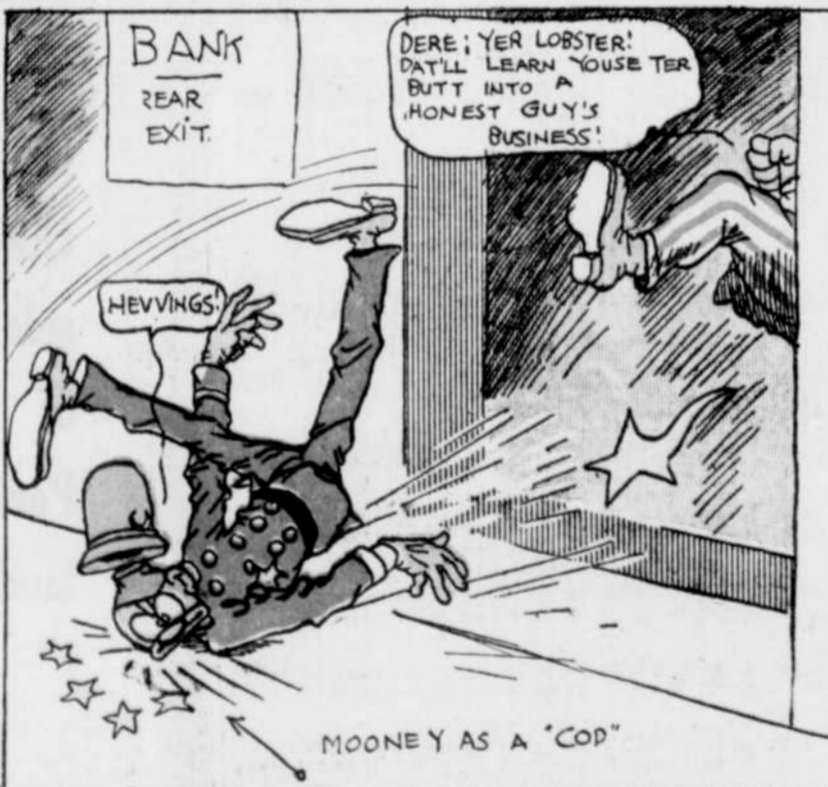

"She's just as cute as any
In all United States!
Recollect," said Grandpa, "when
She bought me roller skates?"
