

BUD SMITH, THE BOY WHO DOES STUNTS

PINKIE PRIM

Pinkie found a pocket-book, —
A lady's one, — and, funny!
Nothing 'tall was in the book;
Excepting only money.

"I wasn't much. 'Twas just six-bits.
"I guess she's 'doin' washin'!"
Pinkie said unto herself;
"This pocket-book's a caution!"

"Spend the money," said a girl.
"That I WON'T," said Pinkie.
"Six-bits, — with no powder-puff?
No pennies? Keys? — How dinky!"

"Advertise it," said the girl.
"And spend the lady's twenty
Cents?" asked Pinkie. "Better wait!
Why, we've got time a-plenty!"

"Never fear. It's not long here
The money'll keep a-burnin'.
'Pon my soul, this must be she!
A-searching now, — returning.

"Lady" offered her two-bits.
"Honesty for Honor's sake!"
Answered Pinkie, "says my Maw.
Your two-bits I cannot take."
