THE BILLINGS GAME.

Oregons 97, Billings Athletes 8.

The Oregons opened their series of three games in Billings by simply smothering the Y. M. C. A. athletes. The rapidity with which they rolled in the baskets was marvelous Billings managed to get 2 field baskets while Fenton threw 12; Reed 17; E. Shaw 15, C. Shaw 1.

The following is taken from a Billings paper: "While the scare was something tremendous. it does not show the quality of the game the local boys played. They played together well and when they procured the ball never lost their heads, but they were simply out played at every stage of the game. The Oregon boys proved themselves the fastest aggregation that has been seen here and local experts say that they can defeat the Muscatine team, should the two come together,"

"Reed, a little fellow, was the star forward for the Oregons. He was not only small in stature, but very active and a forward which no guard could hold. E. Shaw, the Oregon center, is a big husky man, who is very active. He made jumps probably ten feet high, were declared to be the most remarkable jumps ever made in a basket ball game here. C. Fenton played a very good forward and supported Reed well. C. Shaw and A. Morton proved to be two excellent guards and fast players."

Oregons 50, Billings Y. M. C. A. Seniors 15. As the tragedy played by the Oregons the night before gave promise of having a woeful effect on the attendance, the ex-manager of the famous Red Wings requested that the score in the second game be kept down. Then, too, the game coming in mid-afternoon, so soon after the big Christmas meal, a tragedy would have been somewhat out of place, so the Oregons put on a two-act comedy instead of the usual performance.

The regular lineup was almost entirely changed being as follows: Morton and Rice forwards, C. Shaw and Fenton centers, E. Shaw and Teats guards. The guarding of the Oregonians was spectacular, Teats getting four baskets to his forwards five while Pebo got three to his opponents one. Morton rolled in seven, Fenton six and the two other men of the team got one each.

The ridiculous appealed pretty strongly to some of the Oregon, bunch who occasionally had to indulge in a hearty laugh at the unusual lineup and the frantic efforts of their opponents who were "proud of the showing they made."

Oregons 37; Billings, Co. K., 13.

The final game played at Billings was without a doubt the dirtiest game in whice a Dallas team was ever compelled to take part. From the blowing of the first whistle it was plain that the Billings team had just one object—to keep down the score and they succeeded only by using any means available.

During the game 56 fouls were called of which 29 were on Billings. Neil, formerly of the Red Wings, gave anything but satisfaction to the Oregons.

In baskets Fenton got two, Reed one, E. Shaw six and Savery two.

The greatest and in fact the only satisfaction the Oregons got was that the boys came through entirely unhurt.

"THE MILL CITY."

Suggested as an Appropriate Name for Dallas.

Appropos of the Itemizer's recent recent request for a name that would be a distinctive one for the county seat, folling the example of other towns, Miss Julia Nunn suggests that we call it The Mill City, and gives several good arguments in support of such a title. In the first place, there is no other town in Oregon that has adapted that or anything like it as an appellation, all having run to fruit or something of the kind. Secondly, Dallas stands ready to rightfully substantiate such a claim in every particular. We have in constant operation two of the largest saw mills in the state, that are doing the business and selling the goods. It is a well known fact that more lumber is shipped from Dallas than from any other town in the state—no exceptions. This first claim makes good the title. But there are other things that count, many of them, and there will soon be more. The opportunity to cut up our timber so close to where it comes out is not going to be lost sight of forever by capitalists. They will in the near future see the benefits of getting at the heart of things and where there is one mill now, there will before many years be ten. But we digress: Our lumber mills are not all that can claim distinction. We have others, which anyone can think of in a few minutes, and see the rightfulness of Miss Nunn's claim to our giving Dallas that title. The Itemizer thinks the suggested name a good and distinctive one, and if no better is forthcoming by the next meeting of our "Development league," will move that it be adopted as our official title.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

Hon. U. S. Loughary and Mr. M. D. Ellis Exchange.

Loughary's grocery store was closed yesterday morning for the taking of an invoice of his large stock of goods, preparatory to an exchange between him and Mr. M. D. Ellis of their respective lines of trade. Mr. Ellis is now owner of the grocery, and will be pleased to meet his many friends in his new location. He has had a number of years experience in that line of work before, and can bring to the business a practical understanding of all its details, assuring him a successful business career. He will no doubt continue to enjoy the large patronage always given Loughary's grocery, and everyone can rest assured that he will give them the worth of their money and that the treatment received there will be courteous and obliging in every particular. Mr. Loughary is an old time drygoods man, and has had many years practical experience in every department. He was with Jos. Meyers & Sons in Salem for several years, and also for some years with Sol. Stock & Sons there, two of the largest drygoods houses that the capital city ever boasted of. He also worked considerably for the best houses in Independence. The Dallas Mercantile Company is to be congratulated on the acquisition of Mr. Loughary as one of the firm, as he will bring to the business a diversified knowledge of such affairs in different fields that cannot help but prove beneficial to all concerned It was a good trade all around and both gentlemen feel more at home by the exchange.
