Harry Thaw is pretty certain to be at liberty soon. He has declared that he will pay none of his lawyers until they get him out of the asylum.

While cyclones and floods are visiting the south, east, and middle west, and the rising waters are destroying millions of dollars worth of farm and city property, Oregon is enjoying beautiful weather, delicious fruit, and looking forward with the confidence inspired by assured crops this fall.

At last Congress rose to the full height of one of its prerogatives, and actually had the courage to override one of President Roosevelt's vetoes. It is explained, however, that it was done with the president's tacit consent. This proviso detracts somewhat from the heroism of the proceeding.

With a special committee of a republican congress investigating the currency problem and the Ways and Means committee of a republican house studying the tariff schedules during the presidential campaign, it seems unlikely that the republican campaign fund will be small or hard to gather.

The cost of laying cement curbs along the line of the proposed street improvement is 25 cents a linear foot, the height to be 14 inches, the width at the bottom eight inches and at the top six inches. The cost of wooden curbs is about 10 cents a foot. The wooden ones will only last a short time, be unsightly, and really of no practical benefit. The cement curbs look nice, give your property a greater value, and will last for many years, and do the work required of them. The Itemizer hopes to see no more of these wooden curbs put in anywhere. Do a good job while you are at it, even if it does cost you over twice as much.

One thing that acts as much to the detriment of a town as any other thing is the raising of rates just because they are fortunate to secure the holding of some convention or give a celebration. This, we are happy to say, has never been the practice of our city. When we have a big day or days, our hotel keepers do not attempt to bleed the sight seeing public by making them pay fancy prices for their meals or keep. Our rates are the same all the time, and that is one reason why Dallas always has large crowds at her doings and the people go home supremely satisfied with themselves and the town. You can depend on no hold up games when you come to the carnival next week.

PERRYDALE ENTERTAINMENT.

Fine Program at Methodist Chuch June 21st.

At the Methodist church in Perrydale on June 21st at 8 o'clock will be given one of the finest musical and literary programs ever rendered in that town. Some extra fine talent has been engaged for the occasion, including a talented singer from Portland. There will be a children's day program in addition. Everybody is cordially invited to be present and enjoy the occasion.

Miss Anna Braun, who has just returned from a two years course at the Chicago Training School, and expects to start as a missionary to India in September, to be gone eight years, will attend the entertainment, and has kindly consented to give a brief address on Charity work, which will be very interesting. Grocery Changes Hands.

The grocery just under the Itemizer office, lately owned by Mr. E. C. Kirkpatrick, has been by him sold to Mr. L. H. Shultz, the latter taking charge Tuesday. Mr. Shultz is an old and experienced grocerer, having been engaged in the business for many years, both in Salem and at McCoy, and comes well recommended as a gentleman of superior business faculties, genial and who will have no trouble in holding the large trade always enjoyed by the store he now owns. Mr. Kirkpatrick will hereafter devote his whole time to his many other large interests in our city.

Bicycles on Street.

Ed. Itemizer:

It would be a great convenience if the council would allow us the privilege of riding on some designated sidewalks, especially during the long rainy season. There are many of us who have much to do at our orchards out of town, and if allowed to use the walks it would greatly faciliate our going to and from. It would also be a great boon to many who work at our mills and could thus get to their work very much easier. We do not ask the use of any of the main walks, but think it would not be detrimental in any way to the walking public if we were allowed, say the use of a sidewalk on one side ot each street. Such could be determined by our city fathers, and made to conform to the convenience of all, without being prejudicial to the interests of any. We know there are some who always take a wrong advantage of any such privilege, but as business men, we think this feature could be properly arranged for. We would like very much to see this suggestion acted on and thus give our lawmakers a hint of our desire.

INCUBATOR BABY.

A Little Midget of 3½ Pounds Receiving Sustenance.

Last week there was born to Mr. and Mrs. Plee, of Black Rock, perhaps one of the smallest babys that ever began its career in Polk county. At time of birth, which was premature, owing to illness of the mother, it weighed only 2 pounds.

It is now being cared for in an improvished incubator at Mrs. Gregory's hospital here. Dr Starbuck informs us that it is now six days old, healthy and getting along fine in every respect, and has as good a chance to reach and fill out the average span of life as any other infant. Mr. Plee is a clerk in the Wyatt store at Black Rock.

MORE OIL.

This Fluid Now Showing Up on Salt Creek.

Last week on the farm of Uncle Bill Brown on Salt Creek, now rented by the Mr. Robinson who is boring for oil near town, it was determined to clean out a spring in a marshy place so that cattle might drink therefrom in good shape, but was so mixed with oil that the cattle would not touch it. Experts are now beginning to fully believe that an immense oil deposit lies beneath us and that it will not be long until it will be found. Boring near town has been suspended at a depth of loss than 400 feet until a break of the engine can be repaired.

PASSING OF AN OLD RESIDENT.

Judge Frank Butler Joins Silent Majority.

Frank Butler, who died at Falls City Sunday afternoon, was an old and respected resident of Polk county, Oregon. Mr. Butler was born at the Hall, Brentwood, Essex, England, July 7, 1842. On April 27, 1871 he married Eleanor Field Butler, of Royston, England. Three children were born to them in England, two sons and a daughter; later the daughter died and was buried in England. In the year 1881 he, with his wife and two sons came to Oregon and lived in Corvallis for one year, and then removed to Polk county, Oregon, and ever since have resided on their estate known as Oakhurst, a large part of which is in Falls City. Last summer Mr. Butler buil a fine large house in Falls City and moved into it last October. There survives him two sons, Dr. Arthur Butler, of Washington, D. C., and Randolph, of Falls City, and his widow, Eleanor Field Butler.

Mr. Butler was an Episcopalian, and lived every day of his life up to the broad doctrine of Christianity laid down by Christ, man's humanity to man. He was a great help to those in trouble and ever ready to assist the needy. He was an active republican in politics, and had filled various offices in Polk county, being county surveyor, and a justice for many years. He was the real founder of Falls City, and the esteem in which he was held was shown by the closing of nearly every place of business during his funeral. His long and busy life was well spent, and while his neighbors and friends drop the silent tear of sympathy for his loss, the angel of eternal life stands at the pearly gates with a crown of eternal life, and will say, "Enter into your eternal rest.

A Terrible Accident.

Yesterday morning while young Mr. Carter, a late arrival from the east, was engaged in cutting cordwood for Mr. J. G. Trent on the Dolph place, a butt flew up hitting him in the mouth, tearing his nose completely open and making a fearful and ghastly wound, but happily, not with such force as to rob him of consciousness or cause brain concussion. He was brought to town and Dr. Starbuck secured him relief as soon as possible, it being necessary to take 17 stitches to close up the wound. Mr. Carter has the sympathy of all in this regretable accident.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.
Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

Do not make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address Inghampton, N. Y. on every bottle.

Humor and Philosophy

CHANGES HIS DREAM.

The man without a dollar
Has some ideas quaint.
He thinks if he had money
The city he would paint;
That he would feed the hungry
On chicken and roast lamb,
But when he finds a fortune
He closes like a clam.

When folded in the clutches
Of poverty he finds
The rich unsympathetic,
With narrow, grasping minds,
But when his luck grows brighter
And dollars roll in view
He changes his opinion
About the well to do.

When on his uppers walking,
Too poor to raise a row,
He thinks of institutions
He surely would endow
To raise the meek and lowly
And give the poor a chance,
But when he gets the money
He keeps it in his pants.

Alas, poor human nature,
Caught in the grip of pelf;
When poor so generous minded,
When rich good to himself;
So kind and open hearted
When he has nought to blow,
But, oh, so very different
When loaded with the dough.

Plugging For Her.

"Do you think it will rain?"
"I know it will."
"Where is your sure sign?"
"My wife told me to take my umbrella, and I didn't."

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

WILLIE

A SUPERINTENDENT'S STORY.

[Original.]

I'm a self made man. I started as fireman on a locomotive, passed ten years as engineer and rose to be general superintendent of the road.

Now, there is a vast difference between a fireman or engineer and a general superintendent. But I didn't get the big head. I never considered myself or any of my family any better for my sitting in a revolving chair tapping a bell for some one to wait on me than when I had my hand on the throttle, and when Tom Milliken, a locomotive engineer, came courting my daughter Susie I didn't turn him down because he drove an engine. But what I wanted for Susie was a man of nerve, strength and character.

"Tom," I said, "you may have Susie on one condition. We want a man to take a new passenger limited through in the night. The distance is 300 miles, and it must be done in five hours. The average must be sixty miles an hour, which means as low as fifty and as high as seventy. Do the job, and you shall have Susie."

Tom thought a long while, then said:

"I have always supposed, Mr. McMullen, that you'd never ask a man to do what you would not do yourself."

"I wouldn't."

"Well, suppose we put it this way: You take the train through first. If you succeed, I take it through and get Susie. If you don't succeed, I get Susie without making the attempt myself."

The fellow knew how to handle me. I was very proud of my knowledge of railroad technique and had carried trains often since my promotion. I at once acceded to his terms.

I shall never forget the experience of that run. Twenty minutes before train time I appeared in overalls at the engine, which was standing ready on the track, to make my own inspection of her and do my own oiling. When we pulled out I felt like a bird let out of a cage. I was still, though fifteen years older than when I left the cab, in full vigor of nerve and muscle. I had figured carefully just what time I must make on different parts of the road and was in every way prepared for the trial. I had never driven an engine for any length of time over fifty miles an hour, and up to that point there is no great strain on an engineer. I did not realize that an average man can't stand many spurts at sixty-five miles an hour and in some places I must do seventy.

I got on pretty well for the first three hours, though I had made a number of my fast paces, but after that I began to suffer. Looking straight ahead continuously, seeing at the same time things out of the corners of my eyes whizzing by me, made me feel as if something was pulling my sight nerve out through the sockets. Some of my fastest spurts came in about this time, and every few minutes I was frightened half out of my senses. The first thing to rattle me was seeing something black on the track dead ahead of me. I thought it was the rear end of a train with no lights out. If it had been there would have been no time to slow up, but it was gone before I could have done so anyway, and then I realized that it was the shadow of a bird flying across the headlight. This had the effect on my nerves of an escape from a sudden plunge into death.

I had always been quick to adopt improvements on the road and had put on electric headlights. This made all the shadows look like big black things, solid as masonry. The shadow of a telegraph pole cast on the track as it sometimes would be at a curve ahead looked for all the world like the trunk of a tree. The worst scare I had was from something that wouldn't get out of the way. It was a big round black bowlder that appeared a few hundred feet ahead. This was the only scare I put on the brakes for. As I slowed down I noticed that I got no nearer to it. Finally I stopped short, went ahead to the pilot, and, turning, there on the glass before the headlight was a little moth.

An hour before I was due to arrive I had made up my mind that, though I could make an engine to do the trip on schedule time, I couldn't make a man to run her. But I had a lot of pride and continued the struggle, though my failing nerves rendered failure almost a certainty. When I had the last forty miles to go and only thirty minutes to do it in I gave up and turned the throttle over to my fireman, with directions to take his time. As I left the engineer's post I staggered to the seat on the other side of the cab, and it was all I could do to hold on when I got on to it.

I felt as if a dozen men with hammers had been pounding on every nerve in my body. When we reached the station I called a carriage and went to a hotel, and if I hadn't been too proud, or, rather, if I hadn't feared it would get out, I'd have called a trained nurse to take care of me.

The next day I went back in the president's private car and the morning after appeared in my office and sent for Tom Milliken. He came in, looking curious. I said to him:

"Tom, you needn't perform your part of the contract. It would be no use, for I've made up my mind not to put the train on. You've won."

"I'd like the privilege of doing the trick once," he said, "if you don't mind."

I gave him permission, and he took the train through on time.

ROBINSON M'BRIDE.

The Moors of Today.

The Moors of today are the descendants of those who conquered Spain, who were practically paramount in the southern portion for two centuries and relics of whose wonderful buildings are to be found at the present day in that country. Indeed, it is strange to consider the position of the Moors of today when we see the work of their hands in past centuries, and the only explanation lies in the fact that they are unable to adapt themselves to modern conditions.—Strand Magazine.
