

PINKIE PRIM

'Twas "Erisyplas" in her eyes! —
That's what the Doctor said.
Then Finkie had to learn to cook,
While Maw lay sick-a-bed.

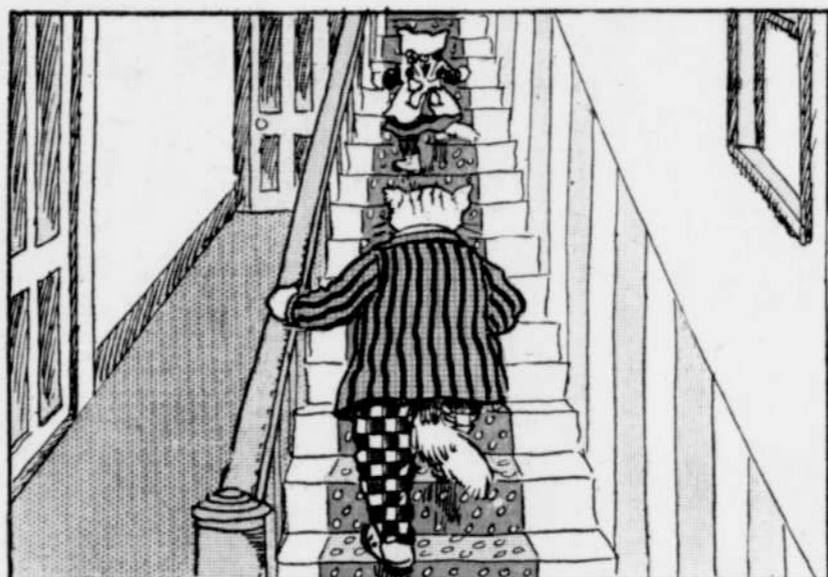

Was Finkie equal to the job?
Well, I should snicker, — smile, —
Her cooking, while her Maw lay sick,
Was dished up in good style!

Her batter-cakes delicious were!
Her bacon and her eggs, —
They surely reached Paws' stomach! — And
Her coffee knew no dregs.

So proud of her, her Grandma was,
She went and told her Maw.
Who asked that Finkie come upstairs.
And followed, — course, — her Paw.

Her Maw's eyes tightly bandaged were,
So tight she couldn't see!
She still could reach her hand out, though,
Said: "Finkie, — come to me!"

"My little daughter, may God bless!
Protect you through your life!
As good a daughter, may you have,
If e'er you be a wife!"
