Alcohol to Children

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely. Children do not need stimulating." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's non-alcoholic Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. Follow his advice. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

DREADFUL DISEASE IS CURED BY CUTICURA

"My six year old daughter had the dreadful disease called hives for two months. She became affected by playing with children who had it, although we did not know it. By scratching she caused large sores which were irritating. Her body was a complete sore but it was worse on her arms and back. We employed a physician who left medicine but it did not help her and I tried several remedies but without avail. Seeing the Cuticura Remedies advertised, I thought I would try them. I gave her a hot bath daily with Cuticura Soap and anointed her body with Cuticura Ointment. The first treatment relieved the itching and in a short time the disease disappeared. I recommend the Cuticura Remedies for all skin diseases and give them my greatest praise. Mrs. Geo. L. Fridhoff, R. F. D. 1, Warren, Mich., June 30 and July 13, 1908."

"My son's back was raw from shoulder to shoulder and the width of your hand. I really did not think he ever would be cured. He would scratch until the blood would run and he was like a raw piece of meat. I used different kinds of things but each kind made it worse until I read of the Cuticura Remedies, and one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment cured him like magic. I would not be without it in the house and I have recommended it to all my friends. Mrs. J. D. Maxwell, 6th St., Woodside, Long Island, N. Y., May 21, 1908."

Abel Uglow lost a bunch of keys Tuesday.

The celebration is inducing many of our residents to clean up their premises.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Morrison came up from the metropolis yesterday to spend a few days under the paternal roof tree.

Our streets today look as though a picnic or celebration were on. Many people in town getting ready for the next two days.

E. J. Arnold came up last evening, and his four shows now have their tents up and are ready for business tomorrow. The steam swing will start up this evening.

There is this afternoon every indication that we are to be favored with the best of weather for our celebration, and that there is to be a record breaking crowd in attendance.

Prof. J. Thompson, an aeronaut lately from the east, will make the two balloon ascensions scheduled for the celebration, and he promises us something out of the ordinary in this line of work.

B. M. Webb and Frank Simpson came down from Black Rock this morning, and report that the whole town would like to be here on the Fourth, if an extra train can be run to take them back that night.

Nearly every vacant room or barn, where it would be possible to house a float, has one in some stage of preparation, showing that our business men are going to make this a grand feature of the parade.

Stands for the vending of all kinds for summer delicacies are going up all over the main streets, and tomorrow, if this splendid weather continues, will see them in full operation, and no doubt doing a good business.

We took a walk around town this morning intending to make mention of some of the nicest decorated store windows and places of business, but found so many of them, and so elaborately and artistically done, that we were compelled to give up the job.

Millie Laura, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Talbot, was married to Arthur Claud Waters, June 23, 1909, at Myrtle Point in Southern Oregon. The bride is a charming young lady of that town, and has many friends in this vicinity who knew her in her childhood days, and who will wish her every pleasure that is to be enjoyed from married life. The groom is a well known ranchman of Lee, Oregon.

Jap Craven is the artist who is responsible for that battleship in Craven Bros.' window, and it is surely the most unique conception that ever hit the town. Everything about it is something taken from the shelves of their hardware store. For instance the hull is constructed of two crosscut saws, the masts are of spools of wire, the turrets of tin vessels with nozzles to represent the protruding rifles; mousetraps make excellent conning towers and the ventilators are represented by pipe knuckles. It must be seen to be thoroughly appreciated, and will attract large crowds on the celebration days.

The Newport Signal, inspired by the prospect of a railroad, drops into poetry, thus:

The good time, long delayed, is now coming,
Throw up your hats and sing the jubilee!
The electric cars will soon be humming

BY PONY ROUTE.

Falls City Couple Start on Long Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Crebs left Falls City lately for a long journey on their native Oregon ponies. They plan to stop a little while in Idaho, and then cross the plains and thence on to Michigan, where they will spend the winter with friends, and in the spring resume their journey, going down through some of the Southern States, thence west to California and northward back to Oregon and this place. Their baggage is only what can be carried on the ponies they ride. They are in search of better health.—Journal.

Dead Man's Hand.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Old Mississippi has seen great changes. For ages she knew only the red men hunting on her banks or darting hither and thither in their canoes, leaving streaks of light on her broad bosom. She saw De Soto come, an apparition from another world. Later the flatboat, the sun glittering on its water dripping sweeps, marked the approach of civilization. The steamer followed the flatboat, an era that marked the old river's greatest glory, a glory of which she was robbed by the railroad built on her banks.

In the middle of the last century what was then regarded a floating palace stopped at Memphis, took on passengers and proceeded on her way down toward New Orleans. Among those who came aboard at Memphis was Arthur Davidson, the son of a widow living on her plantation near that city. Her husband had been a spendthrift and had mortgaged his plantation. From the day of his death for ten years Mrs. Davidson struggled and saved, scraping together every loose coin that came in her way to pay off this mortgage and leave her plantation to her children free from debt. These were two girls and two boys. The eldest boy, Arthur, was twenty-one, the youngest boy eleven. The widow determined to send Arthur to New Orleans, where the money had been borrowed to pay it off and to enter upon a business life. Her property was to be reserved for her minor children.

At that time, when the long table in the cabin was not set for meals, a number of groups were scattered about playing various games of cards. Arthur Davidson stood over one of these tables looking on. It was not only Arthur that listened to the fascinating click of gold pieces (for our individuality is merged into that of our parents and our children; it was both he and his weak father. He sat down and joined in the game.

He had in his pocketbook money for his traveling expenses. The $10,000 with which to pay off the mortgage was in a money belt about his waist. Arthur Davidson soon lost his expense money, rose from the table and walked out on the guards, struggling the while against temptation to go back and redeem his loss by risking the money intrusted to his care. The image of his mother came up before him—terror stricken, pleading. He saw his younger brother and sisters ruined at an age when they could not at that day hope to provide for themselves. But the temptation was too strong for him. Feverishly he unbuckled his belt and, taking out a number of $500 bills, placed them unfolded in his pocketbook. Then he returned to the cabin and resumed his place at the table.

While there were gambler sharks on the Mississippi, there were many games made up of planters, cow men and others in legitimate occupations. The game in which Arthur Davidson was playing was fair, but he was reckless, doing an inordinate amount of bluffing, and he lost steadily. The more his mother's savings diminished the more reckless he became. The game continued far into the night, and toward the small hours of the morning he had parted with more than one-half he had taken from his belt.

It was about 2 o'clock when some one of the players opened a fat pot, and every one stayed in. It was Davidson's last say. He raised, as he usually did, and still no one dropped out. This transferred to the pot about half of what he had left of his original sum. The cards were now drawn. The opener drew three, the next two drew two each and the last three one each. Davidson was one of those who drew one card. The opener bet, and Davidson raised him with all the money he had left. Since he was so given to bluffing, the others, supposing he had drawn but one card to scare them off, called him.

If he won he would win twice the mortgage money. If he lost he would have nothing left. After the last bet he laid his cards on the table face down. It was noticed that he was laboring under a terrible excitement. He bent over the table, his head resting on his arms. The rest showed their hands. The opener had one small pair, another had a pair of aces, a third had two pairs, sevens and fours, and the fourth man had a pair of queens. The highest hand in the lot was the sevens and fours, not a hard one to beat.

"Come, Davidson; show your hand."

Davidson didn't move. One of the players, impatient to know the result, turned over the young man's hand. It contained a pair of tens and a pair of threes. It had won.

"The pot's yours, youngster," called one of the players. "Wake up."

All expected Davidson to start up and eagerly clutch his winnings. Instead he remained immovable. They shook him. They turned his face so that they could see his features. It was livid.

"Is there a doctor aboard?"

Word was passed, and a man in the ladies' cabin came forward, raised Davidson, looked into his face, felt his pulse and pronounced him dead. His heart had yielded to the excitement of standing on the precipice between ruin and a doubling of the money he had been tempted to risk.

Davidson's body was shipped back to his mother and with it not only the $10,000 she had intrusted to his care, but $10,000 additional.

Since then tens and treys have been called the dead man's hand, and it is a hand that is rarely beaten in draw poker. T. DEWITT BOWMAN.

Did Away With Passes.

In one of his messages Governor Johnson said: "If the public officers are not adequately compensated now for their services, fix the compensation to such an extent as to make it reasonable compensation and do away with the possibility of any officer becoming a beneficiary of the favor of corporations and by reason of gratuities being placed under some obligation to the corporation which extends the courtesy. * * * And urge most earnestly the early enactment of a law which will forever abolish the system in Minnesota." And it was done.

SWATS TWO HOMERS.

G. C. M. L. Snyder Makes a Rep. As Batter.

George Curtis Mandy Lee Snyder is a bloomin blarsted 'ero.

That's wat 'e is.

And 'e don't give a cuss who knows it.

Two home runs over the same board in the fence show some class for a man who makes a poor imitation of a bookkeeper but is some lumburger as a ball player. Perhaps it was the baseball suit that did it. Georgie says he could always play better in a ball suit. In the last half of the second last night he started the hilarity. Nobody had scored yet and nobody particularly figured on Curtis Lee. In a base ball suit though he is a handsome man, he appears about like a boxcar set on the trunks of two California Redwood trees.

When he stepped on the dishpan last night and rapped it lightly with his club, adjusting his hat over his right ear, and a wad of toothache gum over his left wisdom tooth some fair haired damsel in the off side of the grandstand murmured "A'int he grand" and just then Tracey slipped in a double decker outdrop.

The connection between the sphere and the tuning fork sounded like Geo. Rodgers making an eighty per cent grade on the Liberty road. The Professional Men started with the same speed as a covey of quail and Georgie went around the sacks like a frightened dove hit in the head with a rock.

Three small boys are still looking for the ball at ten cents an hour.

An inning or two afterward Mr. Snyder duplicated the stunt. The grandstand went wild and demanded a speech. George can't speak but he intimated he might sing a song for the bunch and the crowd subsided murmuring "Let the game go on."—Salem Statesman.

Death of Susan Starbuck.

Mrs. Susan Starbuck, a pioneer, of 1863 and wife of E. Starbuck, died at her home in Portland Saturday at the age of 71 years, 7 months. She was born in Indiana, November 16, 1831, and crossed the plains to Oregon in 1863. In the spring of 1866 she and her husband settled on a farm five miles west of Salem, in Polk county, where they lived until 1893 when they moved to Portland. Rev. H. T. Starbuck, of Portland, is her stepson. She is also survived by her husband and the following children: Mrs. Polly A. Frizzell, of Portland, Mrs. Clara McComey, of Independence, Chand Starbuck, of California, Frank Starbuck, of Portland, Mrs. Laura Ruble, of Centralia.

The Little Boy's Baby Prayer.

Dear God, I need you awful bad.
I don't know what to do.
My papa's cross; my mamma's sick;
I hain't no fr'en' but you.
Them keerless angels went an' brung
'Stid of the boy I ast,
A weenchy, teenchy baby girl.
I don't see how they dast!

Say, God, I wisht you'd take her back.
She's jest as good as new;
Won't no one know she's secon'hand,
But ceptin' me an' you.
An' pick a boy, dear God, yourself,
The nicest in yer fold.
But please don't choose him quite so young.
I'd like him five years old.
—S. M. Talbot in Lippincott's.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by druggists, 75 cents. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
